TAFT WILL ENFORCE LAW TO THE LETTER

Combinations Unlawful Only When Trade Is Restrained, He Says in Chicago.

BELIEVES THAT FEW OFFEND

Would Rather Lose His Right Hand, He Asserts, Than Disturb Business for Political Success.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—President Taft and his party arrived from Milwaukee at 8:10 o'clock to-night. The President went at once to the First Regiment Armory to attend a mass meeting held under the auspices of the Hamilton Club.

In his speech, which was regarded as having a direct bearing upon the Government's latest trust prosecution against the United States Steel Corporation, President Taft denied in vigorous language that the Administration was being influenced by political motive.

"I would rather cut off my right hand," he exclaimed, "than to do anything to disturb the business of this country, especially with a motive of cultivating political success."

The President said he wanted it to be understood for all time that he intended to enforce the anti-trust law to the letter.

"Statements as to what I may be responsible for in bringing about business affairs, however regretful I may be that it is so, cannot turn me from the duty that lies straight before me," continued Mr. Taft. He spoke to an immense throng and his anti-trust declarations called out a storm of applause and cheering. There was no doubt as to what was in the President's mind when he said:

"I come to the subject of the trusts at a time when the matter is boiling."

He was delivering in part his Waterloo speech on the relation of Government to business, and had declared he believed the railroads of the country had brought themselves within the law and were conscientiously trying to keep within it.

"I hope that at not some far-distant time the same thing can be said of the great industrial combinations," he said. "Mere bigness of plant, mere bigness of company or corporation does not constitute a violation of the law. It is the purpose to restrain trade, to suppress competition and control prices that transgresses the statute, and the Supreme Court has decreed that these practices must end.

"Throughout my career," the President continued, "I have always conducted myself with the idea of promoting business and prompting prosperity. If there is anything that arouses disgust in me it is the calamity howler, the man who attacks business and seeks to arouse prejudice against it. Prosperity we all need. We are all in the same boat."

It was here that the President declared he would rather cut off his right hand than disturb business for political motives.

"But," he added, with a pound of his fist on the railing before him, "we have a condition of lawlessness to deal with. We have had it for twenty years. We have gone on organizing combinations in violation of the anti-trust law on the theory that it either could not or would not be enforced.

"The Supreme Court has held that this lawlessness must be stamped out. There is no discretion in the Executive to suspend a single statute. It is his duty to enforce the law and to direct the prosecution of those who violate it.

"There is a vast difference between uniting plants to reduce the cost of production and uniting to suppress competition to restrain trade and control prices. A jury could find that difference in two minutes. It is a question of evidence and fact.

"I am just now in the remarkable position of being charged with an attempt to destroy business by enforcing the anti-trust statute and of having set up the Supreme Court to emasculate the statute in the interests of the trusts.

"I am hopeful this period of strain soon will end, that business soon will square itself with the law. I believe a majority of business is already square with the law.

"There is only one way that I know of to cure the corporations that are suffering from contagion and disease, and that is to eradicate the disease. The law will be enforced to the letter. Now I hope that is understood."

When he concluded his speech Mr. Taft hurried to a hotel to be guest of honor at a ball given by the Irish Choral Society.

The President's programme to-morrow will begin with an address in the forenoon before the American Mining Congress. This will be followed by a luncheon by the Chicago Bar Association, at which he is scheduled to discuss the recall of the judiciary. The afternoon will be devoted to the dedication of the Naval Training Station, while in the evening he will be a guest at a dinner given by the Association of Commerce.

Sunday will be devoted to conferences, an address to the Negro Young Men's Christian Association, and an evening speech. Monday the President will attend the National dairy show and lay the cornerstone of the Hamilton Club. Before he receives the silver trowel with which he is to lay the cornerstone President Taft will be made a member "in good standing" of the Bricklayers' Union of Chicago. His union card and certificate will be presented to him to-morrow.

Besides the President, Secretary of the Interior Fisher and Secretary of the Navy Meyer are here, as also are many Senators who are watching the Lorimer inquiry. Mr. Fisher addressed the American Mining Congress to-night, and the Secretary of the Navy will attend the dedication to-morrow of the new naval training station in North Chicago. Secretary MacVeagh and Postmaster General Hitchcock, who were expected to be among those to greet the President, declined their invitations, and no reply was received from Attorney General Wickersham.

TAFT TALKS TO WORKERS.

Law Must Be Enforced on All Alike, He Declares in Milwaukee.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 27.—After President Taft departed for Chicago to-night it became known that there was a reason why Mayor Emil Seidel and Congressman Victor L. Berger were not present at the Press Club jubilee last night when the President was a guest.

Mayor Seidel slurred Col. Roosevelt in his letter last year refusing to serve on the committee because of Roosevelt's writings on Socialism, so the club decided not to give the Mayor a chance to repeat his course. Instead of being asked to serve, distinct information was given to the Socialist leaders that Seidel was not wanted.

President Taft spoke to-day at a luncheon to several thousand employers and employes of local factories on the relations of capital and labor. He made a plea for all the people to put their shoulders to the wheel to insure obedience to the law and to bring about the prosperity that he said must ensue from such obedience. He said:

"We have our problems, of course we have. They are going to be a test doubtless of American ingenuity, but I think there is one solution of them—perhaps that is because I am a lawyer and a Judge—there is one solution of them, and that is that we shall enforce the law against every one, high and low; whether it be a trust, or a trade union, the law shall be enforced. Then if the law works iniquity, the law can be changed, but as long as the law is on the statute books

BOY FALLS STARVING

Revealing a Mother and Seven Other Children in Like Sad Plight.

The home-going east side crowd, which hastened through Bond Street just before suppertime last night, saw an emaciated and poorly clad boy fall to the pavement in front of No. 2. To those who picked him up he said he was fifteen-year-old Louis Bernstein.

"I live with my moter and seven brothers and sisters in a single room on the second floor of 71 East Fourth Street," the boy said. "My father has been a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital for the last three months. All that has kept us alive is the small daily sum which my mother makes out of a newsstand she keeps at the corner of Bleecker and Mulberry Streets. Up to Thursday we lived in a room in Second Street. But we were dispossessed because we owed $30 in rent. Our furniture was put on the pavement. There were only a few sticks of it anyhow, because we had pawned most of it to get food. I have been working as office boy for a firm in Seventeenth Street. But we have been living on bread and water alone practically ever since my father, a tailor, became ill. I went to work to-day without any breakfast at all and had nothing to eat all day. I was walking home from Seventeenth Street when I became faint and fell."

When a reporter called later at the East Fourth Street room he found that Louis had become so ill that he had had to be sent to Bellevue Hospital after all. Mrs. Bernstein was out, but the seven other children, miserably thin and ill-clad, were all in the room together. The room had no light and was practically without furniture. The eldest girl, 12-year-old Sarah, said that none of the family had had anything more than bread and water since their father had been taken to the hospital three months ago.

DRAG TWO IN CHAINS.

Victime of Gang Manacled Blindfolded and Hauled Through a Creek.

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 27.—Fred W. Viering, Woods Superintendent, and Andrew Zalor, boarding boss, of the Babcock Lumber and Boom Company of Davis, West Va., caused the issue of warrants to-day for six men, and John W. George, Police Superintendent of the orchard of F. Mertens Sons at Green Ridge, where 600 to 700 men are at work, was arrested as the leader of those who persecuted the two. George gave bail, and then had Viering arrested for trespass.

Zalor said he had gone to Green Ridge to collect $234 due him from seven men who had worked in Davis, when he said he was arrested, and with his hands behind him was manacled to a tree and a mule tied to his left arm. The mule fell down and Zalor fell to save his arm being broken. When released from the tree, still handcuffed, Zalor said he was led beside the mule for eight miles and turned loose in a dense woods. After several hours he found his way to Cumberland.

Returning to Davis, he told his company and Supt. Viering was ordered to accompany him to Green Ridge to identify his persecutors. Zalor and Viering went there, but they say they did not enter the Mertens property. Not seeing the men wanted, they crossed into West Virginia to return to Cumberland, when they were intercepted by armed men and marched back to the Mertens camp.

Handcuffed together, they were placed in the lock-up, and after two hours were taken out and fed, after which, blindfolded and manacled together, they were taken in an automobile to the river, with orders that they be drowned. They were dragged up the stony bed of a creek several miles, and almost falling from exhaustion.

The blindfolds were removed and the manacles unloosened, and they were taken to an abandoned house, and, still manacled, their legs were tied together, and they were placed on an old tick, the gang leaving after firing a dozen shots on the outside. Fearing the shack would be fired, they managed to work the rope loose from their legs, but just then their tormentors returned. They took the men out, and, placing a rope around Zalor's neck, declared they would hang both.

The rope was tied to the rear of the automobile, and Zalor was dragged over the road with his head down, in a stooping position. One of the gang, known as "Slim Jim," tried to cut the rope with his revolver, firing several times close to Zalor's head. Another of the gang, known as "Red Irish," shot between Zalor's legs.

Later the men were turned loose in the darkness. After some hours they found their way to Cumberland. The orchard people insist that the object of the two men was to entice away their laborers.

MAYOR NOW SELLS PEARS.

Indianapolis Consumer May Buy Them To-day for 30 Cents Per Bushel.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 27.—Through the efforts of Mayor Shank the Indianapolis consumer will be able to buy high-grade pears on the city market to-morrow at the rate of 30 cents per bushel. On previous Saturdays the Mayor has been offering potatoes at 75 cents per bushel in his fight on the commission merchants and in an effort to reduce the high cost of living by cutting out the middleman's profit.

The pears which will be sold to-morrow are of the variety which are now selling at 60 cents. The pears are to be furnished by a producer in the northern part of the State, who shipped a carload to a commission merchant at 25 cents only to have them refused unless the entire consignment be sold at a flat rate of $100 for the 650 bushels. The plea was that the market was glutted.

The offer was refused, and the shipper wrote to the Indianapolis Mayor, with the result that the consumer will be able to buy the product at half-price to-morrow, and the shipper will get his original figure for the pears.

WOMAN HORSEWHIPS JUDGE.

Suffragette Attacks John F. Main for Giving Decision Against Her.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 27.—Mrs. Christine Oleson, a wealthy suffrage worker and voter, horsewhipped Judge John F. Main of the Superior Court in the County Court House to-day. She rushed upon him unexpectedly and struck him with a whip across the face, head, and shoulders, raising large welts on his face.

Mrs. Oleson became involved in a dispute with her landlord some time ago, was sued for rent, and a jury gave a decision in her favor. This was set aside by Judge Main.

Judge Main is one of the most respected Judges on the King County bench. Sentiment against the courts has been aroused recently at many mass meetings of Anarchists. State and Federal courts have been derided and condemned and the people urged to pay no attention to court decrees or injunctions affecting their rights. From one of these meetings the crowd adjourned to a public street and hanged a Federal Judge in effigy because he had granted a temporary restraining order until the question of an interlocutory injunction could be heard.

Mrs. Oleson is in the county jail. Bail has not been fixed.

URGES STATE REVOLT AGAINST MURPHY

MURPHY MEN AT MEETING

Interrupt Democratic League Chairman and Are Ejected—He Promises Up-State Aid.

Thomas Mott Osborne, State Chairman of the Democratic League, raised aloft last night the banner of State wide rebellion against Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy within party lines. Speaking as a "regular" in the party ranks to the Fusion Campaign Committee at its headquarters, Mr. Osborne declared that the up-State Democrats were ready to shake off the burden of Murphy and of Tammany Hall, and that they were merely awaiting the word that the voters in New York had done their duty by defeating the Murphy ticket in the present campaign to arise and make the victory complete.

The speech of Mr. Osborne was listened to with deep interest. He was wildly applauded when he finished by the threescore leaders in the Fusion campaign who listened to him. The speech bristled with denunciation of the Tammany boss, and what Mr. Osborne said got so much on the nerves of three of his auditors that they sought to break up the meeting and were forcibly ejected. One of the trio was said to be Mr. Murphy's nephew. All three declined to give their names when the newspaper men gathered about them in the corridor after they had been put out of the hall.

The interruptions began when Mr. Osborne said with reference to the attempt of the present Murphy-ruled Legislature to pass the proposed New York City Charter that it was a matter of concern to all the Democrats of the State, inasmuch as Tammany's effort to foist a Charter on New York City against the will of its people was a violation of the Democratic principle of home rule.

"Who passed the present charter?" yelled a man rising from a seat in the rear.

"I presume the Legislature," said Mr. Osborne. "The Legislature is the only body I know of that has a right to pass a charter."

"Then why can't this Legislature pass a charter?" urged the man, who was broad shouldered and went at the task of questioning with great pugnacity.

"It could," said the speaker, "but, unfortunately, it did not. The Legislature did not have any demand from the people of this city for a new charter, and that was why the charter was defeated and why it should have been defeated."

At this point another man got up, and, gesticulating wildly, asked Mr. Osborne: "Are you, the Democratic candidate for Mayor of Auburn, observing the principle of home rule when you come down here and tell the Democrats how they ought to vote?"

"I did not say that I came here for that purpose," retorted Mr. Osborne.

"No, but that's what you are doing, and I think you are here for that purpose," said the man.

At this point Robert Grier Monroe, Chairman of the Democratic League County Committee, who presided, got up and declared that no one had a right to interrupt the meeting, while all over the hall cries of "Put him out!" arose.

"I understand the regular Democrats were invited to attend this meeting!" yelled the interrupter. "I'm a regular Democrat, and I would like to know why the Democratic League is supporting the Fusion ticket."

At this point several men approached the disturbers and ejected them. In the hallway they were asked by the reporters to give their names but declined. One of them was just declining to state his name when the press representative of the Fusion forces, pointing a finger in his face, said:

"I can tell who you are. Three years ago I came near getting one of you indicted for forgery in the third degree in connection with a forged campaign letter that was sent out. I had you down before Assistant District Attorney Appleton. I think you will remember."

"Well, that wasn't me," said the man, and beat a hasty retreat.

Some of those who attended the meeting declared that the three men who attempted to break it up had been seen in the street together with a certain Tammany office holder who was a candidate on the Democratic ticket in 1909, and who urged them to go up and create a disturbance when Mr. Osborne spoke.

Mr. Osborne's Speech.

The meeting was held in the Assembly Hall at the Fusion headquarters. About threescore of men active in the Fusion campaign and members of the Campaign Committee attended. In the gathering there was a sprinkling of Republicans, and even some Hearst men, despite the fact that Mr. Osborne is the sworn enemy of the former Independence Leaguer and led a bolt from the Democratic ticket in 1906 when Mr. Hearst was the Democratic candidate for Governor. Mr. Osborne, who was presented to the audience by Col. Monroe, said in part:

"I speak primarily as the Chairman of the League, but I come here to give you its official commendation for the action of the New York members, a very public-spirited action and very laudable action, in nominating a ticket to oppose the nominations made by and in the interest of the Murphy ring. The members of the League all over the State wish you success in your fight to restore to the Democratic Party its chance of future success. And I speak as a regular Democrat.

"Largely by the action of our Democratic League, as I believe, we won a Democratic victory in this State last year. It was not an overwhelming victory by any manner of means, but it was a victory that would give a conscientious man pause, and it was a victory with possibilities for the future. Now these hopes have not materialized. We have found our platform promises violated. We have found the prestige of our party loyalty, if not temporarily destroyed, nearly so, and we may well ask as Democrats, and as regular Democrats it is our duty to ask, how this situation arises; who is to blame? And I think it may all be summed up in the two words which I have spoken, 'Murphy ring.'

"We have seen at the State Convention of the party at Rochester representatives of the party from every county in the State sit hour after hour waiting in ill-concealed impatience for the word to come from the Murphy ring as to who were to be the nominees of that convention. Could there be a more disgraceful exhibition?

"Think of the disgrace of the elected representatives of the Democratic Party in the Legislature sitting hour after hour killing time in the great hall of the State Capitol waiting to find out what they might be allowed to do in the important matter of balloting for United States Senator, while certain individuals were telephoning back and forth between Fourteenth Street and the Capitol at Albany! Yet that is what we Democrats saw up there in Albany last Winter.

"The whole representation of the party in the Legislature waited obediently, and waited to receive their orders. Is that

DYNAMITE ON TRACK; THREE TRAINS ESCAPE

CARRIED 1,000 PASSENGERS

No Explosion Because Dynamite Used Required a Fuse and Cap—No Clue to Perpetrator.

Special to The New York Times.

SANTA BARBARA, Oct. 27.—Three trains carrying probably 1,000 passengers passed over seventy-five sticks of dynamite last night and to-day near Ellwood Station, twelve miles north of here. Though there was enough of the explosive to wreck all the trains and kill the passengers, no damage was done.

Discovery of the dynamite was made this morning by Special Officer Macey, who had been sent on to Ellwood to investigate the shooting last night of a locomotive engineer while coming from San Luis Obispo to Santa Barbara on loose engine.

Sheriff Stewart of Santa Barbara County was notified and scoured the vicinity for the suspects. He declares he found no information throwing light on the case.

Southern Pacific Secret Service men in San Francisco and Los Angeles have been notified, and Sheriff Stewart is expecting the arrival of a number of them late to-night and to-morrow morning. An attempt will be made to obtain bloodhounds from San Francisco, and the territory for miles around Ellwood will be thoroughly examined.

Forty sticks of dynamite were found in the frog of one switch and thirty-five sticks in another. The only explanation offered for the failure of the explosion is that the dynamite was of the kind used for commercial purposes and was of insufficient strength to be discharged without a fuse and cap. The frogs are probably fifty yards apart.

Sheriff Stewart is confident the dynamite was placed by the same man who attempted to blow up El Capitan Bridge, fifteen miles further north, two weeks ago, a few hours prior to the crossing of President Taft's special train, and whose efforts were foiled by the timely discovery of a Mexican track walker.

DEAD OF CYANIDE IN HOTEL.

Chauffeur Found Note from Heinrich Meyer, Saying He Was Very Sick.

The chauffeur employed by Heinrich Meyer, a retired silk importer living at the Hotel Buckingham, Fiftieth Street and Fifth Avenue, took Mrs. Meyer, an invalid, to the office of Dr. Frederick Petersen, 535 Park Avenue, yesterday afternoon and then returned to report to Mr. Meyer before returning for Mrs. Meyer. He went to Mr. Meyer's apartments and found him unconscious on the floor of his bedroom. Near him was a glass, upset and empty, to the rim of which adhered a white substance.

Mr. Meyer was unconscious, but on the bureau was a note, left apparently for the chauffeur to find, and reading:

> Mrs. Meyer will be at Dr. Petersen's office at 5 o'clock. Telephone him that I am very sick and want him to come over with Mrs. Meyer without fail. Don't let the people in the hotel know about it.

The chauffeur grabbed up the note, notified Charles Monroe, Mr. Meyer's Secretary, that his employer was unconscious in his room, and then drove to Dr. Petersen's. He returned presently with Mrs. Meyer and Dr. Robert E. Pou of 20 West Fiftieth Street, Dr. Petersen being unable then to leave his office.

Mr. Meyer was 66 years old, and his wife, about two years younger, was prostrated when she learned that her husband was dead. She was the last who saw him alive, having taken leave of him when she left the hotel for her call about 4 o'clock. It was some three-quarters of an hour later that Mr. Monroe saw him unconscious.

Mr. Meyer was formerly a partner in Passavant & Co. of 82 Greene Street, but retired about ten years ago. Since then he has spent his time here and in California. He arrived at the Buckingham Sept. 16 from the Adirondacks, where he had a camp. It was said that he was accustomed to spend the warm months here and to go to California for the Winter. He owned the Adirondack camp, and had another one in California, whither he was to have gone shortly.

EIGHTH HOLY GHOSTER DIES.

Follower of Sandford Succumbs to Scurvy and Inanition.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 27.—The eighth death among the Holy Ghost and Us Society members who followed the Rev. Frank W. Sandford on the cruise from Africa in the yacht Coronet occurred today, when John Bolster passed away in the Marine Hospital. Bolster's death was due to scurvy and inanition.

Bolster had been a follower of Sandford for fifteen years, eleven of them as a missionary in Palestine and Egypt. His usual weight was 165 pounds, but when he reached the hospital he weighed 84 pounds. He was 42 years of age, and before he jointed the society, Bolster was a blacksmith in Easton. His wife, who assisted in his missionary work, is at the society's headquarters in Shiloh.

THE HAWKE EXCUSED FOR OLYMPIC CRASH

Naval Court Has Exonerated the British Cruiser's Officers from All Blame.

SUCTION CAUSED COLLISION

The Court Finds Also That the Olympic as the Overtaking Vessel Was Crowding the Other.

News emanating from a high official in the British Admiralty was received yesterday from London that the Naval Court of Inquiry, held at Portsmouth on board the guardship Duke of Wellington, on the collision between the White Star liner Olympic and the British cruiser Hawke on Sept. 20, completely exonerated the commander of the Hawke on the ground that the cruiser was passing up the Solent from the Needles to Portsmouth and had the right of way. The liner Olympic, coming down Southampton water and turning into the track of the Hawke, thus became the overtaking ship, in the opinion of the court, and forced the cruiser in the narrow fairway over to the Prince Consort buoy, outside which she dared not venture owing to the shoals.

It is understood that the diagrams produced in evidence at the inquiry showed that the Olympic bore down on the cruiser and that in passing her the liner increased her speed when her starboard quarter was abreast of the Hawke. It was argued that the suction drew the stem of the warship in under the Olympic's counter. It was stated that the Hawke did not change her course, and that no signals were given by the Olympic.

The international navigation laws stipulate that the overtaking ship must keep clear of the vessel she is overhauling, while the latter must keep her course. There is also a clause that in a case of emergency, to avert disaster the commander of each vessel is at liberty to take any precautions he may deem advisable to save his ship, with the proviso, however, that he must make his movements known by signals to the other vessel.

A British Naval Court of Inquiry is entirely private, and its results are not given officially to the English newspapers. It is understood that there will be no naval court-martial for the officers of the warship for their share in the disaster, and as there was no loss of life on either ship there will not be a Board of Trade inquiry unless the White Star Line makes a claim against the Admiralty for the damages suffered by the Olympic.

This apparently has not been determined. The loss caused by the collision will be a heavy one to the White Star Line, if it has to bear the burden, as, in addition to the repairing of the Olympic, which is expected to cost close to $500,000, the liner has missed three round trips in the busy season, which would mean a loss of at least $750,000. The Olympic, in spite of her enormous size and 21.5 knots speed, is a very economical ship, burning only 650 tons of coal, compared with the 1,100 daily consumed by the Mauretania and Lusitania.

The report of the finding of the Naval Court of Inquiry got out first at Portsmouth, then at Southampton, and finally reached London. It was discussed unofficially by Board of Trade officials at the principal British ports, who seemed to agree with the finding.

The Olympic sails from Southampton on her first trip after leaving the shipyard of Harland & Wolff, at Belfast, on Wednesday, Nov. 29.

CHARGES INSURANCE SWINDLE

Officials of National Protective Association Accused by Receiver.

WILLIAMSPORT, Penn., Oct. 27.—Alleging that he conspired with others to cheat and defraud the policy holders and members of the National Protective Association, a fraternal beneficial association, which has headquarters in this city, out of $18,000, Don M. Larrabee, receiver, to-day caused the arrest of Dr. Frank L. Mercer, a former Director and supreme medical examiner, who was held under $5,000 bail for a preliminary hearing. Warrants were sworn out for Albert L. Scholl, former President, and J. Harry Spencer, former Treasurer of the association, on the same charge. The three men live here.

The information sworn to by Receiver Larrabee includes M. F. Vanbuskirk of Rochester, N. Y., who is alleged to have received $5,000 of the $18,000 for the transfer of the National Protective Association's business to the American Patriots, with headquarters at Springfield, Ill.; T. H. Forrester of St. Louis, Mo., and Ira J. Bell and Edwin R. Smith of Springfield, Ill., both connected with the American Patriots, who are charged with conspiring with Forrester to fraudulently obtain title to and fraudulently convert to their own use the real estate of the National Protective Association, valued at $25,000.

Extradition, said Larrabee, will be asked for Vanbuskirk, Forrester, Bell, and Smith, that they may be brought here to face the charges.

BLEASE, ENEMY OF EDITORS.

Governor Would Whip or Kill Some if He Wasn't in Politics, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

SPARTANSBURG, S. C., Oct. 27.—"If I were not in politics I would whip the newspaper editor who lied about me. If I were not man enough to do it, I would get a double-barreled shotgun and kill him."

This was the statement made here last night by Gov. Coleman L. Blease in the presence of THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to a number of the Governor's friends who were complaining about alleged newspaper libels and the lack of satisfaction in legal proceedings against newspapers for libel.

"Pistol manufacturers make all men the same size," added Gov. Blease, who said that, although he had manged to keep out of fights, he was glad that he was able to handle a gun.

Gov. Blease had been denouncing A. E. Gonzales, editor of The Columbia State, a few minutes before, and his remark recalled the assassination of the editor's brother, N. G. Gonzales, by Lieut. Gov. James H. Tillman in 1903. The Governor said he wanted the good-will of every man except Mr. Gonzales, and his good-will he would spurn.

While making these remarks Gov. Blease was at a hotel where he had challenged C. H. Henry, editor of The Spartansburg Journal, to meet him and repeat a statement that Blease was "the villain in the comic opera of South Carolina politics." The editor refused to meet him.

KIEL, Germany, Oct. 27.—A small boat, which was being lowered over the side of the German cruiser Muenchen last night, capsized, throwing its occupants into the water.

A boatswain and six sailors were drowned.

ROB BANK IN DAYLIGHT.

Thieves Attack Oklahoma Town, Cut Wires, and Blow a Safe.

SHAWNEE, Okla., Oct. 27.—Robbers attacked the town of McComb, several miles from here, to-day, and cut the telephone and telegraph wires.

They blew open the safe in the town bank, and escaped with a large amount of money before the Sheriff could head them off.

A posse is on the robbers' trail.

HIS ASHES TO THE ELEMENTS

Funeral Forbidden—The Poor Are to Get the Money Instead.

MINEOLA, L. I., Oct. 27.—The will of Emilio M. Castillo, a well-to-do Spanish merchant, formerly of Wantagh, L. I., was filed for probate here to-day. It directs that his remains shall be incinerated and that the ashes shall be dispersed by the winds from the deck of a boat by his wife or by one whom she may designate. The testator also directs that his body shall not be taken to any church and that no funeral be held. He instructs his executrix to take the money that would be expended for what he terms "such vanities" and distribute it among the deserving poor. His widow gets a life interest in his estate. At her death it is to be divided among his relatives.

DOCTOR'S SON DIES OF OPIUM

Little Girl, Who Mistook Tablets for Candy, May Also Lose Her Life.

Sugar-coated opium tablets caused the death of one-year-old Charles Gardiner, son of Dr. Charles E. Gardiner, a physician, of 27 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, late Thursday night, and may also bring the same fate to the boy's sister, Geraldine, 3 years old.

The little girl found the tablets in the physician's medicine bag, which he left on a table. Climbing up on a chair, she pulled the doctor's instruments out of the bag and left them on the table. Then she spied the tablets. They looked like candy to her and instinctively she put one in her mouth. It tasted sweet and she offered another to her baby brother, who was sitting on the floor.

Dr. Gardiner returned to the room to get his bag and his attention was immediately drawn to the opium tablets lying on the floor near the table. Looking immediately to another corner of the room, he saw the little girl lying on the floor deathly ill and her baby brother on the sofa in a stupor.

The physician lost no time in using the stomach pump on both children and sent for two other physicians. All three worked hard for several hours to save the boy, but the little fellow died in spite of their efforts. They then labored all night to bring the girl out of danger and yesterday she was able to tell what happened. She told her father how she came to take the tablets, saying she thought they were candies.

ELUDES DETECTIVES TO WED.

Bride of Mining Man Hid in a Buffet Car as They Waited at the Station.

Special to The New York Times.

BOULDER HOT SPRINGS, Mon., Oct. 27.—Mrs. Mamie Cruse O'Brien, a daughter of Col. Thomas Cruse of Helena, banker, mining and oil promotor, who was divorced several months ago from Alvah De Coursey O'Brien of New York, left Helena with Harry Cotter, a well-known mining man of Butte, and they were married here this afternoon by Justice Smith.

Mrs. O'Brien has figured in the newspapers recently by disappearances from her home, alarming her father so he requested the police to look after her and a girl companion. They eluded the detectives to join Mr. Cotter. They hid in the kitchen of a buffet car on a Great Northern Railroad train while detectives were waiting for them at the station.

The Cruse-O'Brien wedding was one of the society events in Montana and followed a coming-out party in which Col. Cruse spent $30,000, and which was attended by persons from all over Montana. When O'Brien was divorced, non-support was one of numerous grounds. Mrs. O'Brien stayed for months following her divorce in Eastern sanitariums.

Mr. Cotter is a brother-in-law of Volney Williamson, a financier of Spokane. Before his advent into the mining world Mr. Cotter was a newspaper man in New York and other Eastern cities. He became identified with mining interests in Denver and later came west. A few years ago he was identified with mining properties in Butte and Spokane.

STEEL TRUST DENIES IT ALL

Hasn't Sought Monopoly and Hopes Shareholders Won't Suffer by Government Suit.

DIDN'T DECEIVE ROOSEVELT

Statement Issued After Close of Market, in Which Steel Shares Were Forced Down.

PLAN TO RUSH THE SUIT

Prompt Action Sought to Refute Charge That It Was Brought for Political Purposes.

The United States Steel Corporation expressed yesterday, in a statement issued by Judge Gary, its confidence in the outcome of the Government suit for its dissolution. The statement, which gives five reasons why the suit should be decided in favor of the corporation on its merits, was made after the close of the market and some hours after a long conference of steel officials at J. P. Morgan's office.

Judge Gary's formal expression of confidence in the corporation's postion under the law was really an amplification of the statement issued jointly by him and Mr. Morgan last month after a published interview with Attorney General Wickersham, which has been taken as confirmation of the belief that a Government suit was in preparation. Judge Gary's statement yesterday was:

> I think it would be improper for me at this time to make any comments concerning the suit which has been brought by the Government against the United States Steel Corporation, except to say I regret exceedingly that the Department of Justice felt called upon to institute proceedings. If any harm results it will fall upon the stockholders and employes, aggregating a very large number, and any loss to them must be deplored. It is a time for every one to keep cool, with a disposition to patiently await results, knowing that in the end justice will be done to all interests.
> I believe a disclosure of all the facts applicable to the allegations contained in the Government's bill of complaint as a ground for relief will show that the suit ought to be decided in favor of the corporation on the merits, and that the following facts will be established:
>
> 1. That in the organization of the United States Steel Corporation those in charge had no intention of creating a monopoly or of restraining trade.
>
> 2. That the corporation has never had or attempted to exercise a monopoly or to restrain trade.
>
> 3. That the conduct of the affairs of the corporation has clearly and positively negatived any effort or intention to violate any provision of the Sherman law.
>
> 4. That the existence of the corporation has been of benefit and not of injury to its employes, its customers, its competitors, and the general public.
>
> 5. That no misrepresentation was made to the President relative to the Tennessee Coal and Iron properties, and that the motive of those connected with the purchase was to prevent a threatened general financial disaster, which would have adversely affected the corporation as well as others.

Early Drop in Steel Shares.

Wall Street yesterday acted on the news of the suit by selling steel shares heavily, but the market as a whole showed much less excitement than on several days during the period of uncertainty and apprehension in the last days of September, though the extreme decline in Steel common, 8½ points at the low point, was greater than any since the panic of 1907. Traders had had plenty of time to take advantage of the London market after the news of the suit came out late Thursday afternoon, but the aggregate of London trading was less than on either the day following the Morgan-Gary statement of Sept. 26 or the previous day of excitement, Sept. 22, when dispatches from Washington had reported that the Steel Corporation contemplated voluntary dissolution.

Yesterday morning brokers crowded about the Steel post with a heavy overnight accumulation of selling orders, and sentiment as gauged by the London Curb showed declines at the extreme of about 4½ points in Steel common from Thursday's close here at 58½. There had been reports of a decline of 7 points in London, but there is no official record prices, and this extreme was not generally credited.

The great crush of brokers around the Steel post waiting for the gong at 10 o'clock made the price vary widely on different sides of the crowd. The first sale as it came over the ticker was bunched at 28,000 shares at prices ranging from 55 down to 53½. This at the lowest price meant an overnight break of 5 points, but the very next sale was at 54, and from that point there were quick fractional advances until the 54¾ was reached. The price stayed above 54 through a score or more of transactions, and then began to slide down again. Before noon it had touched 51, and immediately after 12 o'clock went down to 50. At this point the stock was 1⅝ points below the low record made on Sept. 26, following the Wickersham interview, and at the lowest point since the upturn began in 1909, which put the stock at 94⅞, the highest price in its history.

The preferred shares also suffered heavily, selling down to 103, a loss of 5⅝ points from the previous day's close.

Some Recovery in Afternoon.

During the afternoon there was a gradual recovery, which affected not only the steel shares, but the general market, which had sold off in sympathy with the heavy declines in the Steel stocks. Steel common recovered in the late afternoon to 52⅝ and closed at 52⅛, a net loss of 6⅜ points. The preferred closed at 103¾, a net loss of 4⅝.

There were many other substantial declines in the list, ranging up to more than 3 points in some of the more active issues, and a number of the speculative specialties had showed even greater declines during the day. Union Pacific, which had been off 3¼ points at its low price, closed with a net loss of 2⅛. Reading closed 2⅜ down after an extreme decline of 3 points. Southern Pacific, after an extreme decline of 1⅜, showed a net loss at the close of ⅞. There was, however, nothing like the general weakness which had been exhibited during the September slump.

There were eleven new low records made yesterday, but on Sept. 26, when Steel made its previous low record for this year, the market at the close showed no less than 72 stocks at new low records for 1911.

SUBPOENAS NOT SENT OUT.

Service of the Complaint Only Made Upon the Defendants.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 27.—The legal machinery set in motion here yesterday by the Government against the United States Steel Corporation has laid idle to-day awaiting the word from Washington. Three score subpoenas, issued early in the day to be served upon defendants scattered all the way from the seaboard to St. Paul, had not reached the office of the United States Marshal, where deputies were awaiting to depart with them at the hour of closing this afternoon. Word also went out this afternoon from the office of the Clerk of the United States Circuit Court that they would not be released to-morrow without orders.

There is little worry, however, over the delay. Ordinarily subpoenas are handed to the Marshal for service as fast as issued. Henry D. Oliphant, Clerk of the Circuit Court, who was awaiting all afternoon a telegram from the Department of Justice releasing the papers, declared that there was no need for haste as the Government need not serve the subpoenas to compel the appearance of the defendants on Dec. 4 until Nov. 14. Mr. Oliphant added that he did not know the cause for delay.

The acting United States Marshal with two deputies waited beyond his customary hour for departure this afternoon for the subpoenas. Fourteen of the defendant corporations have offices or agents within the State, and these will be served by the Marshal of this district. Other subpoenas for all individual defendants and the remaining corporations beyond the State line will be sent to the proper Marshals for service.

District Attorney Vreeland was not especially optimistic to-day regarding the prospects for a speedy decision of the suit. Notwithstanding the order expediting the Powder Trust case, he pointed out, that decision was not spread on the records until nearly four years after the filing of the original petition. There were only forty-three defendants in the Powder Trust suit. In the present action there are sixty-one, and the amount of testimony, he pointed out, would doubtless be greater than in the powder case.

John D. Rockefeller was about the only one of the New York defendants in the Steel suit now in town not served with the papers in the action at the end of the business day yesterday. Judge Elbert H. Gary and J. P. Morgan had been reached by the United States officers on Thursday night.

United States Marshal Henkel, who took charge of the services which were not subpoenas, as had been stated, but of copies of the complaint which had been sent out by the court as a matter of courtesy, found Judge Gary at the Waldorf and J. Pierpont Morgan in his library. He came into the financial district yesterday with papers for D. G. Reid, whom he found at his office, 115 Broadway; John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whose offices are at 26 Broadway, and Charles Steele, partner of J. P. Morgan, whom he found at the Morgan offices. Andrew Carnegie was served at his Fifth Avenue residence. Charles M. Schwab, who is on his way back from China; George W. Perkins, and others of the defendants who are out of town, will be served upon their return.

John D. Rockefeller will be served this morning at his Pocantico Hills residence.

FEAR EFFECT ON BUSINESS.

Business Men and Steel Operators Discuss the Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Oct. 27.—Judge James H. Reed, Chairman of the Carnegie Steel Company Board, said to-day:

"Don't sell Steel stock. I would hate to see holders of United States Steel stock in this city stampeded just because the Government has sued the Steel Corporation. It is one thing to file a suit and another to win it.

"In my opinion, the corporation has always honestly tried to obey the law and conduct its business along lines fair to every one, and I firmly believe that it will win the case in the end.

"Stockholders may rest assured that the corporation will see this matter to a finish, and that the case will be fought out to the Supreme Court if necessary."

B. E. V. Luty, an authority on iron and steel affairs, said to-day:

"For months past buying of steel products has been confined to supplying the absolute and pressing requirements of the 90,000,000 people in this country, there being no forward buying and no buying for stocks. This has been the actual market condition, the actual ultimate needs of the people having backed up to the actual mill production.

"The present news is not necessarily disturbing, especially for Pittsburgh, for the plants are here and are destined to be run, wages being distributed and spent in Pittsburg as formerly. Prices of steel products are not likely to be seriously affected. We have had an absolutely open market on steel products, outside of standard section rails, for months past."

The Industrial World, considered locally to be the mouthpiece of the Carnegie Steel Company, says:

"The dissolution of the Steel Corporation will be a physical impossibility. Plants have been abandoned and consolidated; inter-company exchanges of plants effected; entire new plants have been built in which equipment from old plants is utilized and entire new subsidiaries have been created. The identity of nearly all the original plants has been completely effaced.

"So thoroughly has this assimilation progressed that any restoration of the plants to their original aspect is beyond the bounds of reason. Some of the action of the Steel Corporation may have been ill-advised. These could have been corrected without taking the extreme step. The mooted monopoly of ores is the Government's best contention in its allegations that the Steel Corporation dominates industry to an unhealthy extent. The Steel Trust, however, already has exhibited its docility in the ore matter.

"The severest blow in event of a dissolution would fall on Gary, which is being built by a new subsidiary created by the Steel Corporation and which is still far from a finished property, and Duluth, where a newly created subsidiary, the Minnesota Steel Company, has begun the erection of a separate plant. Work at these two plants might stop. There is no construction work in the immediate Pittsburgh district to be interfered with in this manner."

GARY, Ind., Oct. 27.—The Steel suit has created alarm here among business men, especially merchants and real estate dealers who have large investments that depend upon the continued prosperity of this city. When the Steel Corporation came here and changed in a short time a lot of worthless sand dunes into a city with 10,000 people men of capital came here and entered every branch of business, many of them investing in lots and building handsome houses and residences. The city has now grown to a population of 20,000, and if the Steel Trust should close its mills many of the investors would be ruined. The trust has been very generous with the people, subscribing liberally to funds for public libraries, a Y. M. C. A. home, church edifices, and public improvements, and while the people are enjoying these advantages they are loath to believe that there is anything very wrong in the affairs of the corporation.

Many of them are pessimistic, and even now the assertion is made that the suit is affecting values of real estate. Others do not think the suit will materially hurt Gary, but in all classes there is uneasiness as to the result if the trust is forced to dissolve. A few days ago it was reported that the corporation had purchased another tract of land and would lay out a residence section, and there is fear that this will now be abandoned.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 27.—Bank officers and capitalists view with alarm the suit of the Government against the Steel Corporation. They feel that this suit will cause a disturbed state of affairs for some time, and will result in loss of trade and bad market conditions.

Breckenridge Jones, President of the Mississippi Valley Trust Company, said to-day: "I consider the present suit against the Steel Corporation as extremely unwise. In the first place, all suits of this character create a spirit of unrest, which is sure to harm all lines of business. The Government is getting too many irons in the fire at once. There is the Standard Oil suit and the tobacco case, which have not been entirely settled. Not being a politican, I can't say whether this last suit has any political significance."

B. F. Edwards, President of the National Bank of Commerce, one of the largest in the West, said: "This suit is sure to have a far-reaching effect on trade and commerce, but as to whether it will do harm or good is something that can't be decided at the present time. I am a banker and not a stock broker, but any disturbance in the stock market is sure to influence banking."

W. K. Bixby, capitalist, said: "This suit is bound to curtail the export steel trade. In fact, it will hurt the export trade more than the home trade. It will hurt all lines of trade for the time being, but I hope will not have any permanent harmful effect."

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 27.—Cincinnati holders of United States Steel common stock suffered a "paper" loss of $318,750 to-day as the result of the hammering of the stock on the New York Stock Exchange because of the Government suit. A "paper loss" is the difference that holders could have got for their stock at the close of Thursday's market and what they would have realized at the close of to-day's markets.

There are 50,000 shares of Steel common held in Cincinnati, brokers estimate. The market closed at $58.50 a share yesterday. At one time during the day the price touched 50, at which figure Cincinnati losses were $425,000.

Interest increased as it became apparent that the whole speculative list, including both industrial and railroad shares, was being affected, and that most of the popular stocks were seeking a lower level. All local brokerage house trading rooms were crowded. The course of the market was more closely watched than at any time for many months. Many disposed of their stock.

Four separate offices maintained in Cincinnati by four subsidiary companies to the Steel Trust are made co-defendants in the suit for dissolution filed by the Government. They are the Carnegie Steel Company, the American Steel Wire Company, the American Sheet Tin Plate Company, and the American Bridge Company.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 27.—Defending the Steel Trust to-day, Managers of the independent Cleveland steel companies characterized the suit to dissolve the big corporation and its constituents as a freak of government. Business, it is maintained, will be thrown into chaos for the next two or three years. More open competition than exists at present can have only one result, according to Cleveland men. Labor will have to bear the brunt of an attack on prices. A cut in wages, now high, considering conditions, is inevitable, they say.

Independents see only one place where a dissolution will help them. That will be in the price of ore. A further decrease in the price of the ore itself and in the shipping rates is possible. The next reduction must be made in the payroll.

Millions of dollars are invested in independent steel plants and jobbing houses in Cleveland. Over a dozen large plants operate here.

I. B. Bassett, a former President of the Bassett-Presley Company, which was bought out by the United States Steel Corporation a few months ago, was outspoken in praise of the steel company.

"In my dealings with the steel company during the years I competed with them I always found them square and honest," he said. "They gave us every opportunity to make money and always fought us fairly. In the negotiations that preceded the sale of the plant they showed us every consideration."

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 27.—"I could not with propriety and under the circumstances discuss the situation," is the only comment ex-Attorney General Bonaparte will make upon any phase of the proceedings against the Steel Corporation.

CHICAGO MARKETS AFFECTED.

Wall Street Sentiment Reflected in Western Share Dealings.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Sentiment in Wall Street was reflected to-day on the Chicago Stock Exchange, industrial shares displaying pronounced weakness due to offerings which frightened investors threw upon the market. International Harvester tumbled 3½ points, Sears-Roebuck common 2½, and Can preferred 2. There was urgent selling of Swift's from 99½ off to 98½.

Heavy stop orders were executed when December wheat got below the dollar level, many longs refusing to let profits run into losses. Support from Bull leaders was necessary to prevent the market whirling into demoralization. Afterward the selling took a fresh impetus, with the result that the December option slid under 99, not hesitating an instant. Buyers were few and scattered.

Dollar wheat, the farmers' ideal, suffered a fracture, and for the first time in quite a while the December option went down into the nineties, selling off a cent and a half a bushel to 99¼. The market was chiefly affected by the weakness in the stock market resulting from the Government attack on the Steel Corporation.

A large quantity of wheat owned in the East came on the market and was not readily digested. Local speculators took advantage of the situation and hammered the price, pulling down the December option to 98¼, a loss of 2⅜@2½ compared with last night. The close was weak at the lowest point of the day.

DICKINSON SEES TAFT.

Man Who Prepared Steel Suit Meets President in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Jacob M. Dickinson, former Secretary of War, who has been retained by the Government as special counsel to prosecute the United States Steel Corporation, arrived in Chicago this morning from his home at Nashville, Tenn., and to-night held a conference with President Taft. The President arrived in the city at 8 o'clock, and Mr. Dickinson was one of the first to greet him. Details of the conference were not made public, though it is considered certain the Steel Trust suit was discussed.

A short time before he met the President Mr. Dickinson said that speed would be the slogan of the Federal Government in its action against the Steel Trust. When asked if criminal proceedings would be brought, he said: "There is nothing I will say at this time regarding criminal prosecution of any one."

"There will be absolutely no delay in pressing this suit," said Mr. Dickinson. "Of course, some little time will be taken up in the necessary preliminaries of a big case such as this. There will be technical papers filed, and the steel people will be thoroughly within their rights to do all that sort of thing they think necessary. But as soon as the perfunctory preliminaries are out of the way, Attorney General Wickersham will file a certificate of acceleration, which, of course, will advance the hearing of the suit, and hasten the climax. I say positively and emphatically there will be no delays."

Mr. Dickinson, in the afternoon, asserted positively that he had not come to Chicago to confer with the President, and the members of his Cabinet who are in the city with regard to the steel suit.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "I came here for the double purpose of meeting Mrs. Dickinson, who has been out West visiting, and to attend the dedication of the new naval training school on the north shore."

He aded that his connection with the preparation of the steel suit dated back about two months, and a smile spread over his features when mention was made of the success with which the Government had been able to keep secret its plans.

"It's a poor lawyer who reveals his intentions before the filing of a suit," he said.

"NOT A WORD."—ROOSEVELT.

Ex-President Has Nothing to Add to His Previous Testimony on Steel.

Theodore Roosevelt declined yesterday to make any comment on the Steel Trust suit. He greeted interviewers smilingly, but to all their questions said repeatedly with his usual emphasis, "I have nothing to say."

"Have you read the petition?" the Colonel was asked.

"It was read to me."

"It sets forth that you were deceived with regard to the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company deal."

"You can't charm me into saying one word," said Col. Roosevelt.

"Well, aside from the Tennessee Coal and Iron matter, what do you think of the expediency and common sense of the suit as a whole?"

"Not one word."

"Will you issue a statement after you digest the petition?"

Col. Roosevelt smiled and said: "It might interest you to look up my testimony before the Congress committee in August. To what I said then I have nothing to add."

Attempts made to see Andrew Carnegie were unsuccessful. His secretary said, however, that Mr. Carnegie had prepared no statement.

PLANNING TO RUSH THE STEEL SUIT

Attorney General Hopes to Complete It in Much Quicker Time Than Oil Case Took.

NO CRIMINAL CHARGES

That Phase of the Case Not Taken Up—Talk of Suit as a Political Move.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Attorney General Wickersham is determined to use every legal device for hastening action in the suit brought yesterday against the Steel Trust. He expressed himself to-day as of the opinion that the pending action would take much less time than did the suits against the Tobacco Trust and the Standard Oil Company. In order to gain for the suit precedence over other cases and to hasten as much as possible the taking of testimony, the Attorney General has caused to be filed in connection with the complaint a "certificate of public importance." The certificate of public importance is as follows:

> I hereby certify that above-entitled cause now impending in said court is a suit in equity brought by the United States against the United States Steel Corporation and other defendants named therein under the act of Congress entitled an Act to Protect Trade and Commerce Against Unlawful Restraint and Monopoly, approved July 2, 1890, and that said suit is in my opinion a case of general public importance.
> I therefore request that, complying with the provisions of the act of Congress entitled an Act to Expedite the Hearings and the Termination of Suits in Equity Pending or Hereafter Brought Under the Act of July 2, 1890, approved Feb. 11, 1903, you will file this certificate among the records of the above-entitled cause, and immediately furnish a copy thereof to each of the Circuit Judges of the Third Circuit, to the end that said case shall be given precedence over other cases in the said court and be assigned for hearing at the earliest practicable date before not less than three of the Circuit Judges of said circuit, as is provided by the act of Feb. 11, 1903.

The defendants are to appear in the United States Circuit Court at Trenton on Dec. 4 to plead and then will have until January to file their answer to the complaint, and in that interval they may, of course, try expedients like demurrers in their efforts to gain time. The Government is of the opinion that in spite of such tactics, if they are resorted to, the case will be pushed forward with unprecedented rapidity.

The procedure on Jan. 2 will be for Judges Gray, Lanning, and Buffington to appoint a master to hear testimony. The master so appointed will take evidence in various parts of the country. It required a year and a half to take the testimony in the Standard Oil case. That was considered fairly quick time. The Government hopes to do as well with the Steel Corporation.

When the taking of testimony is finished and both sides have been heard the Circuit Court will decide the issue. Whichever side loses will appeal, and by the operation of the expediting act, the case will jump to the Supreme Court, where the fate of the corporation will be decided.

Department of Justice officials do not feel that the Supreme Court decisions in the Oil and Tobacco cases will decide the Steel case. Attorney General Wickersham to-day declared he is convinced more than ever that each case must be settled upon its own merits, and that the Oil and Tobacco cases cannot fairly be called "models" for solving the trust question.

Mr. Wickersham was asked to-day if he hoped to see business returned to the conditions of competition which prevailed before the first trusts came into existence.

"I do not," he replied. "I cannot, because I do not think it possible. We cannot return to our swaddling clothes. We must readjust to a new set of conditions entirely."

It was necessary, he said, for a way to be found by which big business could continue to do business within the law. In his opinion such a way could be found.

"If it cannot be found," said the Attorney General, "the question will come up for changing the present law, amending it or adding to it."

Mr. Wickersham emphatically denied that there was any conflict either in sentiment or in purpose between his department and the Stanley Investigating Committee of the House. His department, he said, had simply waited till it thought it had a prima facie case, and then filed complaint. The Stanley Committee, he said, had received very frank testimony from important men in the Steel Trust, and he did not see why the committee should not continue to receive it.

The committee, he said, was looking into the trust question from a legislative point of view, and when the investigation was completed would be ready to report on the advisability of amending, perfecting, or adding to the law under which the pending suit has been brought. Witnesses before the committee could now plead their privilege against testifying to incriminate themselves, but they could have entered that plea all along. There is no more reason for their doing it now than there was before, especially as no criminal charges are made in the Government's complaint.

As to the ultimate criminal prosecution of the individual defendants, Mr. Wickersham would only say that no steps had been taken in that direction yet. He refused to commit himself as to the future, but it is considered significant in this connection that in the complaint where the presence under subpoena of the individual defendants is requested testimony by them under oath is expressly waived. This seems to indicate the Government's determination, for the present at least, to leave the individuals under the shadow of personal criminal prosecution.

"I have no basis," he said, "for the expectation that the trust will voluntarily dispossess itself of the holdings or plants, that in our opinion bring it into conflict with the law. But hope springs eternal in the human breast."

Ex-Secretary of War Dickinson will have complete charge of the case, said Mr. Wickersham. He thought it would be three or four months before the point is reached where a Commissioner is appointed to take testimony.

Some comment was occasioned by the fact that the name of Solicitor General Frederick W. Lehmann does not appear on the complaint. Rumor had it that Mr. Lehmann had not bene identified in the Government's bill because he was being considered for the vacancy in the Supreme Court made by the death of Justice Harlan, and that as a Justice he might be called upon to sit in the case.

"Rubbish," was Mr. Lehmann's only comment when he heard this rumor.

It was pointed out that the office of Solicitor General is so heavily taxed with Supreme Court cases that it was impossible for Mr. Lehmann to take charge of the case, though he will be associated with it. It was declared to-day that Jacob M. Dickinson, former Secretary of War, who has been engaged as the Government's special counsel, would occupy the same position in the case against the Steel Corporation that Frank B. Kellogg did in the Standard Oil case.

Official Washington is still wondering how the preparations for the filing of the bill were conducted with such successful secrecy. The bill was not set in type in the Government printing office, as such petitions usually are, but was printed by the private concern that prints the decisions of the Supreme Court.

The slump in the market this morning affords one striking reason for the Government's desire to end as quickly as possible the feeling of uncertainty that big business in certain quarters purports to feel. From a political viewpoint the reasons are equally pressing. The insurgents here at the Progressive Republic Headquarters last night expressed the opinion that the suit was brought for political purposes to aid Mr. Taft in his renomination, and after the campaign next Summer it would be allowed to languish.

While this is called bad reasoning in view of the decision already obtained by the Government against the other two big trusts, yet in order to offset the spreading of such a report, real action is demanded. The mere filing of the complaint will furnish Mr. Taft's friends some material, and if the case is in active course when the campaign is on that fact will largely force the insurgents to talk of other matters.

Representative Burleson of Texas to-night gave out the following interview:

"I can hardly believe the charge that this suit has not been instituted in good faith, that it has been brought only to increase the President's chances of re-election, and that, having served its purpose, it will after the election be dismissed. It was to be expected, however, considering the long delay on the part of the Department of Justice in bringing suit, that many would suspect the sincerity of the Administration. However, the Administration can silence these criticisms by taking an action which would conclusively remove all doubt as to its sincere desire to enforce our anti-trust law.

"If the Attorney General will take steps to institute criminal action against J. P. Morgan, E. H. Gary, and H. C. Frick, the arch-principals in this violation of the anti-trust law, then the public will know that there is an honest effort to uphold our laws, which should be enforced against the high and mighty as well as against the poor and lowly. The department is pushing a criminal prosecution against the packers, and demanded a jail sentence against the Window Glass Trust officials. Why, then, if it is sincere in this instance, should it not resort to that remedy that would put an end effectually to such flagrant violations of the anti-trust laws as the Government's bill charges against the Steel Trust officials individually?

"Inasmuch as some of the acts of the conspiracy to violate the law were committed here in Washington when Messrs. Gary and Frick hoodwinked President Roosevelt, I am inclined to believe that the court here would have jurisdiction in that offense. If the President or Attorney General Wickersham will direct that the law be enforced in all its parts, and these criminals brought to book, they can easily silence those who are inclined to impugn their good faith."

LONDON MARKET DECLINE.

Steel Shares Drop Off 5 3-8 Points at the Opening.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Dealers in the American market assembled earlier than usual this morning. Steel shares opened nominally at 59, but soon fell to 57, then to 54⅝, or 5⅜ points below parity.

The amount of stock changing hands, however, was small compared with the big decline, and there was not much excitement. Erratic movements were followed by bear covering and lifted the quotation to 56, at which figure buyers were found.

At 11 o'clock, however, the market was very unsettled and continental advices were eagerly awaited. No other dealings in American rails had yet occurred. The holders here were rather frightened at the Government's action, but the principal offerings appear to have been cabled over-night from Wall Street.

American rails later dropped from ¼ to 1¼ in sympathy with the Steel stocks, but the market hardened fractionally around noon when, in the absence of further selling, Steels were quoted at 56¼, or 1⅝ above the lowest.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—News that the United States Government has begun its suit for the dissolution of the United States Steel Corporation created little surprise here. The newspapers comment briefly on the prosecution, pointing out that the immediate effect of the Government's action already has been discounted.

Some skepticism is expressed as to whether in the long run the finance world will be seriously discommoded by the anti-trust suits.

The Berliner Tageblatt considers that the American Government has a good case, the history of the company showing that it aimed at monopoly.

With the exception of American securities the Boerse was not not affected to-day. Other securities closed strong and higher.

THE JUDGES OF THE CASE.

Made Important Rulings in the Powder Trust Litigation.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 27.—United States Circuit Judges Lanning, Gray, and Buffington, who decided the Powder Trust case, will sit in the Steel Corporation proceedings. In the Powder Trust action Judge Lanning outlined clearly the standing in court of all combinations proved to be in restraint of trade.

"It matters not whether the combination be in the form of a trust or otherwise," the court held in the Powder case, "whether it be in the form of a trade association or a corporation; if it arbitrarily uses its powers to force other competitors, or to coerce them, into a sale or union with the combination, it puts a restraint on inter-State commerce and in a senso violates the Anti-Trust act. Our decree must forestall future violations and compol the dissolving of the combination now existing."

William M. Lanning will be 63 years old on the day set for filing answer to the Government suit, Jan. 2 next. During his thirty-one years in public life he has served in half a score of legal offices, ranging all the way from Justice of the Peace to his present life position on the United States Circuit Court bench. He has held this office since May 18, 1909.

Judge George Gray was born in New Castle, Del., May 4, 1840. He was graduated from Princeton College in 1859, and afterward studied law at Harvard University. From 1879 to 1885 he was Attorney General of Delaware, and while in office obtained the conviction and fine of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for violation of its charter obligation. This was the first successful suit of the kind, and was used, it is said, as a precedent by Judge Landis of Chicago in his decision against the Standard Oil Company. Judge Gray served two terms as United States Senator from Delaware. He was a member of the Senate when the Sherman anti-trust law, under which the Steel Trust is being prosecuted, was passed. Although a Democrat, Judge Gray was appointed by President McKinley in 1898 a member of the Joint High Commission to settle long-standing matters of dispute between the United States and Canada. In 1899 Judge Gray was appointed United States Circuit Judge, and in 1900 he was made a member of the International Permanent Court of Arbitration under The Hague convention. In 1902 he was appointed by President Roosevelt Chairman of the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission, which brought about a settlement of the great mine strike in the hard coal regions of Pennsylvania. Judge Gray was chosen arbitrator of the Alabama Coal Strike Commisison in August, 1903, and he was also arbitrator in a dispute between the Illinois mine operators and their workmen. In both of these instances his decisions were accepted by both sides and resulted in sending the men back to work. During his judicial career Judge Gray has figured in many important cases, among them being the commodities clause suit against the anthracite railroads, the so-called Anthracite Coal Trust suit, and the alleged Powder Trust suit.

Judge Joseph Buffington of Pittsburgh was promoted from District Court Judge to the Circuit Court bench in 1906, and during his services on the circuit has participated in the disposal of many big cases. He handed down a dissenting opinion in the commodities clause case, holding the clause to be constitutional. Judges Gray and Dallas held that the clause was invalid and decided in favor of the railroads which had been accused by the Government of violating the law.

Judge Buffington was born in Kittanning, Penn., and is 56 years old. He was graduated from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. He was admitted to the bar in Kittanning, and in 1892 President Harrison appointed him District Court Judge of Western Pennsylvania. Since then he has confined himself almost entirely to his judicial duties.

TRUST'S IMMENSE DEALINGS.

Gross Receipts in a Year Exceed Those of the Government.

Although the United States Steel Corporation has been popularly known since its organization as the biggest corporation in the world, it is doubtful if the immensity of its operations in sheer weight of monetary values has been generally understood. Gross receipts have ranged as high as $757,014,767 in a single year, and from the date of organization on April 1, 1901, to the close of the last fiscal year, Dec. 31, 1910, have reached the staggering aggregate of $5,813,243,724.

The United States Government's total receipts from customs and all other sources of revenue in the fiscal year ended June 30 last was only $700,109,906, a total which the Steel Corporation not only exceeded in its banner year, 1907, but again in the year ended Dec. 31 last, when the gross earnings were $703,961,424. The next largest corporate earnings in this country, if not in the world, are those of the big railroad system, and these are only a fraction of the Steel Corporation's showing. The Pennsylvania system, for instance, which comes next in line, showed gross earnings last year of $346,215,000. The Southern Pacific, which is next, showed for the fiscal year ended June 30 last gross earnings of $132,620,000, and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé, $107,565,000. All three of these aggregated only $586,400,000.

The Steel Corporation's manufacturing expenses have ranged from about 73 per cent. of gross to 79.5 per cent. of gross, the average since organization being 75.4 per cent., which is a little more than the percentage operating expenses, including taxes, bear to gross earnings on most of the railroads.

The corporation has distributed in interest on its own bonds in the hands of the public $208,792,279 since its organization and has earned, after the payment of all charges and depreciation allowances, amounting in themselves to over $205,000,000, $720,080,507 available for dividends. Dividends on the common stock, which paid nothing at all during 1904 and 1905, have aggregated $124,511,901. The preferred payments have been $269,414,983 in the decade up to the close of 1910, and the aggregate paid to all stockholders has therefore footed up to $393,926,884.

Notwithstanding these large disbursements to stockholders, an almost equal amount has been returned into the property in the shape of appropriations for new construction, &c., the total spent out of earnings for these purposes aggregating $209,691,561 at the end of 1910, and at the close of the year there still remained a net surplus of $164,143,166, against the $77,874,598 on hand at the close of the first complete year of operation, 1902.

Perhaps a more impressive measure of the corporation's position in the industrial world is the fact that its output of steel is larger than that produced in all the plants of Germany, more than twice as large as Great Britain's, and more than three times as large as that of France. The latest statistics available for foreign countries are those of 1909. In that year, one of low pressure production in this country, the United States Steel Corporation turned out 13,355,189 tons of steel ingots, against German's 11,856,000 tons, the United Kingdom's 5,931,000 tons, and France's 3,020,000 tons. Last year the corporation's output was 14,179,369 tons.

PETITIONS IN TOBACCO CASE.

State Attorney General Asks to be Heard—Preferred Stock Represented.

Deputy State Attorneys General William A. McQuaid and Robert P. Beyer drew up yesterday a petition, which will be filed in the Circuit Court to-day in behalf of Attorney General Carmody, asking leave to take part in the discussion of the reorganization plan of the American Tobacco Company. If the petition is granted Mr. Carmody will appear in person at the hearing to begin next Monday in opposition to the plan.

Permission to take part was granted yesterday to the committees representing a majority of the preferred stock, 4 per cent. bonds and 6 per cent. bonds, respectively.

The Guaranty Trust Company filed a petition yesterday asking that the court shall not give its approval to any plan that does not fully protect the rights and interests of the bondholders under the trust indentures for which it is trustee as successor to the Morton Trust Company.

The objections of the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association, of which John W. Yerkes is counsel, will be filed to-day.

MEXICAN MINISTERS QUIT.

Three Resign Owing to Zapata's Rebellion—Madero Blames Administration.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27.—Three Ministers were eliminated from the De la Barra Cabinet to-day by the acceptance of their resignations by the Chief Executive. Their dismissal is owing to the futile campaign against Emiliano Zapata. Coincidently, Francisco I. Madero, President-elect, from Parras, Coahuila, hurled charges of bad faith on the part of the present administration toward the Morelos rebel.

The Ministers who resigned are: Sub-Secretary of War Gen. José Gonzales Salas, who has been filling the post of Minister; Minister of the Interior Alberto Garcia Granados, and Dr. Francisco Vasquez Gomez, Minister of Public Instruction, and erstwhile candidate for Vice President.

The resignations are popularly believed to be traceable to the disgraceful state of affairs in Morelos, Oaxaca, and Guerrero, following as they do upon the heels of Wednesday's interpellation of the War and Interior Ministers by the Chamber of Deputies. In interviews both Ministers made innuendos that the campaign in Morelos was not being conducted fairly, and that the Chief Executive was largely responsible for its failure.

Madero's charges were more direct. In a long telegram to The Nueva Era, his personal organ, he declared that his failure several weeks ago to bring about the submission of Zapata and his men was due to violation by the administration of pledges which he said he had been authorized to make in consideration of such submission.

TRACE STOCK FRAUDS HERE.

Birmingham Police Seek American Member of Alleged Bucket Shop Firm.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Oct. 27.—Herbert Jones and J. J. Lovesay, the alleged principals of the firm of Morton Harris & Co., were remanded for trial, after a hearing in police court to-day, charged with illegally obtaining $50 from a naval officer through bucketshop operations.

The Public Prosecutor made serious accusations against the firm, which is said to have New York connections. He stated that another member of the company was now on his way to England from America and that the police were waiting to arrest him.

CANADIAN PREMIER HERE.

He Notes That Canada Has No Steel Trust—May Be Sir Robert Soon.

The Hon. Robert L. Borden, M. P., Premier of Canada, arrived here yesterday and is staying till to-morrow night at the Hotel Belmont. He has been spending a few days with Mrs. Borden at Atlantic City, resting after the strenuous life he has been living since the end of July, first in the general election and the fight against reciprocity and then in the formation of a Cabinet.

Mr. Borden, as he was on a holiday, did not care to discuss public affairs in any way, but he had this to say on the recent elections in the Dominion:

"The result of the elections was in no way induced by any spirit of unfriendliness to the United States, for no such spirit exists. The proposals of the late Government constituted a reversal of the policy which Canada has pursued for thirty years, and her people were not prepared to execute any such change."

When Mr. Borden was asked his opinion of the action of the United States Government against the Steel Corporation, he declined to comment on it on the ground that the Steel Trust has no extensive operations in the Dominion. There is no steel corporation, he said, which controls the trade of the Dominion to any extent; so Canadians are not vitally interested in the matter.

A telegram received by Mr. Borden last night announced that he and eleven of his colleagues in the Canadian Cabinet have been re-elected to the Dominion Parliament, the Canadian Constitution requiring any member of the House of Commons to stand before his constituents again on taking office from the Crown. There are still three Ministers to be re-elected, but no opposition is expected to them, and the only reason why they were not returned yesterday was that their constituencies are so far from Ottawa that it was convenient to postpone the by-elections for a few days. They will, however, be in their places when the new Parliament meets on Nov. 15. Only a short session is expected, to vote the supplies which the late Parliament shelved in the hope of passing reciprocity.

It is understood that before long Mr. Borden will become Sir Robert Borden. The Duke of Connaught, the new Canadian Governor General, is believed to have brought with him an offer of a nighthood, and it will be gazetted among the New Year's Day honors, if not before.

LOSES SOFT COAL SUIT.

Folk Who Move Near Manufacturing Plants Must Stand It, Court Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Wealthy residents of New Rochelle, who sought to force the Westchester Lighting Company to abate a soft coal smoke nuisance, caused by the lighting plant's big smokestacks, have lost their suit. Justice Tompkins of the Supreme Court at White Plains to-day decided against the plaintiff, Mrs. Emma J. Sjistrom of Sutton Park, New Rochelle. She asserted that the smoke ruined her furniture, discolored paint on houses, and that garrets were filled with soot. Justice Tompkins says that if a person moves into a district where a manufacturing plant is located he cannot bring action against the plant to condemn it as a nuisance.

Democratic Party government? Is that what you all understand to be democracy? Can any success be attached to the party that has such things within it? Nay, it is doomed to defeat if this kind of thing is continued when they are in office."

Mr. Osborne then denounced the Levy law and the attempt to pass the charter, and went on:

"What can be said of those Democratic legislators who found in the Direct Nominations bill passed a realization of the party promises made in Rochester? It is an impossibility to try to say or assert that such a law as that is carrying out the party pledges or the party platform; it is nothing but a shadow of direct nominations."

It was at this point the interrogations occurred. After the disturber had been ejected Mr. Osborne read the letter sent to a member of the Democratic State Committee, to show that the mighty organization was seeking to control even appointments to the National Guard. The letter follows:

> Dear Sir: I beg to inform you that Col. Joseph G. Story, Assistant Adjutant General of the State, will be retired on Dec. 31. Major John P. Treanor, Inspector General, Third Brigade, National Guard, is a candidate for this position. Major Treanor has the perfect indorsement of the Democratic organization of this county, and is also recommended by the Major General commanding the division, National Guard; the Honorable Assistant Secretary of War; Gen. George Moore Smith, First Brigade; Gen. John G. Eddy, Second Brigade; Gen. James W. Lester, Third Brigade, National Guard, and also by Gen. Austin, Chief of Coast Artillery Corps, and over one hundred prominent officers and citizens.
> Major Treanor seeks your indorsement as a member of the Democratic State Committee, addressed to the Hon. Charles F. Murphy, New York, N. Y. I hereby approve the above application of Major Treanor. Very respectfully.

"Now, has it come to pass that Mr. Charles F. Murphy is not only going to practically dominate the prison system in this State—which I have reason to believe is the case—but that he is also going to appoint the officers of the National Guard throughout the entire service of the State? Is that to be handed over to Charles F. Murphy? Now, Charles F. Murphy may be gifted with all the wisdom that I think he does not possess, but if he were, he is not elected to any office within the gift of the people to do these things.

"If Mr. Murphy had been elected Governor of this State, we should, none of us, have one word to say against his right to do these things. He would have his office by the gift of the people to do that particular thing, but what mandate has Mr. Murphy to do anything now? What right has he to do anything, except to serve as a member of the State Committee, and he is not even the chairman of the State Committee. He holds no State office whatever. There is no responsibility that the people have placed upon him.

"It is simply the power that he has grasped for the selfish ends of himself and the small ring that surrounds him. Now, up the State we feel this way—and I will say this here, that the members of the Executive Committee of the Democratic League understood perfectly well when they were appointed, the work that was before us to do—we feel that we cannot win elections at the polls with this burden which has been placed upon us. We feel that the Democratic election of next year is seriously imperiled by the situation in this city, and that there is only one thing that can save New York to the Democratic Party, and that is the elimination of Mr. Murphy.

"Right here I want to say one word about Judge Cohalan. We know the man who stood with Murphy behind the outrages of the Carnegie Hall convention, and if we are not mistaken it was Cohalan. And we know the man who stood with Murphy at Rochester, who has been the brains of Murphy for some time past; and when you are electing Cohalan to a judicial position we believe that you are simply indorsing Murphy and his ring, and you are not in any way re-electing to the office of Judge a man who has served long and faithfully in his office. That is quite a different proposition.

"Now, I have said that it is the business of New York to rid the party of this incubus. We have come down to ask you to do this, to ask you to stand shoulder to shoulder to rid the party of this weight, which will sink us if we are not rid of it.

After the meeting Mr. Osborne said that there was no end of dissatisfaction with Murphy's rule over the State organization among the up-State Democrats, and that many of the "regular" leaders were ready to desert the Tammany boss.

"We are preparing for war on Murphy, and it will be war to the knife from now until after the Democratic National Convention," said Mr. Osborne.

DEPENDABLE EYEGLASSES

The difference between a dunce and a bright child may be the difference in their eyesight. Many a scholar has found it impossible to study because of weak eyes

You owe it to your child to let a Harris Oculist (registered physician) examine its eyes. There is no charge for his examination—a very small one for any glasses he may prescribe.

Harris Glasses cost $2.00, $3.00 and $5.00.

LAW LIBRARY FOR HARVARD.

Prof. Lichtenstein Buys the Marquis Olivar's for the University.

MADRID, Oct. 27.—Prof. Walter Lichtenstein, Librarian of the Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., to-day purchased for Harvard University the extensive library of the Marquis Olivar, which is considered to be the finest collection of works on international law in the world.

The purchase was arranged through Gustave Scholle, Secretary of the American Legation here.

let's enforce it against every one and trust it to no one's discretion.

"I have always advocated the existence of labor unions. Without them the individual would be at the mercy, and wholly unable to meet the greater capital and force and power of his employer. Therefore it is essential to have an organization among them—to have what we call 'trade unions.'"

The President pointed out the success that has attended the efforts of labor to obtain legislation to protect the workingman and work for the benefit also of the employer. He referred to the safety appliance act and to the investigation of the Workmen's Compensation Commission, saying that the difficulty with previous systems of workmen's compensation had been in the lack of uniformity of benefits for those injured.

"Dependent on circumstances, upon juries and Judges and law, in particular places, because the law differed," said Mr. Taft, "one man for an injury that was not at all severe might get a verdict of $25,000, while another whose life was ruined might be thrown out of court. The ambulance chasers and the lawyers thrived on the business."

Although he was speaking to a crowd composed largely of employes and his points against labor unions were frequent, Mr. Taft was applauded vigorously.

"Your Chairman extended his sympathy to me because the prospect was so full of darkness and trial," said the President. "Sometimes I think so myself, but a good digestion, a fair relief from conscience, and some philosophy accomplish much in the meeting of difficulties of that sort.

"But whenever I get entirely troubled and look forward with very little hope, I think of the condition of our country in 1861, when Abraham Lincoln took the tiller. Think of what he had to face. Think of how small our difficulties are compared with those of that great man.

"Trade unions, I doubt not, have brought higher wages and better conditions because they have stood up in those times when the interests of the employer an demploye were opposed, and they have fought the fight. They have increased the rate of wages and improved the general conditions of their employment; but, on the other hand, we must not fail to recognize that such organizations have prompted at times violations of law, violence, the secondary boycott, and other forms of seeking to compel their employers illegally to respond to their demands; under those conditions there has been nothing to do but to enforce the law, and the first lesson I would impart to both employers an demployes is the absolute necessity, if we are going to have permanent industrial peace, of the closest adherence to the law.

"Strikes are legal. Men have the right to leave their employment for the purpose of bettering their condition, and to leave it altogether. That has been decided. But a strike used for a secondary boycott or for other illegal purposes may become illegal, and courts should have the courage so to declare. Indeed, they have.

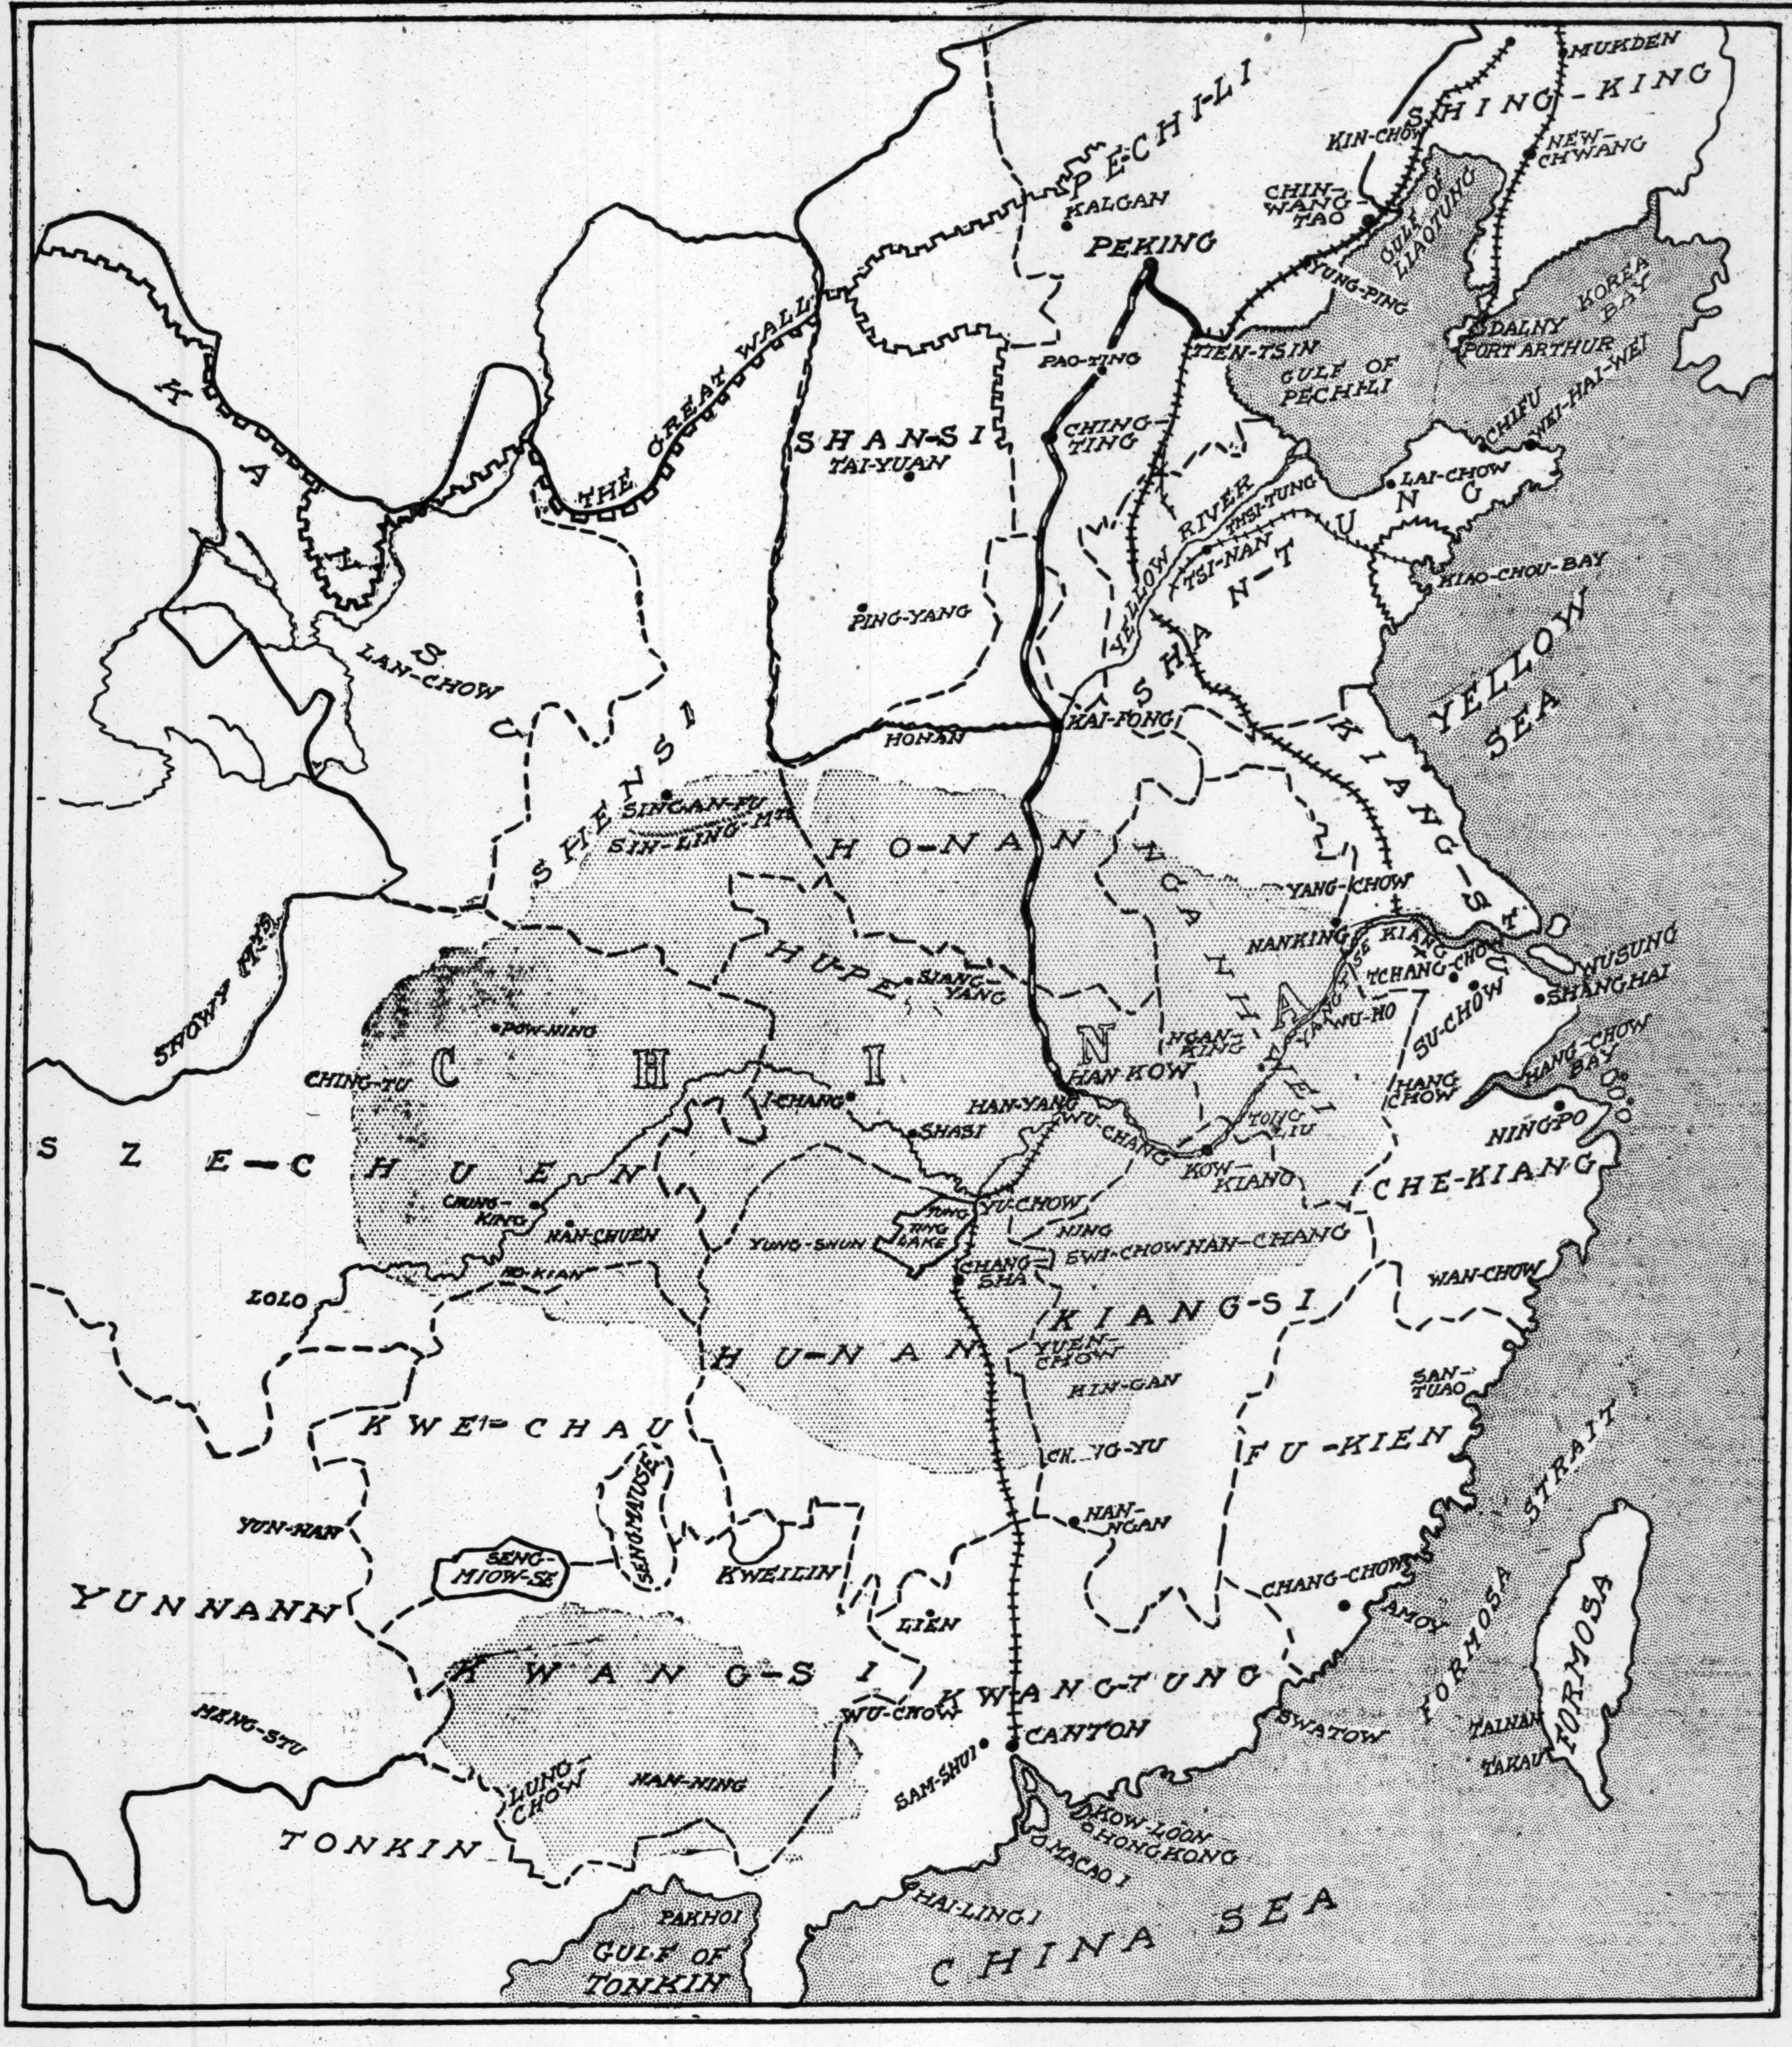
"We are all in the same boat. Injustice to one class cannot be done without ultimately affecting the entire community. Unjust legislation against corporations and men of capital affects not only them—indeed, they are affected less than the persons whom they employ, because if you make the conditions such that they cannot carry on a profitable business, they are under no obligation to do so, and they will not do so, and then the wage fund will be diminished to that extent and their employes will go without employment.

"Hence I have seen with a great deal of interest movements of organizations of workingmen to protest against unjust legislation proposed for some demagogic purpose against corporations and other enterprises that are doing a good business, that are keeping up a large wage fund and that are helping along the prosperity of the country.

"As to arbitration for industrial peace, that is a question of agreement. I am quite sure the workingmen, and I am quite sure the employer, will not consent to a forced arbitration—at least, that has been my experience, but there is a force that brings about a decision as to the right thing. That has been tried in a number of States, and I wonder that it has not spread.

"One of the things that this luncheon prompts me to speak of is the importance of full conference between the employer and the employe and the body of employers and the body of employes when any difficulty arises. If the spirit of conciliation and of a desire to meet in order to find out the facts could be brought about, and I believe it is being brought about more and more, and such a meeting as this indicates, we can be sure that nine-tenths of the differences will disappear."

Districts in China in Revolt Against the Manchu Dynasty.



The Shaded Sactions Show Provinces in Revolt.

The Chinese revolution began on Oct. 12, following the capture by the revolutionists of Wu-Chang, the capital of the province of Hu-Peh, and Sze-Chuen, on Oct. 10. Two days later Hankow and Han-Yang were taken, and on Oct. 16 two imperial warships were destroyed near Hankow by the guns of the forts at Wu-Chang, making the third warship destroyed by the revolutionists. Kai Fong, the capital of Ho-Nan province, a city with a population of 100,000, fell into the hands of the revolutionists on Oct. 17. Since then several important towns became aligned with the rebels, whose successes have been so pronounced that the Chinese Government is now approaching them with a view to pacification.

CHINESE THRONE FOR PACIFYING REBELS

Yuan Shi-Kai, Now Military Dictator, to End Revolution on His Own Terms.

LI PROCLAIMS REPUBLIC

Announces Himself President—Throne Disgorges Its Wealth for Army—Ngan-King Joins Rebels.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Dr. Morrison cables The London Times from Peking as follows:

"After biding his time, Yuan Shi-Kai has dictated his own terms.

"An edict to-night appoints an imperial commission, with plenary powers, over all the Yang-tse naval forces and all troops operating in Hu-Peh Province.

"The suppression and pacification of the revolution is placed in Yuan's hands, to be carried out as emergency may require.

"The General Staff and Ministry of War are forbidden to exercise any control. In other words, Yuan is given a military dictatorship in the sphere of the rebellion, with powers which were only once before bestowed during the present dynasty—that is, when Tseng Kuo-Fan was sent by the late Empress to suppress the Taiping rebellion.

"The Throne is at last beginning to disgorge its wealth. There is an edict announcing that the Empress Dowager presents a million taels from her privy purse to the military funds urgently needed at Hu-Peh."

PEKING, Oct. 27.—It was authoritatively announced here this evening that at the instigation of Yuan-Shi-Kai negotiations looking to a compromise between the imperialist forces and the revolutionaries in the Yang-tse-Kiang region are about to open.

It was also officially stated that Yuan-Shi-Kai will proceed to Sin-yang-chow to-morrow to take up the supreme command of the imperial army and navy at the front.

The Minister of War, Gen. Yin Tchang, who is at the head of the imperial forces, has been ordered to surrender his command to Yuan-Shi-Kai, and to return to Peking. Reports that Tin Tchang is dead continue in circulation.

The rebel chiefs are willing to negotiate, but demand as basic conditions the appointment of Yuan-Shi-Kai as Premier, the immediate assembling of the promised representative Parliament, and the complete reformation of the provincial government throughout the empire.

There is reason to believe that if Yuan-Shi-Kai should decide to accept the Premiership, he would to all intents and purposes be the ruler of China. But friends of Yuan doubt if he will accept the responsibility suggested unless he is granted extraordinary guarantees.

Li Proclaimed President.

Gen. Li Yuen-Heng, leader of the rebel forces, has informed the foreign Consuls at Hankow that he has been proclaimed "President of the Republic of China."

The foreign Ministers here have exchanged communications with Li upon several subjects. They objected to his announcement that vessels carrying contraband would be subject to confiscation by the rebels, and also to his proposal to administer the custom revenues at the ports of the Yang-tse-kiang and others when controlled by the revolutionists. The latter objection was based on the fact that the revenues are pledged as security for foreign loans, and should be turned over to the British Inspector General of customs in China.

At the session to-day the National Assembly adopted a resolution to memorialize the Throne requesting the immediate institution of a popular Parliament; the reconstruction of the Cabinet with the nobles excluded, and the pardon of political offenders, including the present rebels, as the best means of quelling the rebellion.

Ngan-King, the capital of the Province of Ngan-hwei, situated 160 miles southwest of Nanking, was taken over by the rebels to-day. Beyond this achievement the day passed uneventfully south of the Yang-tse River. The native press continues to report revolutionary success, but these are not confirmed. Nanking, Soochow, and Hang Chow remain quiet.

SHENG ESCAPES ASSASSIN.

Flees to American Embassy, Is Report—Legations Intercede for Him.

PEKING, Oct. 27.—Sheng Hsuan-Tual, who was removed from the office of Minister of Posts and Communications as a concession to the National Assembly yesterday, had a narrow escape from assassination here to-day. He was said to have fled to the American Legation and later escorted from there by a squad of ten soldiers to Tien-Tsin, but Edward T. Williams, the American Chargé d'Affaires, denies that he entered the American Legation and beyond that declines to discuss the ex-Minister's departure.

A proposal was circulated among the members of the National Assembly for signature last night or this morning demanding the decapitation of Sheng, following which one of Sheng's adherents visited the American Legation. Later the French, German, and British Ministers, accompanied by the American Chargé d' Affaires, drove to the residence of Prince Ching, the Premier, and lodged an objection to a possible decree conforming to the wishes of the Assembly. After yesterday's edict dismissing Sheng Hsuan-Huai, ordering Prince Ching before a board of inquiry and releasing from custody the President of the Sze-Chuen provincial assembly and other leaders in the Cheng-tu riots, the envoys feared that the Manchus would go to any length to placate the Assembly.

At Tien-Tsin and Shanghai the foreign residents will give Sheng the protection of the foreign police. The representatives of the Governments concerned in the railway and currency agreements felt in honor bound to intervene for the safety of Sheng, as they or their predecessors had pressed him to conclude these contracts and also urged him to take the strong stand which resulted in the present upheaval. While the revolution had been brewing before the conclusion of these contracts, it is considered here that the foreign loan policy finally precipitated it.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—A special dispatch received here from Peking says that ex-Minister Sheng left for Tien-Tsin on Friday night under a guard of soldiers from the American, French, British, and German Legations, who were under command of Capt. James H. Reeves, the American Military Attaché.

TO ADD TO OUR NAVAL FORCE.

Murdock Orders More Warships to China from Manila.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Unable to do much more toward maintaining a naval force in the upper reaches of Chinese rivers because of the lack of light-draught gunboats, Admiral Murdock, commander in chief of the Asiatic Station, has decided to strengthen the American naval representation at the deep-water treaty ports.

He has ordered the coast defense ship Monterey and the double-turreted monitor Monadnock to proceed at once from Manila to the Chinese Coast. The Quiros, the last of the small gunboats left at Manila, has also been ordered to China, and will probably go up the Yang-tse River. These additional ships are to look solely after the interests of Americans and foreigners.

Admiral Bacon cabled to-day from Paris that the French Government had decided that it did not see any present necessity for joint action of the foreign naval forces in China.

SUN YAT SEN NOT AN ALLY.

Rebel Leader Scouts Idea That He Is Connected with Rebellion.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—A special dispatch received here from Hankow says that Li Yuan Heng, the rebel leader, in an interview at Wu Chang, scouted the idea that Dr. Sun Yat Sen is connected with the revolution.

When asked whether, in the event of the accession of Yuan Shi Kai to the revolutionists, they would make him President of the Chinese republic, Li replied that Yuan Shi Kai was too despotic and was in opposition to the change in policy. Asked whether the rebels would make Dr. Sun President, Li said that Sun's methods were too theatrical.

COAST CHINESE PLAN FETE.

Will Celebrate Rebel Victories by a Big Demonstration To-morrow.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—Leaders of the Chinese revolutionary movement, which has its American headquarters in this city, have planned to celebrate the victories in China by a big demonstration Sunday, when 10,000 revolutionary flags and pennants will be used. It is stated that virtually the whole Chinese population of the cities around San Francisco Bay will participate in the parade and mass meeting. Afterward the flags and the pennants will be shipped to China.

The local revolutionists also are planning for a monster banquet on Nov. 5, at which the rebel triumphs will be celebrated.

No Troops Sent to Mukden, Says Japan

TOKIO, Oct. 27.—It was officially denied to-day that Japan had sent troops to Mukden, Manchuria, as had been reported.

UNITE TRIBES FOR HOLY WAR ON ITALY

Enver Bey's Disclosed Mission in Tripoli May Alter Whole Course of Hostilities.

TURKS LOSE 1,000 IN BATTLE

Italians Repulse Fierce Onslaught by Them and Arabs After Desperate Fighting—Victors' Casualties, 100.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The mystery of Enver Bey is now unveiled.

At the outbreak of the Italo-Turkish War, Enver, who is the Ottoman Military Attaché at Berlin, left that city for Constantinople. Since then his movements have given rise to much speculation. One report had him seeking to reach Tripoli by way of Egypt, and this, according to special information published by The Outlook, is correct.

The news, it is asserted, may change the whole course of the war in Tripoli. The Outlook says:

"Enver has passed through Egypt, has met the Grand Sheik of the Confederation of Senussi Tribes, and has united the whole of the hinterlands in a holy war against the Italian invaders.

"Enver Bey's unquestioned orthodoxy and reputation make him almost sacred in the tents of the desert. He is of the stuff of Abdelkader, and French military history can teach Italy what that may mean."

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Tripoli, dated Thursday midnight, says that the Turks have got a new leader, a fact which accounts for their present activity.

Describing Thursday's fighting, the correspondent says:

"The Arabs broke the Italian line. Artillery in reserve drove them back. With picks and shovels the enemy again broke through. This time the Italians succeeded in surrounding 500 of them. The Italian commander gave the hemmed-in force a time limit within which to surrender. At the expiration of that period he ordered up a Hotchkiss gun, which had been captured from the Turks, and shells from it were fired into the helpless enemy, doing great execution."

Opinion in London, reinforced by observations of correspondents at the front, is that the Italians have in Tripoli a task quite as difficult as those experienced in Abyssinia and Somaliland.

Protests are being made against the Italian methods, as reported in uncensored dispatches from Malta. One paper says:

"The simple truth is that the Italians have 'let hell loose' in Tripoli. All the stories in the Italian press about native tribes welcoming the invaders as liberators from the Turk are now seen to be unmitigated nonsense.

"The natives of Tripoli are firing from sandhill and housetop at Nazarene pirates, and the Italians are butchering prisoners by virtue of martial law."

TRIPOLI, Oct. 27.—A report from an Italian source recounting the battle of yesterday, places the Turkish and Arabian losses at more than 1,000 killed and a large number wounded, and the Italian loss at 100 dead and wounded. The enemy made a violent attack against the Italian positions between El Mesri and Boumeliana, and were repulsed with heavy losses.

The attack was made before daybreak and took the Italians by complete surprise. It was not until dawn that it was learned through the pilots of the military aeroplanes that the attacking force numbered apparently more than 6,000.

The Arabian and Turkish cavalry threw themselves against the entire Italian line, which was formed in a semi-circle behind the city, the ends extending to the seashore. The Italians upon the first alarm sprang quickly into action, and by repeated volleys forced the enemy to retreat temporarily. Later, however, the attacking forces returned, supported by heavy infantry, and tried to cut the Italian left, while simulating an attack on the right.

It was then that the combat developed into a sanguinary encounter at close quarters. The Turks fought furiously. One contingent advanced to the trenches occupied by the Italian sharp shooters, slaying as they came. For a time the fighting was desperate, and then suddenly the enemy was again reinforced by two large bodies of infantry that had been held in reserve, and massed their whole strength to break the Italian centre, which they succeeded in smashing. Eventually the Italians rallied and drove back the enemy, inflicting heavy losses. There was much hand to hand fighting with bayonets. A band of Arabs which had secretly turned the Italian left was discovered and annihilated. A company of the Eighty-fourth Italian Infantry, in a brilliant sortie, captured a green flag from the Arabs, after a desperate bayonet encounter.

The Turkish horsemen and foot soldiers displayed remarkable bravery. An exhibition of their spirit was afforded when a company of Turks and Arabs, which had fallen back, returned to the field in the face of almost certain death to recover the body of a fallen officer. In the dash one-half of the number were cut down by Italian bullets.

60,000 MUSSULMANS' MENACE.

Well-Armed and Provisioned Force Near Creates Panic in Tripoli.

MALTA, Oct. 27.—Uncensored information from Tripoli is to the effect that something in the nature of a panic has seized the city since it became known that a Mussulmans force of 60,000 Turks and Arabs are threatening Tripoli. They are well armed and provisioned.

In the revolt in the city following Monday's engagement the Italians suffered more than 180 casualties before they gained the ascendency. From 40 to 50 Arabs are shot daily in the town.

The Italians were taken completely by surprise, inasmuch as the ringleaders in the revolt had been among the first to hail the occupation of Tripoli by the Italians. Arabs appeared on every balcony, terrace, or other coign of vantage, firing on every passerby.

It is now stated that no forward movement will be made until the arrival of reinforcements. The 15,000 Italian troops in the town are panicstricken over the demonstration and the extent of the Mussulmans forces.

The Maltese and other British subjects in Tripoli are asking for warships to protect them.

ANOTHER ARMY CORPS OFF.

Sails Secretly from Naples for Tripoli, Escorted by Warships.

ROME, Oct. 27.—Another army expedition to Tripoli sailed secretly from Naples during last night. As was the case with the other expeditions, the troops were brought to the port and placed on transports with the knowledge of comparatively few persons.

The expedition was escorted by a naval division, which will be strengthened by other ships after the convoy has passed through the Straits of Messina.

The transports and warships carried no lights and nothing became known as to whether the troops would be landed at Tripoli, Bengazi, Derna, or Tobruk. Gen. Caneva, commander of the army of occupation, has requisitioned a large number of coral, sponge, and fishing boats to facilitate the landing of the soldiers, a task which is difficult owing to the rough seas and unfavorable coast.

The banker would not discuss the financial outlook either here or on the other side of the Atlantic. He was much shocked when told of the death of Robert Mather, former President of the Westinghouse Company.

THE PROBLEM OF THE TRUSTS

Discussed by Richard Olney, in the First of a Series of Articles by Eminent Men of Affairs—He Believes Big Business Is Here to Stay, But Is Not Reconciled to Its Management by the Supreme Court — Congress Must Act.

There is no question of more pressing importance in the United States today than that of the relations which shall subsist between the Government and the people on the one hand and combinations of capital on the other. During the next session of Congress consideration will be given to proposals designed to solve the trust question, possibly resulting in the enactment of a law which shall enable effective co-operation in business and at the same time prevent the abuses which have outraged public sentiment. To place before its readers every aspect of the problem, THE TIMES has arranged for a series of articles by eminent men of affairs, who will present their views on the following points:

1. The effect of the operation of the Sherman anti-trust law as construed by the United States Supreme Court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust cases.
2. Whether it is possible to restore the old-time competition or whether the country must legalize capitalistic and industrial co-operation.
3. If co-operation is necessary under existing conditions, to what extent shall the Government exercise regulation and supervision?

The first of the series of articles appears below. The second article, by George W. Perkins, will appear on Monday next.

By RICHARD OLNEY,
Secretary of State in President Cleveland's Second Administration.

It is axiomatic that the law invariably lags behind the conditions and needs of progressive communities. Nothing more strikingly illustrates the rule than what has taken place in this country in respect to what are called the trusts. Under the statute of 1890 trusts, big and little, were outlawed. The executive department was required to exterminate them through the courts, their promoters and officers were put in the criminal class, and all persons injured by their operation were given claims for damages.

What has been the result of this twenty years' war upon the trusts—a war waged with the emphatic approval of the general public? So far from being eliminated, they have persistently grown in number and scope, and, economically speaking, have vindicated their economic right to exist and to stay.

Even the most ardent and eminent trust busters—among whom can be included an ex-President—have begun to perceive that the trusts are only a phase of financial development, and to realize that the relentless and indiscriminate assaults upon them are a serious menace to the country's commercial development and progress.

Even the United States Supreme Court shows the influence of the spreading of the reaction in favor of big business, and, recalling its original decision against it, now holds that there are good trusts and bad trusts, and that it is for it to determine which are good and which are bad—which shall live and which shall perish.

The Supreme Court is, of course, to be credited with good intentions, and by its latest decision in the trust cases unquestionably meant to come to the relief of the business of the country. But the crucial question is, Has it done so? In recanting and denying all combinations restraining trade in any degree to be unlawful, has it cleared up the situation or made confusion worse confounded?

The situation it dealt with was one in which the law was clear, but its enforcement so impracticable and repugnant to common sense that, as a rule, business thrived, or at least got along somehow by evading or defying the law at the practical connivance of its officers.

The situation the court has substituted is one in which the law is no longer clear—in which combinations must be adjudicated legal before there can be certainty as to the lawfulness of their organization or the innocence of their promoters, in which every case must be a law unto itself alone, and in which reasonableness, the supreme test of the validity of combinations, and of the non-guiltiness of the combiners, is a highly fluctuating factor, necessarily varying with the kind of business, with the time and place where carried on, with the indispensableness of the business in its relation to other businesses and the general welfare, with the extent of domestic and foreign competition, and with a multitude of other circumstances, chief among which will always be found to be the length of the Chancellor's feet.

Surely, if before the latest trust decisions big business was handicapped because it knew it had to be carried on against the law, it is now none the less severely handicapped because, until the court gives it its benediction, it can never know whether its status is legal or illegal.

What business most craves of all things, however, is certainty, and certainty before it embarks upon an enterprise, and not merely afterward.

It cannot be gainsaid that large combinations of capital, for the financing of large enterprises must always be effectually discouraged and repressed by the menace of litigation over their reasonableness with all the amending and inevitable uncertainties.

It will be conceded that big business is with us to stay. The financial chaos, the industrial and commercial stagnation and disaster that must ensue from reversion to the day of small things—to railroads forty or fifty miles long, to factories and farms dependent for their operation upon the resources of some one individual, to independence and isolation among the captains of industry in place of interdependence and co-operation—are too glaring and too appalling to be welcomed by the sturdiest enemy of the present order of things.

If big business is to continue, though, as also the relations to it of the National judiciary, as defined in the latest trust decision, the result is that the National Supreme Court has taken upon itself practical charge of the business of the country. Nine-tenths of it will be done by the combinations, which will effectually control the other one-tenth, and the existence, character, and proceedings of all will be dependent upon edicts of the Supreme Court. Was ever a country's judiciary in that position before?

Two things, it is believed, may be confidently asserted. In point of law the present position of the court is not tenable unless the Constitution is to be regarded as obsolete and the National judiciary has become clothed with legislative and administrative as well as judicial functions.

In point of fact, the task of supervising the business combinations of 90,000,000 people, of passing judgment upon the reasonableness of the innumerable partnerships, firms, asosciations, and corporations by which that business is done, is a task incapable of real performance by the National courts, because reasonableness is never the same in two cases, but in each must be separately investigated and determined.

Did the rule justify or call for any such application? Did it authorize or require the court to evolve out of its own inner consciousness a standard by which the reasonableness of business corporations should be determined?

In undertaking to settle such a standard without any guidance or clew from Congress as to the elements or requirements of the public policy involved did not the Supreme Court trespass upon a field committed by the Constitution to the possession of Congress exclusively? And did not the rule of reason demand that the court should hold the statute to be altogether and incurably defective on the court's first version of it for the reasons the court set forth and on the second and only alternative version because that would enable and require the court to make its views of public policy the law of the land instead of the views of Congress?

These are the questions now being put by statesmen and lawyers and captains of industry and being more and more uniformly answered in the affirmative.

It is being more and more completely and generally realized that only the legislative department of the National Government is competent to determine what business combinations should or should not be permitted to carry on inter-State and foreign trade, and that the question of public policy involved is not for the National judiciary, either as qualified by having power over the subject matter or as well fitted to make such pertinent investigations and obtain such pertinent data as are easily made by and easily accessible to Congress and its committees.

Lawyers in particular are impressed with the unfortunate consequences to the National courts likely to ensue from their undertaking the duties required of them by the late decisions of the trust cases. It is only too true that no uniform rule touching the reasonableness of the business combinations is likely to be found in the decisions of the various National courts of the country, that reasonableness in one district is likely to wear a wholly different aspect from reasonableness in another, that in the nature of things no consistent principle covering all such cases can be formulated by the Supreme Court, and that the result to be expected is not merely confusion and perplexity in business circles but great loss of prestige by the National judiciary.

What must happen, perhaps, will be better realized if we assume the doctrine laid down in the recent trust cases to apply to restraints of trade other than those arising from business combinations.

Duties on imports, for instance, operate to restrain trade in the most effective manner. Suppose Congress, after giving a list of dutiable articles, should enact that the rate of duty in each case should be a reasonable rate as determined by the National courts, or should be a fixed rate, or such other rate as the courts might find reasonable. The result would be that a crowd of tariff cases would be likely to occupy those courts to the exclusion or detriment of all other cases and to produce such a congestion of business as to practically stop the wheels of justice.

Similar results are to be expected from the National courts undertaking to sit in judgment upon the reasonableness of all business combinations. Not only are the suits likely to be as numerous as they would be if the courts were to attempt to make reasonable tariff schedules; they necessitate investigations of a great variety of subjects, each requiring the ascertainment and analysis of masses of facts and the weighing of a great body of conflicting expert opinions.

By the way of illustration there could be nothing better than what the tobacco and oil cases have furnished.

The record in each is enormous. There are volumes of evidence, and the rise, progress, and development of each industry to date are set forth at full length with all accompanying facts respecting foreign and domestic markets and foreign and domestic consumption and competition.

When it is remembered that every industry of the country and every business combination carrying it on may be subjected to the same ordeal, the wonder will be not that the mills of the National judiciary grind slowly, but that they do not cease grinding altogether.

When the decision in the trust cases was first announced there was a general sigh of relief on the part of the American business world. Lawyers, statesmen, and captains of industry joined in the chorus of praise for the judgment of the court. They were seemingly captivated by what struck them, or what they chose to treat as a new discovery—namely, the existence of a rule of reason in accordance with which the courts discharged their functions.

They did not know, or ignored the fact, that there was nothing new about the rule; that the Supreme Court had not invented it for use in the trust cases, and that English jurists and English courts had acted upon it for centuries to the great advantage both of society at large and of the law itself.

Of late, however, paeans in honor of the court and of its adjudication have rather abruptly ceased and have given place to general skepticism, not as to the existence of the rule of reason and its value, but as to the justness of the application of the rule.

President Taft in his present record traveling and speechifying trip is vigorously lauding the Supreme Court's changed attitude on the trust question, and is vigorously assailing the views and motives of its critics. But it is clear that he once deprecated any such change, and was particularly alarmed by its probable effects upon the prestige and usefulness of the court.

In a special message to Congress in January, 1910, noticing the contention that "reasonable" should be a part of the statute, and that it should be left to the court to say what is a reasonable restraint of trade and what is a reasonable monopoly, he used this language:

"I venture to think that this is to put into the hands of the court a power impossible to exercise on any consistent principle which will insure the uniformity of decision essential to just judgment. It is to thrust upon the courts a burden that they have no precedents to enable them to carry and to give them a power approaching the arbitrary, the abuse of which might involve our whole judicial system in disaster."

It is quite impossible to believe that the law respecting big business will permanently stay in the condition in which the latest trust decisions of the court have landed it. Congress, and Congress alone, can effectually and permanently lift business out of the slough of despond in which it is now plunged.

It is its plain duty to vindicate its jurisdiction over the subject matter—to get all possible light upon it by proper investigations and by study of the experience of other countries; and, being thus informed and guided, to determine what are the conditions under which big business can be and ought to be carried on without loss of its advantages, but with practical elimination of possible dangers to the public welfare.

BIGGEST AIRSHIP MAY NOT FLY TO-DAY

Weather Conditions Unpropitious and Mr. Vaniman Will Take No Initial Risks.

PROSPECT OF A 20-MILE WIND

Engineer's Backers from Ohio Arrive to See the Start—It May Not Come Until Mid-November.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 27.—Unless the weather conditions to-morrow are perfect Melvin Vaniman will not venture on a flight with the dirigible balloon Aron. That being the case ,there will probably be no flight, as the forecast tomorrow indicates unsettled weather and possibly a storm. The airship represents a large expenditure, and in a storm it might be wrecked before it could be launched from its hangar.

It is not the intention of Mr. Vaniman in any event to attempt more than a short flight over the ocean to test the engine and the stability of the big gas bag. Only two of the three main engines are in place, the other not being ready for mounting.

To-day all hands worked like beavers to get the Akron ready for its trip, and they will labor far into the night, even though Mr. Vaniman has but faint hope of getting the balloon out of the hangar to-morrow. It may be several days before the weather will permit a trial. It is the opinion here that Mr. Vaniman will not make his attempt to fly across the ocean much before the middle of November.

To-day J. A. Proctor of New York, engineer for the Marconi Company, came here and, assisted by "Jack" Irwin, the wireless operator, adjusted the wireless apparatus on the balloon. Mr. Proctor says that the Akron will have as wide a wireless radius as any of the great ocean liners.

Louis A. Sieb. ling, Mr. Vaniman's financial backer in the enterprise, came here to-day with a party of nine from Akron, Ohio, to witness the launching of the balloon. Included in the party, besides Mrs. Sieberling, were Prof. Ohlin and Prof. Rundell of Buchtel College, who are interested in aeronautics. They will remain here until the Akron makes its trial flight.

Late to-night Mr. Vaniman was in conference with Forecaster Judkins of the local Weather Bureau. The best Mr. Judkins would promise him was a 20-mile wind, which, of course, would make ballooning impracticable. Vaniman said after the conference that he had not the slightest idea of taking his balloon out to sea this year until he had tested her so fully as to be practically sure he could get across. At the same time, he said, he was not going to risk her in high winds until he was sure how she would behave in a calm, and for that reason the public could be assured that when the flags were flying he would not go up. He will wait for a breeze of four mile san hour or less.

Most Beautiful Trimmings and Garnitures.

$4 to $25 Trimmings at 98c. to $4.98 a Yard.
98c. to $7.50 Garnitures at 49c. to $1.49 Each.

THOUGH THE STATEMENT of values and prices seems sufficiently extraordinary, the importance of the Sale will only be realized when it is understood that these are the Trimmings and Garnitures most in demand now—at this present day—for full prices.

Indeed, we have some of the identical qualities and designs in regular stock at full prices—or had when these goods arrived. Trimmings that were $12 a yard in our own stock are exactly matched by those now priced at $3.98. Garnitures that were $4.98 each in our stock are matched by those that will be $4.98 for three.

We bought these Trimmings and Garnitures from one of the oldest and foremost among importers. We bought them at such very low prices because they are his remainders—a piece of a kind or a few of a kind, and though not one has been in New York more than three months, this dispersal will straighten out his stock and is worth to him the sacrifice.

The Trimmings are of many widths and in embroidered, jeweled, beaded, worsted, chenille and velvet styles in the Oriental and other colorings that are desired for ornamentation of the richest evening gowns, wraps, etc.

The Garnitures are in metal, embroidered and beaded styles and the handsomest we could possibly select.

The values are so wonderful; so far beyond anything that has been offered for Trimmings in the very height of demand, that even our generous stock will not last long. Come as early as you can, therefore.

RICHESON'S LETTER HELD OUT BY DEFENSE

Lawyers Block Efforts of Prosecution to Get One Written to Pastor by Avis Linnell.

FATHER EXPECTS ACQUITTAL

Trial Will Wipe Out Any Stain on the Richeson Name, He Says—More Grand Jury Witnesses.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 27.—The defense scored in the Richeson case to-day by blocking the efforts of the District Attorney to obtain possession of photographs and letters alleged to have been written to the minister by Avis Linnell, whom he is accused of murdering. It is the belief of the District Attorney that the letters taken from Richeson's room by Robert Burns, a private detective employed by the defense, would make material evidence in the State's case against the minister and would serve to assist toward indicting Richeson.

Burns was summoned as a witness before the Grand Jury yesterday, and was expected to be called again to-day, but this morning Richeson's counsel appeared before Judge Sanderson, in the Superior Court, and asked him to decide whether District Attorney Pelletier was not overstepping his powers when he summoned Burns before the Grand Jury and submitted him to a grilling. They also asked that the District Attorney be restrained from summoning other witnesses for the defense.

The Judge declined to rule unless the question was presented to him formally; but this will not be necessary, as counsel are understood to have claimed the property as their own, and Mr. Pelletier said:

"I do not know of any law by which I can compel counsel for the defense to produce those papers."

Congressman Robert O. Harris, former District Attorney of Plymouth County, who made his first public appearance today as one of the counsel for the defense, had this to say after the conference with Judge Sanderson:

"We were in there to protest against the way in which Mr. Burns, who is employed to gather evidence, was called before the Grand Jury and an effort made to make him divulge what he has. I do not like the way this thing was done without consulting me. It looks to me as if they were trying to double-cross us. It also looks to me as if they had no case and they knew it.

"The question was raised before Judge Sanderson this morning whether the Government could force Detective Burns to testify or give up any evidence he had, in view of the fact that he is in the employ of Philip R. Dunbar to gather evidence for the defense. The court made no ruling upon the question because the District Attorney has not yet put it up to him."

The special session of the Grand Jury which has been sitting on the case for the last two days failed to complete the list of witnesses summoned when adjournment was taken this afternoon until Monday morning. It is probable, however, according to District Attorney Pelletier, that all the witnesses will have been heard by Monday evening. This would indicate that a report as to whether an indictment has been found may be expected some time Monday night, at the latest.

To-day's witnesses before the Grand Jury included the following: Moses Grant Edmands, father of the accused clergyman's fiancée; four boarders at the Young Women's Christian Association lodging house, where Miss Linnell died—Miss Juliet C. Patterson, Superintendent, and the Misses Inez Hanscombe, Lucille Zeigler, and Mary Austin, fellow-lodgers with Miss Linnell; a telephone operator from the Cambridge exchange, who handled a call made by Mr. Richeson to the Y. W. C. A. two days before Miss Linnell died, in which, according to the police, Richeson made an appointment to meet Miss Linnell on Saturday the day of her death; Dr. Mary N. Hebart, who attended Miss Linnell in her dying moments, and George E. Cobb, an assistant clerk, and Edward Linnehan, an errand boy, at the drug store of William Hahn, in Newton Centre, where Richeson is said to have purchased a quantity of cyanide of potassium.

In connection with the calling of the last two witnesses it was learned to-day that Inspector Joseph C. Mitchell of the local police obtained from Hahn's drug store at Newton Centre last night a bottle containing cyanide of potassium similar to that which Druggist Hahn says he sold to Mr. Richeson. Inspector Mitchell is said to have testified before the Grand Jury to-day, but whether he exhibited the phial and the poison is not known.

"My boy is going to be acquitted," said Thomas Varland Richeson, father of the Cambridge pastor, as he left this city for his home in Virginia. "As sure as I am living, I know I am going back to Virginia without any stain on the name of Richeson which will not be wiped out when the courts of Massachusetts get into action."

Mr. Richeson said he came to Boston to hear from his son's own lips a denial of the charge of murder pending against him.

Miss Lillie V. Richeson, one of the sisters of the accused man, left for Philadelphia, where she is employed as a nurse, a short time before her father's departure. Douglas Richeson, an elder brother of the minister, is the only relative of the prisoner here at the present time.

Following the regular Friday evening prayer meeting to-night, a business session of the members of Immanuel Baptist Church in Cambridge, of which the Rev. Mr. Richeson is pastor, was held to receive formally the letter which the minister sent recently to the clerk of the church. The letter requested that the church defer action regarding the pastorate pending the report of the Grand Jury.

After considerable discussion, the following letter was composed, to be forwarded to Mr. Richeson:

> Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 27, 1911.
> Rev. C. V. T. Richeson, Charles Street Jail, Boston, Mass.
>
> Dear Sir: Your communication of the 24th instant, duly received and read before the church. We unanimously vote to wait until such time as the Grand Jury makes a decision, praying that all things may turn out for the best. Sincerely yours,
>
> In behalf of the church.
> CHARLES [illegible]. CUMMINGS, Clerk.

At the prayer meeting, which was conducted by Edwin S. Watson, the church treasurer, "Love never faileth" was the topic.

"We know all about our present situation," said Mr. Watson. "It is time to let love rule. Love will bring us out all right, for love rules always."

The meeting closed with a prayer for all persons in trouble and suffering from perplexities and for those in hard places.

FOLLOW CUMMINS DEALS.

Jury Hears No Oral Testimony, but Gets Exhibits of Notes and Checks.

The trial of William J. Cummins went on yesterday without the introduction of oral testimony, the session being taken up with the presentation of checks, notes, books, &c., to show transactions admitted by the defense.

These had to do with further tracing of the stock taken up by Cummins with the fund of $140,000 which he is charged with stealing and his disposition of the proceeds. They took the jury through a maze of transfers among Cummins's concerns and his associates similar to those of the last two days. It was shown that when Cummins paid one of Warner Van Norden's notes and took up nineteen shares of Nineteenth Ward Bank stock and forty shares of Twelfth Ward Bank stock, the latter were combined with sixty other shares and a new certificate issued for 100 shares to Charles A. Moore, Jr. This was put up in the Northern Bank, one of J. G. Robin's institutions, as collateral for a loan of $30,000 to W. K. Weaver. This money was checked through Weaver's account in the Carnegie Trust Company to the Platt Iron Works, which Cummins had acquired.

Other similar transactions were traced and much time was spent in showing how Cummins got control of the Platt Iron Works. The State maintains that only $367,000 was actually paid to the Platts, and that this came out of the funds of the Carnegie Trust Company through the discounting of notes of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Securities Company, organized by Cummins to hold the stock of the iron works.

F. J. GOULD OPERATED ON.

Recovering Satisfactorily After the Removal of His Appendix.

Frank J. Gould, it was learned yesterday, was operated on for appendicitis at his home, 834 Fifth Avenue, on Monday, by Dr. Frank Hartley. It was said last night that he is recovering satisfactorily, with no complications, and a normal temperature and pulse. George H. Taylor, Mr. Gould's confidential adviser, said Mr. Gould was able to sit up yesterday, and that he expects to be out in a week or ten days.

Mr. Gould returned from Europe about a month ago. While abroad he had felt no pain, but about ten days ago he was seized with an attack, and his condition grew steadily worse until his family physician, Dr. Robert Coleman Kemp, advised an operation.

FUNDS FOR FIRE PREVENTION.

Budget Committee Apportions $400,000 to Start the New Bureau.

The Budget Committee of the Board of Estimate decided yesterday to include $400,000 in the 1912 budget for the establishment of the Bureau of Fire Prevention. This amount is to include also the appropriations for the support of the Bureau of Combustibles and the Fire Marshal's Bureau, which are merged under the new law with the Bureau of Fire Prevention. The committee decided that a definite appropriation covering an exact organization should not be made at the present time, because no plan of this work has been submitted to it. Fire Commissioner Johnson asked for $744,000.

RESCUED THE FALLEN, BUT FELL HIMSELF

The Rev. D. D. Lewis, Colored, Is in the Tombs for Mulcting Street Car Companies.

MANY FALLS IN MANY CITIES

Two Railways in New York Asked to Settle at Once for the Same Injury —Several Identify the Prisoner.

The Rev. David Daniel Lewis, colored, who raises the fallen at his Rescue Mission at 83 West 134th Street, fell himself into the hands of the police yesterday afternoon. He has had a great many falls besides that, according to Frank L. Arnold, Secretary of the Alliance Against Accident Fraud, who preferred a charge of attempted grand larceny against the negro preacher. Mr. Arnold says he has investigated the career of the colored uplifter and discovered that he has, for the last two years, been making quite a business of falling, in various cities, always from street cars, invariably following his fall with a call for damages from the companies.

Lewis is known in the Harlem negro colony only as Brother Lewis, Mr. Arnold says, but to the Claims Departments of street railway companies of this and other cities he is known under the aliases of Murry Hill, Damon Lewis, Frank James, Lewis Thomas, and N. A. James. His age, according to Mr. Arnold, has varied from 32 to 38 years, and as he grew older he grew wiser also, and fell more and harder—but always in the same place.

The Rev. Brother Lewis, in his private capacity, apart from his business relations with the street railway companies, Mr. Arnold says, was once a missionary in the South, and collected considerable funds there for a church to be built in the Sudan. The subsequent prosperity of that church has not been inquired into. Lewis himself, however, came North and continued his missionary labors. He fitted up the parlor of the three-story building at 83 West 134th Street as a church, with about fifty seats and an altar. He himself, with his wife and one child, occupied the rear of the floor as a dwelling. He wore and she laundered his clerical collars, white vests, and white ties.

He was wearing a complete set of clerical clothes yesterday afternoon when Detective Mangin arrested him in a tailor shop at 133d Street, near Lenox Avenue.

Mr. Arnold says that he has traced the colored preacher back to his native Southland, through the railway claims agents in various cities there. He says that in 1909 alone Brother Lewis, under various names, "fell" from street cars and applied for damages in Chattanooga, Nashville, Memphis, Washington, D. C., Atlanta, and Macon, Ga. Photographs of him, sent to the claims agents in those cities, Mr. Arnold says, were identified by all of them. Just how much he collected from the companies, Mr. Arnold says he has not yet learned, the claims agents in most part preferring to keep silent about transactions they handled ingloriously.

From 1909 to 1911 there is, as far as Mr. Arnold has been able to ascertain, a hiatus in the colored preacher's falls. But they began again, he says, in September of this year, and kept up briskly. On Sept. 1, Mr. Arnold says, Lewis, as Damon Lewis, "fell" from a Third Avenue car at Sixtieth Street and Third Avenue, and subsequently induced the claims department of that road to "fall" for $35.

On Sept. 7, according to Mr. Arnold, the spiritual uplifter took a physical fall from a car of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company at Columbus Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street, and tried, under the name of Murry Hill, to collect $60 damages. On the very next day, according to Mr. Arnold, Lewis, in his proper person as the Rev. David Daniel Lewis, alleged that he fell from a car of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey at Boulevard and Communipaw Avenue, Jersey City, and on Oct. 4, Mr. Arnold says, he made his latest fall from a car of the Union Railway at 165th Street and Webster Avenue, under the name of Frank James.

Unfortunately for him, two claims adjusters for different railways happened to meet and mention that they had negotiated with a colored preacher for an alleged fall, and in this way the Alliance against Accident Frauds, an organization supported by the various traction lines to prevent fraudulent accident claims, was set upon Lewis's trail.

Mr. Arnold says that Lewis's falls had an odd but invariable persistence of happening in the small hours of the morning, when there were few or no persons on the street to see the accident. Moreover, he said, they were invariably "no report" cases, that is, cases not seen or reported by the crews of the cars in which the complainant alleged he had been riding, and, therefore, hard to disprove. Furthermore, Mr. Arnold said, Lewis always happened to fall so as to be injured in the same way—he suffered, almost without exception, abrasions of the right thigh and right leg, with occasional contusions of a shoulder. And in each case, according to Mr. Arnold, the complainant set forth that he had been jolted off the car in the act of alighting, by a premature pull of the bell cord by the conductor.

In the "accident" of Sept. 7, for example, in connection with which the arrest of Lewis was made yesterday, he was found by a policeman, at 5 o'clock in the morning, groaning and moaning, and complaining that he had just fallen from a car. He was taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital, where abrasions were discovered on the right leg and a dark patch on the right shoulder. These, the medical Inspector of the railway company said later, might or might not have been caused by an industrious application of sand paper. They were quickly dressed at the hospital and Lewis went home. There, Mr. Arnold says, he was found in bed a few hours later, by a medical Inspector for the Third Avenue Railway who called to examine him for injuries said to have been sustained in the "accident" of Sept. 1.

"He showed the Inspector his abrasions," said Mr. Arnold, "but said nothing about the alleged fall from the Metropolitan car earlier that day. Later he demanded $500 from the Third Avenue Railway Company, although there was not even a hospital record of that 'fall.' The company, preferring to avoid legal proceedings, settled for $35.

"He managed to have his falls despite everything. For example, in connection with his claim against the New Jersey company, the Public Service Corporation had agents shadow him day and night until nearly 1:30 o'clock in the morning of Oct. 24, when they abandoned the case, leaving him apparently asleep at his home. A few minutes later he 'fell' from the Union Railway car at 165th Street and Webster Avenue. Since then we have been shadowing him."

Mr. Arnold declared that the present charge is based on only one of the cases of alleged fraudulent claims, the other cases being reserved until later if this one should fail. In the Tombs Court yesterday, according to Mr. Arnold, Lewis was identified by James W. Dillon, an adjuster for the Third Avenue Railway Company, as the man to whom he had paid $35 in settlement. Charles B. Ryan, an adjuster for the Metropolitan Railway Company, also identified him.

Magistrate Barlow held him for examination on Tuesday morning in $1,500 bail. In default of this, the preacher was sent to the Tombs.

TRIAL FOR WARNER KILLING.

Actor Testifies That He Saw Langione Stab the Young Engineer.

Alfred Langione, who is charged with stabbing to death John C. Warner, a young civil engineer of Highwood, Conn., at Thirty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue on Oct. 31, was placed on trial before Judge Malone in General Sessions yesterday for manslaughter in the first degree.

Albert Taylor, an actor from Central Valley, N. Y., who has been kept in the House of Detention as a witness against Langione, was called by Assistant District Attorney McGuire, and said he saw Langione sit on Warner's back and strike him repeatedly. Several other witnesses were called, who testified to the attack upon the young engineer.

On the night of the attack Warner was going hunting and wore an olive drab uniform. At Thirty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue he was set upon by a crowd of striking express drivers and stabbed in the back. He managed to run to Forty-second Street, where he fell exhausted and was taken to a hospital, where he died the next day.

Peter J. O'Connor and James Mulligan were arrested with Langione. Mulligan was tried and acquitted, and later O'Connor and Langione were released. Taylor, who failed to appear on the first trial, was discovered and placed in the House of Detention, and Langione was arrested in a Coney Island restaurant a few days later. O'Connor is still at large.

BOLD ITALIAN LOVER KIDNAPS HIS BRIDE

Drags Her from Tailor Shop to Carriage, and They Vanish as Crowd Gapes.

MARRIED, HIS FRIENDS SAY

Why Not, Though Her Mother Did Object? — $16 a Week He Makes as a Cooper.

Through the mire and rubbish of narrow Boerum Street, Williamsburg, early yesterday morning, rolled a flashing black carriage drawn by two prancing white horses. It stopped in front of the tailoring shop of Samuel Pollack, at 184 Boerum Street, and from it two tall Italians sprang out into the dark hallway.

Five minutes later were heard the stifled cries of a girl in the hallway, as two men carried out the struggling form of nineteen-year-old Frances Lecano of 163 Boerum Street, who had just entered the place to go to work as usual in the tailor shop. One man carried her by the feet, and the other, carrying her at the shoulders, had clapped a hand over her mouth to stifle her cries.

In a moment Boerum Street was alive with scores of men, women, and children. But the two Italians, utterly disregarding them, carried the girl, despite her struggles, to the waiting carriage, sprang in beside her, and ordered the driver to lash his horses into full speed. He did; and the carriage disappeared at Bushwick Avenue before the crowd had fully sized up the situation or thought of interfering.

Half an hour later the police of the Stagg Street Station sent out a general alarm for the carriage and the kidnappers. Detective De Gillio and half a dozen men of the station were assigned to trace their course. This they were unable to do. Yesterday afternoon, however, they declared rather carelessly that the chase was called off.

From Mrs. Mary Lecano, mother of the kidnapped girl, De Gillio learned that the daughter had been courted for about eight months by one Micele Mondorto of 215 Johnson Street. The mother objected to the match on the ground that Micele was sixteen years older than the girl, but Micele kept calling regularly at the house and threatened, she said, to take the law of love into his own hands if the mother continued to object to the match. Mrs. Lecano was sure yesterday that he had done just that.

"Isn't it a couple to be proud of?" inquired Romano, one of Mondorto's friends. "Sixteen dollars a week he makes as a cooper; and she makes $8 in the shop"

He wouldn't tell where Mr. and Mrs. Mondorto are now living.

DENY THAT GOODE LIVED DOUBLE LIFE

Investigators of His Sudden Death at First Thought He Had Also Posed as E. E. Weston.

NAME OF WOMAN PARTNER

The "Mrs." Dropped from Door of Office Where They Promoted Cairo & Norfolk Railroad.

With the investigation of the death of Lowry W. Goode, President of the Cairo & Norfolk Railroad Company, who died in Boston on Wednesday from an overdose of morphine, there came to light yesterday a series of circumstances which seemed to point to the conclusion that Mr. Goode was also the E. E. Weston whose name appeared on the railroad company's door at 111 Broadway, and who seemed to have disappeared simultaneously with the death of Mr. Goode. The apparent dual identity of the railroad President and promoter, however, was fully explained.

In the directory Mr. Goode appeared as President and Director of the Cairo & Norfolk Railroad Company, Vice President of the Atlantic and Cairo Construction Company, and President and Director of the Kentucky Development Company. In each of these companies E. E. Weston appeared as officer and Director.

The first inquiries concerning Mr. Goode were made at the office, but it was always said there that Mr. Weston was not in. It was learned, however, that E. E. Weston lived in the Strathcona Apartments, 374 Wadsworth Avenue, and there the elevator boy said Mrs. E. E. Weston lived in the house, but that a report had just reached her that Mr. Weston had died very suddenly in Boston. The report that Lowry W. Goode also lived in the apartment with Mrs. E. E. Weston was confirmed.

C. B. Goode, son of the railroad President, when seen at his father's office yesterday, was much surprised at the story of the dual identity

"The name E. E. Weston, which you see on the door," he said, "should really read Mrs. E. E. Weston. It is the name of the woman who lives at 374 Wadsworth Avenue. The company thought it would look better to leave the Mrs. off the name and that is the only reason it has been done. Not long ago, I am informed, E. E. Weston was drafted for jury service, and when the papers were served the server was very much surprised to find that his man was a woman. She registered the same way in the directories and always did business under the name E. E. Weston."

His father, Mr. Goode said, was born in Chesterfield County, Virginia, 55 years ago. He went to Des Moines, Iowa, as a young man, and there at different times practiced law, edited a paper, and conducted a real estate and banking business. In 1897, the son said, the family came East, Mr. Goode having business interests in Chicago, Boston, and New York. About five years ago his father met Mrs. E. E. Weston.

"Mrs. Weston had some money to invest," he said. "She and my father started the Cairo & Norfolk Railroad Company, incorporated in Tennessee and Kentucky, a railroad which, when finished, will extend from the Mississippi River to the Atlantic seaboard, between Cairo, Ill., and Norfolk, Va. The Kentucky Development Company and the Atlantic & Cairo Construction Company are subsidiaries, and all of the Directors live in Kentucky and Virginia. Mrs. Weston and my father put up more than $500,000 tofgether than was realized on the sale of the stock. Mrs. Weston came to the office every day and transacted business under the name of E. E. Weston. She is a shrewd business woman.

"Yes, she has a husband. His name is E. E. Weston, and he lives with his son-in-law, M. W. Keeley, at Madison, Wis. He is not interested in business affairs and has always allowed Mrs. Wecston to carry on all of the business.

"All went well until two years ago, when Mrs. Weston was suddenly stricken with paralysis. She ceased coming to the office and my father had to consult with her daily. Then it was suggested that Mrs. Weston take the apartment on Wadsworth Avenue, and my father, so that he might be of some service to her, took up his abode there also. Since that time Mrs. Weston has not been able to move from her reclining chair without assistance. The apartment was in her own name, and it is likely that some of the employes in the apartment house had the idea that my father was really Mr. Weston, but I am sure that he gave them no reason for thinking so. He never posed as Mr. Weston."

Dr. K. E. Townsend of the Hotel Ansonia, who had treated both Mrs. Weston and Mr. Goode, corroborated this, saying that he had always treated these patients under the separate names. Mrs. George of 147 Hancock Street, Brooklyn, sister of the elder Mr. Goode, further declared that she was positive that her brother had not married Mrs. Weston. Mrs. Weston was credited in an interview with saying that she had married Mr. Goode, but later denied this, saying that she was almost hysterical when interviewed and hardly accountable for anything she might have said.

"My mother is living in Paris with two of my brothers who are in business there and with my only sister," young Mr. Goode explained. "There is no domestic trouble in the family. About a month ago my father suffered a paralytic stroke in his office. It had worried him ever since. His eyesight in one eye was gone, and he feared that he would go totally blind. This, with the loss of his fourth son in Mexico last year, had seriously affected him. He went to Boston last Saturday, and when I arrived there on receipt of his telegram I found him almost unconscious from the effects of an overdose of morphine. He lived several days and suffered a great deal. I think he took the morphine to relieve his suffering. I am positive that his business interests had not depressed him, for everything is running smoothly and the projected railroad is now under way."

Mrs. Weston's only son, E. C. Weston, is general manager of the Cairo & Norfolk Railroad, with offices at Wickliffe, Ky. Keith L. Goode, oldest son of Mr. Goode, is the Paris representative of the Diamond Rubber Company; Rodger N. Goode, another son, is Paris representative of the Packard Motor Car Company.

THREE BISHOPS ELECTED.

Bishop Rowe of Alaska May Not Change to the South Dakota Field.

The House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church, at a special meeting in Calvary Church yesterday, elected the Rev. D. Trumbull Huntington Missionary Bishop of Wuhu, China; the Right Rev. Peter Trimble Rowe Missionary Bishop of South Dakota, and the Rev. Henry St. George Tucker Missionary Bishop of Kyoto.

Bishop Rowe has been Bishop of Alaska for years, and it is believed by many that he will not accept the new post. When he was elected Bishop of Nevada four years ago he declined to accept, saying: "I will never leave Alaska."

It is not known just what Bishop Tucker will do. He is at present President of St. Paul's College, Tokio. It is said he is very fond of his present charge. He is son of the Bishop Coadjutor of Virginia. The newly elected Bishop of Wuhu is well known in the China missionary field.

The House of Bishops accepted the resignation of Bishop Alexander MacKay-Smith of Pennsylvania, to take effect Feb. 10 next.

BARNES FACES JAIL UNLESS HE TESTIFIES

Osborne Gets a Court Order Compelling Him to Show Why He Is Not in Contempt.

PROSECUTOR UNDER FIRE

Albany Inquiry Committee to Examine All Indictments — Part a Real Estate Dealer Played.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 27.—On the affidavit of James W. Osborne, counsel of the Senate Committee which is investigating the affairs of Albany, Justice Joseph A. Kellogg of the Supreme Court to-day granted an order directing William Barnes, Jr., Chairman of the Republican State Committee, to show cause at Ballston on Monday why a warrant should not be issued directing the Albany County Sheriff to commit Mr. Barnes to jail there, to remain until he answers certain questions which he refused to answer before the Senate Committee. Included in the same proceeding is the refusal of Mr. Barnes to produce the books of The Albany Journal Company, of which he is the President.

This action is the first test in court of the contention of witnesses that the commitee has no power to compel a witness to divulge matters connected with his private business. Mr. Barnes was in New York to-day, and the papers in the action had not been served on him at the time the committee adjourned. It is expected that William M. Ivins of New York will represent Mr. Barnes in the proceeding. Justice Kellogg was formerly Deputy Attorney General, and was appointed a Justice by Gov. Dix to succeed the late Justice Spencer of Gloversville.

Mr. Osborne announced to-day that he had received a letter from Anthony Brady of New York, informing the committee that several years ago he bought thirty shares of the preferred stock of The Journal Company, for which he paid $3,000. Mr. Osborne asked for this information when Mr. Barnes and John H. Lindsay, Secretary and Treasurer of the Journal Company, refused to give the committee a list of the company's stockholders.

Mr. Osborne to-day began an investigation of the office of District Attorney Rollin B. Sanford. For two hours Mr. Sanford was questioned as to his policy in connection with the office. It was shown by the records that when the former District Attorney, George Addington, was about to leave the office for the position of County Judge, which he now holds, about 470 indictments were dismissed. At the request of the committee these indictments will be tabulated for the future scrutiny of the committee. It was also directed that the indictments now in the District Attorney's office which have not been pressed before a court, will also be examined by the committee.

Mr. Sanford as a witness justified the pigeon-holing of indictments under certain conditions, although he cited no instances. Mr. Osborne took the ground that indictments should be either pressed for trial or dismissed. He said that the holding of an indictment over the head of a person gave the bondsman a hold on the indicted person, and virtually deprived him of his liberty.

Witnesses stated yesterday that through the influence of New York lawyers three indictments for abduction against Mrs. May McNash, keeper of a disorderly resort in Albany, were dismissed by Mr. Sanford. In explanation Mr. Sanford said the indictments were found there prior to his induction into office. He investigated and found that he could not obtain the witnesses, and that a conviction was improbable. He therefore asked that the indictments be dismissed.

Timothy E. Kerwin, real estate witness, was a witness to-day. He had been accused of collecting money from Mrs. McNash for "protection." He made an absolute denial of the story, and said he had neither taken nor given graft. Kerwin, who is now involved in litigation with Mrs. McNash over the property which Kerwin took in lieu of money that the woman owed him, is a Republican worker, although he occupies no public office or position in the party organization. Kerwin had written a letter to Mrs. McNash while she was in Massachusetts, saying that he had "done well to have the indictments against her pigeon-holed for a time." This letter was introduced as evidence to-day.

Mr. Addington was District Attorney at that time. Mr. Kerwin said he did not have the indictments pigeon-holed. He admitted that his relations with Mr. Addington were friendly, and that he had indorse Mr. Adington's note for $500. Mr. Osborne endeavored to show that this money was a part of Mr. Addington's campaign contribution when he was nominated for County Judge, but Mr. Kerwin did not remember the date of the note.

Kerwin appealed to the court, declaring that someone was making a target of him in the investigation, and complaining that his property in respectable neighborhoods was being shadowed.

Reference was made again to the veiled woman who was introduced Wednesday as a witness against Commissioner Edward B. Cantine of the Department of Public Safety. Chairman Bayne of the committee said that while the committee had given instructions to have her brought back, the committee was puzzled by the fact that no one had expressed a desire to cross-examine her. The woman is said to be out of the jurisdiction of the committee. The hearing will be resumed Tuesday morning.

MRS. PANKHURST APPEALS.

Eager to Have Woman Suffrage Clause in Irish Home Rule Bill.

Mrs. Pankhurst, the English suffrage leader, who has been visiting Mrs. John Winters Brannan of 11 West Twelfth Street, for several weeks, yesterday issued an appeal on behalf of the Irish Women's Franchise League of Dublin, which is making a fight to have included in the proposed Irish Home Rule bill a clause enfranchising women. Mrs. Pankhurst had just returned from Louisville, Ky., where she addressed the convention of the National Woman's Suffrage party.

"I start for Bridgeport, Conn., this afternoon to begin a month's tour that will take me to Wisconsin and Kansas," said Mrs. Pankhurst, "and before I leave I want to say a word to the people of New York about the movement in Ireland. The Home Rule bill is now being drawn up to be introduced next year, but unless the bill gives women the right to vote such a law is not worthy of the name of self-government.

"The opponents of home rule in England have always attacked the home rule party because Mr. Redmond, T. P. O'Connor, and others have come to this country to get money to carry on the fight. They have said that the party is taking money from the poor Irish servant girls. There is no doubt that a large number of women here have aided the cause, and I think it would be doubly unjust, therefore, if they are not to see their sisters in Ireland benefited. The women in Ireland now vote on local administrative questions, having the same rights as the men. If they win their present fight they will vote with the men on legislative questions as well.

"I want to appeal to all men and women here of Irish birth or parentage to help the Irishwomen in their brave fight. A very active propaganda is going on in Ireland, but it takes money to carry on such a campaign, and I feel sure that these women will get the support they deserve."

The Women's Social and Political Union of this city, Mrs. Pankhurst said, had come out in support of the Irish Women's Franchise League on the principle that whatever the system of government prevailing in Ireland the women should have a share in it.

SERVICE COMMISSION TWICE CHECKS CRAM

Takes More Time to Pass on Dry Dock Storage Cars and Central Yard Changes.

SUGGESTS HE DO MORE WORK

To Which He Retorts That He Considers Meetings of the Committee of the Whole as Star Chamber Proceedings.

Commissioner Cram's recommendations to allow the Dry Dock, East Broadway & Battery Company to use storage battery cars and to sanction certain changes in the New York Central freight yards at Spuyten Duyvil were not accepted yesterday by the Public Service Commission.

Difficulties in the way of both recommendations were raised, and it was suggested that it would be well if Mr. Cram would attend the meetings of the Committee of the Whole, where such points might be conveniently thrashed out. Mr. Cram retorted that he considered such committee meetings star chamber proceedings and he preferred to do business in the open.

The Dry Dock matter came up first. Beside Commissioner Cram's recommendation for storage cars on all the company's lines, a motion of Commissioner Maltbie granting permission to use the cars only on the Avenue B line, on which they have been installed already, was before the commission.

A letter from Attorney General Carmody reported that he was awaiting certain information from the Corporation Counsel's office before beginning ouster suits against certain abandoned Dry Dock lines. Commissioner McCarroll thereupon moved that both Mr. Cram's and Mr. Maltbie's motion be laid aside for the time, and this was adopted, with only Mr. Cram objecting.

"Will you stop the operation of the storage battery cars already installed?" he asked the Chairman.

"Not at all," replied Mr. Willcox.

Commissioner Maltbie then submitted a memorandum contending that Mr. Cram's resolution would authorize the use of storage cars on certain old routes on which there were not only no horse cars, but not even tracks. Moreover, the Commisioner had forgotten the provision that there could not legally be any change in motive power without the consent of at least one-half of the abutting property owners.

The commisison then passed to the New York Central's freight yard plans. Commisioner Eustis, who comes from the Bronx, asked what stipulations had been made about the use of electricity in the new yards. Mr. Cram said that he had included in his order a provision that the yards should be equipped ellectrically as soon as practicable, but Mr. Eustis declared that this was not enough and that the use of electricity should be made an absolute condition for the change.

"If Mr. Cram's order is adopted," he said, "and we get after the company later to instal electricity it will plead the expense as an obstacle. The matter should be provided for now. I favor the improvement, but I want it carried out under proper conditions."

"I knew that nothing would be done," said Mr. Cram.

"How do you know that?" asked Chairman Willcox.

"Because whatever I report is disapproved," replied Mr. Cram.

It was suggested that these details ought to be discussed in Committee of the Whole, and then Mr. Cram made his remarks about star chamber proceedings.

To this Mr. Willcox retorted by asking if Mr. Cram knew of any body, even the Appellate Division, which did not have meetings for informal discussion.

Clarence E. Ferris and J. J. Dunn, counsel for a number of property holders in the Spuyten Duyvil district, asked that they might be heard by the commission as a whole, and with Mr. Cram's assent it was arranged that they should have their day in court after the regular meeting of the commission next Tuesday.

SENATOR WETMORE ILL.

Wife Sails from New York, Monday, to Join Him in Panama.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 27.—Mrs. George P. Wetmore, accompanied by Mr. Vail, secretary for Senator Wetmore, has gone to New York to sail for Panama, where Senator Wetmore was stricken with pneumonia a few days ago. Miss Wetmore also left for New York this evening. Roger Wetmore is with his father.

Senator Wetmore has been greatly interested in the Panama Canal, and recently went there with other Senators to inspect the work conducted by Col. George W. Goethals. Before starting he made plans for the opening of the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association here, and was looking forward to the expected visit of President Taft, who is to dedicate in November the new building given by Mrs. Thomas J. Emery of Newport and Cincinnati.

Mrs. Wetmore, with Mr. Vail and Miss Dunn, nurse, will sail for Panama next Monday, on a faster steamer than that sailing to-morrow. Miss Wetmore, who will join her mother in New York, will remain there until the steamer sails on Monday. Miss Keteltas, sister of Mrs. Wetmore, who is here, is receiving cables of Senator Wetmore's condition from Roger Wetmore. Senator Wetmore sailed for Panama Oct. 21.

EFFECT OF THE CANAL ON WORLD'S SHIPPING

Howard Houlder, British Expert, Discusses the Changes It Will Bring About.

OUR FUTURE FOOD SOURCE

Reciprocity with the Argentine, He Thinks, Should Replace Negotiations with Canada—Canal Tolls.

Howard Houlder, senior partner in the firms of Houlder, Middleton, Limited, and Houlder & Partners, Limited, of London, Glasgow, and Liverpool, who also operate the American and Orient Steamship Company from New York to China and Japan, and the American Rio Plata Company from New York to the Argentine, arrived here yesterday on the Mauretania on his way to the Pacific Coast. He is looked upon as one of the most experienced shipping men in Europe. He has been a ship owner for thirty-five years

Mr. Houlder is a firm believer in the benefit that will accrue to the maritime commerce of the world through the opening of the Panama Canal. He believes also that the United States will be compelled in the near future to make some kind of a reciprocity agreement with the Argentine Republic. In an interview with a TIMES reporter on the Mauretania yesterday Mr. Houlder said:

"If the United States does not make a treaty with Canada, which does not appear likely at present, her only alternative is reciprocity with Argentina. As a country emerges from being agricultural and pastoral into an industrial nation so will she have to alter her fiscal policy, not for free trade, but to provide food at lowest cost for the teeming millions in the industrial centres.

"In the cereal year ended Aug. 31 last Russia exported 216,000,000 bushels of wheat, Argentina 88,000,000 bushels, India 64,000,000 bushels, Australia 48,000,000 bushels, while the United States and Canada together only exported 56,000,000 bushels. The United States will cease to be a grain-exporting country owing to the increase of her population, while, with the Argentine producing more cheaply, it will pay the United States to get supplies from such a country.

"If present promises materialize," Mr. Houlder went on to say, "the Argentine will next year export 200,000,000 bushels of grain. Many far-seeing Americans have realized this and invested largely in real estate in the progressive South American republic. Nelson Morris & Co., who have a packing plant there, have purchased thousands of acres of land."

"What is your opinion of the effect on the world's shipping of the opening of the Panama Canal?" he was asked.

"The opening of the new waterway," said Mr. Houlder, "will revolutionize the traffic in certain parts of the world, and the nation most to benefit will naturally be the United States, because the ports which serve the centre of production on the Atlantic side are more adjacent to the Panama Canal than the European centres of production. This is a great opportunity for the United States to utilize new consuming markets in North and South America on the other side of the canal.

"Compared with ports in the United Kingdom, New York has 2,500 miles in her favor and New Orleans has 3,500 miles. It will be seen that New Orleans has the advantage over New York in being 1,000 miles nearer the Panama Canal, and this will be an important factor in developing trade from the Gulf.

"With regard to the trade to New Zealand, and in a lesser degree Australia, the advantage is not so great, there being very little difference from Great Britain between the Cape of Good Hope, Cape Horn, and the Suez Canal, and no object in European traffic utilizing the Panama Canal, especially as the cost of coaling in that route would be greater. As to the United States Atlantic trade to New Zealand, there would be a considerable saving in distance, as compared with alternate routes, but the increased cost of coaling would do away with that advantage.

"The greatest saving, of course, effected by the Panama Canal is in the combined trade to the west coast of South America and the Pacific Coast of North America. Instead of San Francisco being 13,000 miles from New York via Cape Horn, it will only be 5,500 via the canal, which will give New York an advantage of 2,000 miles over Liverpool."

"What are the foreign shipping companies doing now with regard to the opening of the Panama Canal?" he was asked.

"So far, ship owners have been unable to form any definite plans as to alteration of present trade routes until they know the dues the United States is going to charge. In my opinion, the charges should be based upon tonnage, while vessels of special type should not be penalized, as in the case of the Suez Canal, where the policy has tended to restrict the use of the canal and prevent the building of the best type of passenger liners in the trades using that waterway.

"It is inconceivable, however, that the Government of the United States can be so small as to make the charges so high as in any way to stifle the rapid development in the use of the Panama Canal. In my opinion, it will be in the interest of trade development throughout the world for the dues to be fixed without regard to the original cost of construction of the canal. The charges should be sufficient for the upkeep of the waterway. At first it might be even worked at a loss to develop the trade from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coasts.

"There is one thing certain, and that is, if the Panama Canal is to be a success the navigation laws of the United States must be changed. One of the first alterations should be to allow foreign built ships to be placed under the American flag. As a British ship owner, it is not to my interest to say this, but it is of enormous value to the commerce of the United States and would result in the building up of her mercantile marine, with the possibility of a big naval reserve in the future."

UNCLAD ON ANOTHER'S LAWN

He Had Been Ejected and His Clothes Followed from a Bedroom Window.

Special to The New York Times.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 27.—Night Sergt. Smith received a telephone message at Police Headquarters at 3 o'clock this morning informing him that a man was acting strangely in front of the residence of Adolf Engelke, at 157 West Palisade Avenue. Roundsman George Elliott hurried out and discovered a handsome, middle-aged man on the front lawn of the Engelke residence, attired only in a night dress and with a frightened look.

The policeman succeeded in getting some of the stranger's clothes from the Engelke house, trousers, shoes, and coat being thrown from the window of a bedroom. Thus arrayed, the stranger was taken before acting Mayor William Conklin, the complaining witness being Harry B. Brockhurst of Jersey City, a law partner of Engelke. Brockhurst's presence at the Engelke residence at so early an hour seems to have been part of the trap set for the stranger, who is Dr. Louis Lanning, retired, a widower, of Washington, N. J.

Mayor Conklin told Dr. Lanning he could be sent to the county jail at Hackensack and fined $200 for the offense charged, but he was let off with a fine of $50. Lawyer Thomas J. Huckin of Englewood, summoned as counsel for the doctor, contended that Dr. Lanning was at no time disorderly and was not trespassing because he was invited to the Engelke home. Lawyer Huckin has filed notice of appeal.

Dr. Lanning was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Engelke on last Saturday and Sunday. His face showed evidences of rough treatment, and he told the police that he had been ejected in other than a gentlemanly manner. One of his eyes was nearly closed. At the hearing before acting Mayor Conklin not a word was said about what occurred in the Engelke home before Dr. Lanning's appearance on the lawn in his bare limbs.

Harry B. Brockhurst and Adolf Engelke compose the law firm of Brockhurst & Engelke. The office is in the Lincoln Trust Company's Building, 76 Montgomery Street, Jersey City.

MADE FIRST VOTERS PAY $1.

New Kind of Election Fraud Charged Against Ninth District Board.

Election frauds were brought to the attention of the authorities yesterday when Samuel S. Kemp, Democrat, of 97 Forsyth Street; Morris Krumbline, Democrat, of 299 Broome Street; Edward Weinstein, Republican, of 99 Forsyth Street, and Jacob Goldberg, Republican, of 303 Broome Street, were arrested, charged with ordering first voters to pay $1 to register in the Eighth Assembly District.

All four men were members of the Election Board of the Ninth Election District of the Eighth Assembly District, and it is alleged that on Oct. 13 they made Dr. Samuel Ratner of 118 Eldridge Street and Perry Diamond, both first voters, pay $1 each to register. They were arraigned before Magistrate Barlow in the Tombs Court, and held in $1,000 bail.

Dr. Ratner said he was informed by Krumbine when he came to register that he must pay $1 under the new law. He was followed by Louis Diamond and his son, Perry. Perry registered and Krumbine, it is alleged, said in the presence of the elder Diamond:

"Here, $1 please."

Diamond said he protested, but that Krumbine said it was a new law, and that he paid the $1 for his son. All the men pleaded not guilty.

Assistant District Attorney Stryker says there are numerous other complaints against the four defendants, and that there is a clear case of extortion against them.

WRIGHT TAKES GLIDER HOME.

Satisfied with Results, but Will Continue Tests at Dayton, Ohio.

KILL DEVIL HILL, N. C., Oct. 27.—Orville Wright to-day concluded his experiments with the glider, by which he hoped to solve the problem of automatically stabilizing heavier-than-air machines. He will leave to-morrow for Dayton, Ohio, and the glider will be taken along for further experiments near that city.

Alexander Ogilvie, the English aviator, who has been assisting Wright, also will leave at the same time for New York, whence he will sail for London. Neither Wright nor Ogilvie would comment on the success of the tests, but Wright apparently was satisfied with results.

TARKINGTON TO PRINCETON.

Has Rented a Home for the Winter Near His Alma Mater.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 27.—Booth Tarkington, novelist and playwright, has rented the residence of Malcolm Stewart, just outside of Princeton, for the Winter months, and has signified his intention of spending most of his time here this year. It is understood that Mr. Tarkington will write a novel this Winter, in which the atmosphere of the college town will play a big part. Mr. Tarkington is a graduate of Princeton.

Mr. Stewart is an artist, who will spend the Winter in study abroad. His home is attractively decorated.

Left $41,000 to St. Luke's Hospital.

A bequest of $41,000 to St. Luke's Hospital to endow several memorial beds and to add to the general endowment fund of the hospital was contained in the will of Phebe Lawrence Swords, who died on Oct. 17. The will was filed for probate yesterday. It also gives $20,000 to Columbia University, part of which is to establish a medical scholarship; $10,000 to the Society for the Relief of the Destitute Blind, $1,000 to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $5,000 to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and $50,000 and her personal effects to her aunt, Phebe Caroline Lawrence.

URGE DIX TO VETO EQUAL PAY BILL

All Members of Estimate Board Except Gaynor and Connolly Plead for Home Rule.

PROMISE TO ADJUST WAGES

If Time Is Allowed to Change the Davis Law So as to Eliminate Mandatory Provision.

All the members of the Board of Estimate, except Mayor Gaynor and Borough President Connolly of Queens, in a letter sent to Gov. Dix yesterday, went on record against the Equal Pay bill for school teachers, which Mayor Gaynor signed earlier in the week. The signers of the letter are Controller Prendergast, President Mitchel of the Aldermen, and Borough Presidents McAneny, Steers, Miller, and Cromwell. They ask the Governor to veto the bill on several grounds, the principal ones being that it is a violation of the principle of home rule, and that better results in the matter of equalizing salaries can be obtained by amending the present Davis law.

The signers had asked Gov. Dix to grant a public hearing before he acted on the bill, but the Governor called up President McAneny yesterday, and told him that it would save time if the majority members of the Board of Estimate would sum up their objections in the form of a brief.

In this brief the signers remind the Governor that immediately upon the organization of the Board of Estimate in 1910 a special commission was appointed by the board to inquire into the compensation of New York's school teachers, and that after the commission's report the Department of Education undertook the preparation of schedules which would eliminate discrimination in compensation existing under the Davis law on account of sex.

Recognizing that the discrimination in compensation due to sex is unreasonable, the signers point out that when, a year ago, the Board of Estimate tried to increase the compensation of first grade teachers it was prevented by the mandatory provisions of the Davis law. The cure for the difficulty, the brief says, lies not in the establishment of new schedules by mandatory legislation, but by an amendment of the present law in order that the local authorities may have power to fix the rates of compensation of teachers without respect to the rates established in the Davis law, "except that those rates for women teachers shall be regarded as a minimum in any readjustment which may be made."

These are the reasons advanced against the bill:

1. To vindicate the principle that we believe is even more fundamental than the principle of pay for position, namely, the principle of home rule, so emphatically and so effectively announced by your Excellency. We believe it is just as true of teachers' salaries and of educational problems as of all other problems of city government, as you stated in your annual message of 1911 and in your Chicago address of September, 1911.

2. It takes from the Board of Estimate power and responsibility for settling the great questions involved in a necessary readjustment of teachers' salaries which the board is prepared to exercised if released from the practical prohibitions of the Davis law.

3. The bill establishes as an irreducible minimum a salary schedule that was fixed in May, 1911, as the result not of scientific study but of a great deal of compromise, a great deal of haste, and a great deal of misunderstanding. It makes permanent and aggravates a large number of inequalities between teacher and teacher of different grades, and unscientific disparity between the pay of Principals and teachers that may easily prove as serious in their educational results as are present inequalities between men and women. For example, the increase of $1,000 in the minimum salary for a small class of assistants to Principals, heads of departments, &c., will certainly be considered disproportionate to the total salary of $1,020 paid a teacher in her eighth year.

4. Notwithstanding the large increase in numerous salaries and the resulting great addition to the expense of government, the proposed law does not give to the local authorities much needed power to standardize and adjust salaries in any case where justice would require the lowering of a schedule. It unfairly ties the hands of New York City so that if serious inequalities should develop in the working out of this schedule, which no one yet understands and which has not yet been put in force and tried, there would be no authority outside the Legislature itself to remedy such inequalities.

5. The Board of Estimate has under way a school inquiry on a comprehensive scale conducted by recognized experts, the results of whose work will undoubtedly show the need for modifying various salary schedules. Legislation should not be required to enable the local authorities to avail themselves of approved recommendations of these experts looking toward increasing the efficiency of the schools.

6. There is no reason why the Legislature should force upon New York City, with a population of 5,000,000, minimum, unchangeable schedules that it would not endeavor to force upon cities of 100,000 or 25,000. Such treatment of New York City we regard as unwarranted special legislation and class legislation. From such action by the Legislature taken in great haste we appeal to you as Governor.

The signers say they feel justified in believing that the Governor's purpose in sending his emergency message to the Legislature was to obtain for the teachers of this city recognition of the principle of pay for position and not to foist upon the taxpayers of New York City a mandatory increase of salaries which, until the law is amended or repealed, would leave the local representatives of the citizenship of New York without power to adjust them in any respect.

The members of the board opposed to the bill promises the Governor, if he vetoes it, that they will undertake to present to the next Legislature a bill to give to the Board of Education and the Board of Estimate power to establish salary schedules for the teachers under the Davis law schedule "for women teachers as a minimum which will remove existing inequalities and unjust discrimination because of sex," that they will recognize the principle of pay for position and increase the compensation of such teachers as are now admittedly underpaid.

President Miller added a qualifying note to the effect that he did not care to commit himself as to the proposal of legislation on behalf of the Board of Estimate next year, or as to the character of the recommendations he would then care to make.

BROTHERS FOR EACH OTHER.

Each Asks the Court to Send Him to Jail and Let Other Go.

"Send me to prison, but let my brother go free to look after mother," was the plea that both John O'Donnell and his brother William made for each other to Judge O'Sullivan, in General Sessions, yesterday, when they were arraigned before him for sentence after pleading guilty to assault.

Both boys pleaded guilty to assaulting Frank Barron of 277 East 148th Street, the Bronx. Yesterday their mother appeared in court, and taking a seat in the rear of the room anxiously awaited the appearance of her two boys. When they were arraigned for sentence, John, the elder of the two said:

"Please, your Honor, give me the limit, but let Billy go free so he can look after mother."

"No, don't do that; let John go free and take care of mother," pleaded William.

Judge O'Sullivan then asked for the mother and she walked up and pleaded for her boys, and the Judge said:

"It has been reported to me by Mr. Kimball, the probation officer, that you boys are the sole support of your mother, and here you appear before me in human brotherly fashion and each of you plead for the other. Well, it is not as you wish it to be all the time, but it would have been if you had not gotten into this trouble. Mr. John Hodges of 318 Mott Avenue is quite desirous of employing John O'Donnell, and while it is unfortunate that two brothers should be taken away from their widowed mother, it is their fault and not the laws. On account of the fact that John has borne a fair reputation he may go on a suspended sentence, but you, William, will go to Elmira."

Both boys thanked the Judge in one voice, and turning around shook hands and kissed their mother. Then William turned again and grasping his brother's hand said:

"Good-bye, John; be good to mother."

"Good-bye, Billy, and don't make any bad friends in Elmira," sobbed John as he placed his arm about his mother and led her sobbing from the courtroom.

8-CAR TRAINS FOR $2,000,000.

Increased Elevated Service for This, E. G. Connette Tells Commission.

E. G. Connette, Transportation Engineer of the Public Service Commission, said yesterday at the final hearing on the proposed increase of elevated trains from seven to eight cars during the rush hours that in his opinion the cost to the Interborough Company, exclusive of damages to property owners for lengthened stations and the burden of increased equipment, would be $2,000,000. In this he took issue with Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the Interborough, who had testified that the cost would be $10,000,000, and had declared that he would not assume responsibility for operating eight-car trains without reinforcement of the elevated structures.

The main expense, acording to Mr. Connette, would be the strengthening of draw-bars and couplings, which he put at $1,260,000, and he estimated that it would cost another $250,000 to lengthen and widen the stations. There are other matters, such as the improvement of the signal and switch systems, and the enlargements of terminals, which he had not had time to figure up, but he thought that $2,000,000 should cover all these.

CLUBWOMEN HONOR TEACHERS' LEADER

Miss Strachan, Who Directed Equal Pay Fight, Guest at the City Federation Convention.

MANY TELEGRAMS TO DIX

Who Has Not Yet Signed the Teachers' Bill—Club Work Extended to the Temperance Field.

The New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. William Grant Brown presiding, held its twenty-sixth annual convention yesterday in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor, an all-day session with a buffet luncheon served in the hotel. There were 279 delegates and many guests present. The ballroom was decorated with United States flags, and a new federation banner was presented to the convention at the morning session by Mrs. Edwin Palmer, the Federation's Chairman on Art. The banner was painted by Mrs. Palmer, the name of the Federation at the top with the emblem of the organization, and below a graceful female figure in draperies of green and white, the federation colors.

There were many guests of honor, and the one received with the most enthusiasm was Miss Grace Strachan, leader of the teachers in their equal-pay fight.

There was prolonged cheering when Miss Strachan was introduced, for the federation women have put themselves on record at their different conventions as standing for equal pay, and they stood to honor the equal-pay fight leader. This was more than they had done for Superintendent of Schools Maxwell, (who has not stood for equal pay,) and whom some irony of fate, or accident in the convention arrangements, had also seen made one of the honor guests of the day.

"Gov. Dix is not very happy to-day, I think," said Mrs. Brown, standing with one arm around Miss Strachan, as she introduced her. "He has received 100 telegrams"—

"One hundred and nine," corrected Mrs. Yawger, the federation Secretary, rising.

"One hundred and nine," continued Mrs. Brown, accepting the correction. "We also found that the Governor was taking luncheon at St. George, and we have sent a telegram there, and there are many others on the way."

"I am sure this ought to be an object lesson to Supt. Maxwell," said Miss Strachan, with her slow drawl. She thanked the women for herself and the 14,000 other teachers she represented, and again took her seat on the platform. Supt. Maxwell listened with an amiable smile, but took his leave immediately after.

The federation women are broadening their affiliations, and yesterday a notable step was made in this direction when they voted to appoint a standing committee on total abstinence, with Mrs. Ella A. Boole, the W. C. T. U. leader, as Chairman. They also passed a resolution to have police matrons appointed for moving picture shows and other places of amusement, and one asking for the suppression of immoral pictures in moving picture shows, mentioning the Binford pictures as an example of those undesirable.

Mrs. Phillip Moore, President of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs, visited the convention during the afternoon and was received with applause. In a short address she said that the general federation barred politics, prohibition, and religion from its discussions.

"I have been quoted as an anti-suffragist," she said, "but I am glad to prophesy that citizenship is coming to the women of America. [Applause.] The subject I would like to have considered now is: 'Are we ready for citizenship?'"

"Yes," called a voice.

"Yes, I think we are," said Mrs. Moore.

"I hate simplified spelling," said Supt. Maxwell, who spoke upon that subject. "My eyes for a good bit over fifty years have been accustomed to the old form, and I abominate writing 'thru' for through, and to write to some one that she has not 'past' in her examinations, but I advocate it because I believe that it will be for the cause of individual and social uplift." He then spoke of the many foreigners in the schools, and the help the simplified spelling would be to them.

The federation, representing 72,000 women, sent a telegram of congratulation to the National Suffrage Convention in session at St. Louis upon the suffrage victory of the California women.

Gimbel Overcoats And Suits for Men

Are Tailored By Masters of Their Craft

Good tailoring cannot be taught by rule-o'-thumb—it's little short of genius. Also, every tailor cannot get the same results out of a given quantity of material, lining, buttons and thread. Good style is difficult to define—but recognizable at a glance. We have seen to it that Gimbel Clothing shall be characterized throughout by good style. Therefore, it is made by tailors with whom good style is instinctive.

So it has already won its way with the men of New York who dress well themselves, and appreciate good taste in dress in others.

Come and see the new Suits and the new Fall and Winter Overcoats, and you will realize what we mean. In their well-chosen fabrics, their inconspicuous styles, and their splendid tailoring, they deprive a man of a valid excuse to go to a custom tailor's.

TWENTY-FOUR SHIPS JOIN HUDSON FLEET

Among Them the Little Petrel, Which Fought in the Battle of Manila Bay.

TWO NIGHT SPECTACLES

500 Red Cross Nurses Special Guests Aboard Yesterday—Payday for the Men To-day.

The fleet of warships in the Hudson was increased yesterday by twenty-four ships, the two dozen being the battleship New Hampshire, the cruiser San Francisco, the gunboats Marietta, Petrel, Castine, and Severn, the torpedo boats Bagley, Dahlgren, De Long, Stringham, Dupont, Biddle, and Shubrick, the submarines Grayling, Bonita, Narwhal, Salmon, Snapper, Stingray, Tarpon, and Octopus and the auxiliaries Neptune, Mars, Ajax, and Vulcan.

With the cruiser San Francisco, now officially designated as a mine planter, leading the way, the twenty-four ships steamed into the Hudson early in the afternoon. The big New Hampshire came to anchor between the Vermont and Minnesota, her sister ships, while the others, with the exception of two of the torpedo boats, proceeded north of 125th Street.

The gunboats came along together, the Marietta leading, and as they passed by the great modern ironclads more than one officer referred to the splendid history that is behind two of these little vessels. The two are the Petrel and the Marietta. The Petrel will be the only vessel in the review next Wednesday that was of the squadron that fought the battle of Manilla Bay on May 1, 1898, under Admiral Dewey. The Petrel was the only American vessel that was light enough to follow the Spanish ships into shallow waters, and eight of the vessels that were put out of commission in the battle owed their ill luck to the Petrel.

On that day the young officer who was in the fighting top of the Petrel keeping tab on the diminishing distance between Dewey's ships and the Spaniards was Lieut. Bradley A. Fiske. When the Petrel passed up the river yesterday Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske stood on the bridge of his division flagship, the armored cruiser Washington, and saluted the little gunboat, on board of which he fought the Spanish ships in Manila Bay. Commander Charles P. Plunkett, now commanding the auxiliary Culgoa, one of the vessels in the Hudson, was also on the Petrel at Manila.

After the Petrel came the Marietta, famous as a peace preserver in Central American waters and as the little ship that came part of the way with the Oregon when that battleship made the great run from the Pacific Coast to Santiago.

When the San Francisco, under command of Commander W. H. G. Bullard, came steaming in yesterday the civilians ashore and those visiting on the battleships noted what a young Red Cross nurse termed "a piazza astern." In the Spanish War one of the few hits made by the Spaniards took off a considerable part of the stern of the San Francisco. Instead of replacing the part carried away the constructors made a platform, at one end of which is an open space over the water. The mines are rolled out on the platform and dropped through the open space, simplifying what was once a very tedious and painstaking job for naval officers.

The eight submarines, led by the Narwhal, appeared in the river about 3 P. M. close together. They did not slow down for any courtesies, but kept on up to West 134th Street, where they made fast to the "mother boats" Castine and Severn. The big colliers Neptune, Mars, Vulcan, and Ajax came along just ahead of the submarines. The only striking thing about them was their ugliness and bigness.

Red Cross Nurses Special Guests.

All of the battleships entertained crowds yesterday, among the visitors being 500 Red Cross nurses who were the special guests of the fleet. They traveled from ship to ship in navy steamers specially assigned to transport them, and they had the time of their lives. The fleet and ship surgeons saw to it that the women who will care for the wounded and ill in the event of war saw everything that was to be seen about the ships. On the flagship Connecticut the nurses were presented to Admiral Osterhaus, the commander in chief.

Also among the visitors were scores of girls. A crowd of ten chaperoned by a young matron arrived on the Connecticut early in the afternoon. The chaperon walked up to one of the senior officers.

"Mr. Officer," she said, "I have ten girls with me and I would like to know if you can assign some one to show us the ship?"

"Do you know any one on board the ship?" asked the officer.

"I think I know Midshipman Ralph Risley," the chaperon replied.

"Ah, that settles it, he's yours for the asking and as long as you want him," the officer replied, gallantly, and calling a bluejacket he issued an order for Midshipman Risley to show the party over the ship. Risley smilingly obeyed.

On the dreadnought North Dakota one of the bluejackets on deck duty saw a navy steamer coming in from another battleship. In the steamer were two naval officers and a civilian.

"Sir," said the bluejacket to the officer of the deck.

"A steamer with two naval officers and a gentleman aboard is coming up astern."

"All right," replied the officer, trying hard to look as if he did not see anything funny in the way the information was imparted.

Another incident which occurred about 5 P. M. on Thursday afternoon is laughingly referred to aboard the ships. On the Connecticut was a bulletin board, on which the wireless returns of the last game between the Giants and Athletics was bulletined. A newspaper photographer came on board and got permission to take a photograph of the bluejackets watching the board. The photographer stayed in front of the board until the game was over and left the ship. As he was going an officer asked him if he got a picture.

"No," said the photographer, "my orders were to get one when New York won, and—Oh, well, that's enough," and off went the picture man.

To-day is payday in the fleet, and an average of about $35 a man will be paid out. When all of the ships now here and those that are due in the next forty-eight hours are paid off approximately $875,000 will have been turned over to the men. It is certain that a large part of this sum will be left in New York.

Admiral Osterhaus made public at noon yesterday the order to the fleet for the inspection on Tuesday and the review on Wednesday by the Secretary of the Navy. The official programme follows:

Tuesday, Oct. 31.

The Secretary and his guests will arrive on the Dolphin and Mayflower, near the fleet flagship at about 2 P. M.

The Connecticut will salute the Secretary's flag.

Immediately thereafter the Commander in Chief, Division Commanders, and the Commander of the Torpedo Fleet will pay their respects to the Secretary on board the Dolphin. Division Commanders and Commander of the Torpedo Fleet will assemble on board the Connecticut by 1:30 P. M.

The Secretary will then visit each division flagship, and possibly other ships. The Secretary will use his own barge. Commanding officers of the ships of the several divisions will assemble on board their respective division flagships by 2:30 P. M. Commanders of divisions of the torpedo fleet will assemble on board the Dixie by 3 P. M.

The visit of the Secretary will be followed by visits from the Senate Naval Committee and the House Naval Committee, in succession.

Each ship of the first division will provide a steamer for the naval committees; the Connecticut and Michigan for that of the Senate, the Delaware and North Dakota for that of the House.

The navigators and ordnance officers of the ships of the first division will act as aids for the naval committees, and will accompany them from ship to ship and until they return to the Dolphin and Mayflower.

Ships visited will render the prescribed honors without special permission.

The commanding officers of the Utah and Florida will have steamers ready to convey the Secretary and his guests to two destroyers, which will be ready near the Utah and Florida to return the Secretary and his party to the Dolpin and Mayflower.

The commander of the topedo fleet will detail two destroyers for the duty mentioned in the preceding paragraph; one for the Secretary and his party, the other for the Naval Committees.

The Second Division commander will have four steamers in the vicinity of the Dolphin and the Mayflower to transfer the committees from the destroyers.

Wednesday, Nov 1.

On Nov. 1 the Secretary will review the fleet at anchor. The Dolphin and Mayflower will get under way at about 10 A. M. and pass to the northward between the column of battleships and the column of destroyers. They will turn to the eastward at the upper end of the fleet and return to the southward between the battleships and the eastern shore.

The Dolphin and Mayflower will then proceed to a point near Staten Island to review the fleet as it passes to sea.

At about 1:30 P. M. the battleships, (except the Maine, Iowa, Massachusetts, and Indiana,) the armored cruisers, and the destroyers will get under way and stand down the river in column, natural order; distance, 400 yards; 800 yards interval between divisions. The destroyers will follow the armored cruisers in double column. Speed, 12 knots.

Dispersion of Fleet.

After passing the Narrows those ships which return to the Navy Yard, New York, will leave the formation upon signal and carry out their orders.

After passing out of Ambrose Channel the fleet will disperse and proceed in accordance with instructions.

After the fleet gets under way and stands out the ships temporarily attached to the Atlantic fleet will consider themselves detached and will carry out their instructions.

Instead of one night of illumination New Yorkers are to be treated to two of those splendid spectacles, one next Monday and another the following night. The searchlight drill will also take place Monday night.

On the day of the inspection the barge used by the Secretary can be identified by civilians by his blue flag with four stars arranged in the shape of a square, in the centre being an anchor. The same flag will indicate the vessel used by Secretary Meyer on the day of the review.

MACFARLAND TO WED GIRL.

Counsel Says He'll Marry Miss Bromley Before His Trial for Murder.

Frank M. McDermit, counsel for Allison MacFarland, indicted in Newark on the charge of killing his wife with cyanide of potassium on Oct. 17, declared yesterday that his client would be married to Miss Florence Bromley of Philadelphia before MacFarland is brought to trial. Letters exchanged by MacFarland and Miss Bromley form an important part of the prosecution's case.

The object of the marriage, Mr. McDermit said, was to preclude any possibility of having Miss Bromley testify against MacFarland.

When Prosecutor Mott was told of the proposed marriage he smiled and said he was not the least bit interested. He said that Miss Bromley could enter New Jersey without fear of arrest. "I will even see that she gets a pass to the jail, and do all in my power to see that the ceremony is performed," he added. "We do not need Miss Bromley as a witness; her letters are enough."

Mr. Mott said that MacFarland would be called to plead on Monday before Judge Davis in the Court of Oyer and Terminer.

When the members of the Grand Jury that indicted MacFarland were inspecting the Essex County Jail on Thursday afternoon the prisoner made a brief statement to several of them as they were passing his cell. He declared that his indictment was "nothing short of an outrage." He repeated what he had said before, that he had plenty of reason for desiring a divorce, but none to murder.

While Mr. McDermit and Prosecutor Mott were discussing the MacFarland case informally yesterday Mr. McDermit insisted that he believed that his client was innocent of the charge of poisoning his wife. Then Mr. Mott remarked:

"Frank, why didn't he send her that ring?"

When asked to explain the significance of the remark Mr. Mott said that it did not concern those outside of the case. Mr. McDermit likewise refused to talk about the incident. It was interpreted by those who heard it to mean that in one of MacFarland's letters he promised Miss Bromley a ring.

Mr. McDermit said in reply to a question that there was nothing in Miss Bromley's letters which shows any connection with the murder charge. All that is contained in the letters, the attorney said, are threats to commit suicide or come to Newark and expose MacFarland's double-dealing unless he married her.

MacFarland gave out to-night the following statement in his own handwriting:

"For the information of my friends.

"For about five years my wife and myself have been considering a separation, which we realized to be inevitable. Neither of us could enter into the pleasures or pursuits of the other. My wife's tastes and instincts were all domestic, while mine were otherwise.

"We did not consider either of us at fault. It simply was our misfortune to be badly mated. We lived our lives largely apart. My wife was in Maine a great part of the time.

"We have not lived together as man and wife for more than two years. Our life was not filled with quarrels, but we were much happier apart. We had often talked divorce.

"I would not take any action toward a separation until I was in a financial position to insure my wife's separate support and comfort. While she was in Maine I went without actual necessities to send her money.

"I have never spoken of my wife in other than terms of affection and respect. I did not charge her with extravagance, as printed. The statement that she remained in the house all Summer for lack of clothes is a fair sample of the lot.

"We were at the fashionable hotels at Point Pleasant, Green Pond, and up the Hudson, and New York theatres on more than a dozen trips, some lasting several days, in the last three months, and costing me more than $100. We took these trips as often as possible to break the monotony of home life and to forget our troubles.

"We reached an agreement this Summer on the divorce question, and there remained nothing to prevent its speedy accomplishment. Our enforced association was much more of a hardship on myself than it was on my wife. She required much less to make her contented, and had her home, while I had nothing. She was much better contented in Maine as long as she had enough money.

"She had my sympathy and respect, as I realized that, while she could get along happily with me, properly mated she would be perfectly happy. I thought she was entitled to another chance and a new deal, as well as myself. Her instincts were for peace and tranquility.

"When our affairs became unsettled she had the choice of remaining with me and taking one-half of things, as I had them, or going to Maine until it blew over. She always chose Maine and refused to come back until things were more prosperous, as her letters will show.

"I made no objection or criticism, but maintained that under all the circumstances our divorce was justified and better for us both, regardless of third parties."

BRICKMAKERS WIN FIGHT.

City to Build No Concrete Firehouses—Austin's Flood Taught a Lesson.

Special to The New York Times.

FISHKILL, N. Y., Oct. 27.—After several months of fighting, the Greater New York Brick Manufacturers' Association has won its fight against the use of concrete for the construction of firehouses and other city buildings in New York.

Some months ago the price of brick dropped, owing to the overstocked condition of the New York market. This overstock the manufacturers asserted was due to the discarding of brick for concrete. The situation became so grave that most of the yards along the river were compelled to reduce their output, and this brought about the organization of the Association to induce the City of New York to use brick for its buildings.

At the time specifications had just been drawn for twenty-one firehouses, all of concrete. A committee was appointed to take up the matter and at a meeting of the association to-day it reported that the specifications had been changed and contracts awarded for five brick buildings. The contracts for the other sixteen firehouses have not yet been awarded, but these also will be of brick.

About 3,500,000 bricks will be used in the construction of the five houses, and the sixteen will require 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 bricks. Two or three other municipal buildings in New York will probably be constructed of brick, due to the efforts of the committee.

The committee reported also that in proposed buildings in New York 85,000,000 to 130,000,000 bricks will be used. In its arguments for brick construction the committee used two pictures of brick houses in Austin, Penn., the only buildings left standing following the recent flood caused by the breaking of the concrete dam. Concrete houses were swept away.

M'NAMARA LAWYER HALTS THE TRIAL

JUDGE WILL NOT YIELD

Prosecutor Fredericks Breaks Deadlock by Demanding that Judge Bordwell Select a Jury.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 27.—Clarence Darrow, counsel for James B. McNamara, who is on trial for the murder of Charles J. Haggerty, a machinist, killed in The Los Angeles Times explosion, refused to-day to go on with the trial until the court ruled on two challenges by the defense. The action of the attorney was taken for purposes of record and to force Judge Bordwell to indicate the time to be taken by the court in passing upon challenges. The lawyers for the defense assert that unless challenges are decided at the time, the attorneys cannot tell whether it is necessary to use their right of peremptory challenge. By knowing the exact status of each man in the box they can reserve and save their peremptory rights.

This was the third day that A. C. Winter, a challenged talesman, sat in the box. Late in the day Walter L. Frampton, a farmer, was challenged because he said he believed both James B. McNamara and his brother, John J. McNamara, were guilty of murder in connection with The Times disaster.

The court deferred ruling on Frampton, and Darrow stopped the trial.

"I am going to ask to have the challenge passed on now. I want the ruling of the court," said Mr. Darrow when the court had announced that he would examine the record in the Frampton case.

"No, Mr. Darrow," said Judge Bordwell, "there is no occasion for a remark like that. I am going to take time to examine this record."

"I am going to make my record," said Mr. Darrow, "and ask the court to pass on it now, and refuse to go on unless it is passed on, and we know who is in the box, both as to Frampton and Winter, neither of whom, in my opinion, should be here a minute. I object to their acting with the other jurors."

"Mr. Darrow, this case will not be pased on until to-morrow," repeated the court.

"Then we refuse to go on. It is fair to us to know what kind of jurors we have when we make our examination, so we may know what kind of men we have got to challenge peremptorily, and what kind of men will be stricken off by the court upon what we believe is sufficient showing of cause. I am going to ask to have the jury box filled, and have every motion passed on, every challenge passed on, as we go along."

The Court—Now, Mr. Darrow, I am not going to pass upon this matter until to-morrow morning. That is settled.

Mr. Darrow—Then we are going to object to the examination of any further jurors until the matter is passed on, both as to this juror and the other, Mr. Winter.

The Court—Do you desire to have the box filled?

Mr. Darrow—Yes, Sir.

The Court—At the present time?

Mr. Darrow—Yes, Sir.

The Court—Very well, fill the box.

The box was filled, and the Judge asked the new talesmen if they were opposed to the death penalty, and then turned to Mr. Darrow:

"Do counsel for the defense, wish to examine them?" he asked.

"We refuse to go on until we know what jurors are in the box—until our challenges are disposed of," said Mr. Darrow.

Prosecutor Fredericks here interrupted the colloquy:

"We ask the court to examine the jury, then select a jury himself."

"We will examine them if the court says we must go on," said Darrow, and the court replied:

"That is the ruling, Mr. Darrow. You must proceed."

Darrow entered an objection, which was overruled, and took an exception, and the trial was resumed.

At the afternoon session Talesman Russe further explained his opposition to capital punishment, and was challenged for cause and implied bias, Judge Bordwell allowing the challenge.

Nineteen new veniremen were obtained out of the second venire summoned in the McNamara murder trial. Eleven others were excused at a preliminary hearing to-day before Judge Bordwell, and ten were not served with summonses because they were out of the county. Sheriff Hammol and his Deputies worked all night summoning men whose names were drawn yesterday.

In the box at present are A. C. Winter, under challenge by the defense for cause, and the four talesmen who have been passed by both sides for cause.

The principles upon which each side has been interpreting Section 1,076 of the Penal Code covering provisions on the qualifications of jurors are at present fairly well defined, and it is believed that future examinations, therefore, will go forward much more smoothly and rapidly.

The questions which each side considers vital have resolved themselves into the following:

1—Whether a talesman believes in capital punishment.

2—Whether he has an opinion of the guilt or innocence of the defendant which he could not remove.

Whether he has also a fixed opinion as to the cause of the explosion which he could not remove.

4—Whether he has made personal investigation of the wreckage of The Times Building and taken a special interest in the case.

Fixed prejudice against labor unions of itself thus far has not been effective in barring talesmen, but usually the defense has been able to show the linking of such an opinion with a prejudice against the defendant, who is a member of a union, and challenges manipulated that way have been allowed.

Any man who has not ideas on unionism, who has neither said much nor thought much of the McNamara case, and who has not any scruples against capital punishment is pretty sure to get on the jury, but thus far the combination has been rare.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 27.—Ortie E. McManigal may be subpoenaed to appear before the Federal Grand Jury in this district early in November to testify in its investigation of the so-called McNamara dynamiting cases.

McManigal, it is pointed out, could be brought to this city from Los Angeles, examined, and returned to California before he will be needed as a witness in the trial of James B. McNamara.

WHITE SLAVERS SENTENCED.

Solow May Have to Spend 34 Years in Prison—Short Term for Cohen.

Philip Solow, recently convicted of selling seventeen-year-old Eloise Wendt of Pittsburgh into slavery, was sentenced by Judge Foster in General Sessions yesterday to not less than ten or more than twenty years in Sing Sing and to pay a fine of $5,000. Solow broke down and begged for mercy. The sentence, together with the fine, makes it possible for Solow, who is 21 years old, to spend his next thirty-four years in Sing Sing.

Morris and Lena Cohen of 208 Forsyth Street were found guilty yesterday in the United States Circuit Court of conspiring to violate the Federal statute against the white slave traffic. Judge Hough sentenced Cohen to the maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine. His wife, Lena, was remanded for sentence till Monday. Jennie Luretta of Hartford, Conn., who was arrested at the same time as the Cohens, pleaded guilty before being called to trial. Judge Hough intimated that he would turn her over to her friends on her promise to reform.

BUSINESS TO FRONT THE MORGAN HOME

Arthur P. Heinze's House Across the Way Advertised for Uses of Trade.

SHOPS GAINING ALL AROUND

Efforts to Stem the Tide in the Restricted Murray Hill District Have Been Unavailing.

The residential exclusiveness of J. Pierpont Morgan's Madison Avenue block between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh Street is threatened by a business invasion. Immediately opposite Mr. Morgan's big brownstone house on the northeast corner of Thirty-sixth Street a large sign was placed yesterday on the four-story dwelling at 222 Madison Avenue reading "To rent for residence or business."

The house so placarded is the home of Arthur P. Heinze, brother of F. Augustus Heinze of copper fame, and who with his other brother, Otto, was a member of the brokerage firm of Otto Heinze & Co., whose failure precipitated bank difficulties in the panic of 1907.

Arthur Heinze was convicted of obstructing justice in causing the disappearance of some much-needed books of the United Copper Company, and he was sentenced to ten days in the Tombs. He fought the case for a year, but finally in October, 1910, served his sentence.

Mr. Heinze and his family are now occupying the house. Title to the property up to a short time ago was held by Mrs. Heinze, but it was ascertained yesterday that the house is now owned by a holding company, of which Mr. Heinze is President.

Mr. Heinze and his family are ready to move out at a few days' notice, according to Ernestus Gulick of the Ernestus Gulick Company, at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-third Street, who is acting as Mr. Heinze's broker to sell or rent the premises.

The house has a frontage of 28 feet and is 95 feet deep. It is four stories high with a pent house on the roof, which was built and equipped as a small theatre.

The neighbors viewed the business sign with dismay yesterday. The corner house is occupied by Mrs. Jane E. Oothout. Adjoining the Heinze house on the north is the home of the late Gilbert E. Jones, now occupied by members of the family, while next door George A. Peabody, President of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, lives. Anson Phelps Stokes lives on the corner of Thirty-seventh Street, and in the block above are the homes of George Walker Jenkins, Augustus Kountze, and Clarence Mackay.

All of the east side of the block between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh Streets is owned by Mr. Morgan. There are only two houses on that side, J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr.'s, a duplicate of the elder Morgan's.

The Murray Hill restriction takes in the blocks from Thirty-fourth to the south side of Thirty-eighth Street and from Lexington to Madison Avenue. The restricted zone, however, is bounded by a diagonal line on the west, and it is an interesting fact that the line cuts the upper half of the Heinze house, leaving a very small triangle in the restricted district. All the houses north of the Heinze residence on the west side of Madison Avenue up to Thirty-eighth Street are within the restrictions. The only two houses in the block opposite the Morgan residence that are not restricted against business are the Heinze and the Oothout houses.

Business has been creeping in the Murray Hill district outside of the restricted zone very rapidly. An indication of the futility of trying to stem the tide was recently shown when George F. Baker, Jr., had a four-story studio and professional business building erected on the northwest corner of Thirty-eighth Street, a plot which he bought over two years ago for about $1,000,000 to prevent the erection of a big apartment house. The magnificent Hyde house on the Fortieth Street corner was leased a year ago to the Anderson Auction Company and a twelve-story loft is going up on the Forty-first street corner.

LEAVES $15,000 TO W. C. T. U.

Bequest by Mrs. Emilie D. Martin of New York Announced in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKE, Wis., Oct. 27.—A bequest of $15,000 to the National W. C. T. U. by the late Mrs. Emilie D. Martin of New York, was announced by officers of the organization to-day. Mrs. Martin was the Superintendent of the Department of Purity in Literature and Art.

At the National convention which opens here to-morrow, the indications are that there will be 500 delegates and a large number of visitors.

NEWS OF BOOKS

GEORGE MOORE has moved from Dublin to London. There is an interesting story connected with this departure of the famous novelist. Moore, of course, is an Irishman. He lived in England and France for a number of years, but at the time of the outbreak of the South African war he was so absolutely opposed to the war that he renounced England and moved back to Ireland. After seven years he has returned to England. As a result of this mental state he is writing something in the nature of an autobiography, which will appear at different times in two or three volumes. This series will be called "Hail and Farewell." The first volume deals with the life in Ireland of people he met there and on the Continent, and his attitude toward England during the past seven years. D. Appleton & Co. will issue this work during the coming Fall.

Roy Rolfe Gilson, whose new novel, "Ember Light," has just been published, is now in his thirty-sixth year and began his work as a writer on The Grand Rapids Herald, from which he went to Detroit, and from Detroit to New York. Mr. Gilson is now at work in his retreat at Woodstock, Ulster County, N. Y.

Lucile C. Houghton, author of "A Venture in Identity," is in Bermuda. Mrs. Houghton sailed a few days before her book, which is her first, appeared. Though she makes her home in New Rochelle, N. Y., where she is known by her many friends as Mrs. Henry Houghton, Mrs. Houghton is a loyal Kentuckian, and each year spends some time with friends in Louisville.

When she is in England, Mrs. Glyn lives in a beautiful home near Harlow, in Essex. Here, in a wing of a charming house—the wing copied from Marie Antoinette's apartments in the Trianon—she works and reads and plays in the midst of peaceful home surroundings, with husband and children. Rose gardens, lawns, and great shade trees provide the setting for an ideal country life. But she is not always at home. In London there is a beautiful suite of apartments at the Ritz; in Paris another just opposite the Road Point in the Avenue des Champs Elysées.

"Guide to Nature" contains an article by Edward F. Bigelow describing the conditions under which John Gutzon de La Mothe Borglum, the sculptor, gets inspiration for his work. Like all lovers of nature, Mr. Borglum seeks the beauties of woodland scenes and river stretches, and Mr. Bigelow's article is copiously illustrated not only with reproductions of the sculptor's work but with cuts of the resorts in which Mr. Borglum finds at once pleasure and inspiration.

The interest shown by the Kaiser in Houston Stewart Chamberlain's "The Foundations of the Nineteenth Century" is well known. When Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, the well-known professor, was sent from the University of Virginia to the University of Berlin, he dined with the Kaiser at the palace, and during the conversation at dinner he asked the Kaiser to tell him what was the best history of Germany, as he would like to read a book recommended by him. After inquiring how large a book Dr. Smith desired the Kaiser recommended "The Foundations of the Nineteenth Century" as the best work in two volumes. Later in the evening he stepped into the library and presented Dr. Smith with a copy of the work.

"The Foundations of the Nineteenth Century" has run into eight editions in Germany, and a second edition of the English translation which was recently published is now in the press.

After spending a quiet Summer on Cape Cod Joseph C. Lincoln, the author, more rotund and smiling even than usual, returned recently to his home near New York. He had planned a busy Fall and Winter, writing a book which is scheduled for publication next Spring, but he had scarcely set foot on Manhattan Island when he found himself the centre of a swirl of activity of another kind. The playmakers had discovered him!

The result to date is as follows: "Cy Whitaker's Place" has been made into a play and rehearsals of it already have begun; a play made of "Mr. Pratt" will be ready shortly; a prominent character actress is determined to appear as Keziah Coffin in a dramatization of the novel of that name, and the chances are that she will; "Cap'n Eri" is sought after by two managers.

Clarence Poe, author of "Where Half the World is Waking Up," a book dealing with the progress of the Orient, mixes his duties as editor in chief of "The Progressive Farmer," a Southern periodical, with his hobby of studying Eastern peoples. He has traveled widely in China, Japan, and India, and only recently returned to his home in Raleigh, N. C., from a tour of the Far East.

A cable dispatch from London announces that Frederic Harrison has celebrated his eightieth birthday. His physical and mental vigor are evidenced by the long walks and the 1,500 words of his memoirs he gets through daily. Like Swinburne, with his "Love's Cross-Currents," Mr. Harrison once interrupted the current of his customary writings—legal and historical—with one book of fiction, "Theophano," a history of the Crusades in the tenth century.

ARNOLD BENNETT BOOKS NOVELS
ARNOLD BENNETT has freed himself from precedent by striking a new vein in modern fiction. He has made the discovery that there is no cleavage between life and romance, but that properly speaking life IS romance. This definite human element has given Arnold Bennett a first place among modern writers of note.
THE OLD WIVES' TALE: A Novel of Life - - - $1.50
"There is no book in the fiction of recent years that I should rank as equal to it."—Sir W. Robertson Nicoll in The British Weekly.

A GREAT MAN:
The rise of a modern writer—the get-famous-quick author who suddenly finds himself a best seller—a comparative study of the great and the merely successful, a gentle satire on contemporary popular methods of judging human worth.
The Story of a Literary Career. 12mo. Cloth, Net, $1.20

HELEN WITH THE HIGH HAND:
In lightest comedy vein, Arnold Bennett treats of a serious economic situation—the invasion of the grim Five Towns by modernity. Of all his heroines Helen is certainly the daintiest and most fascinating.
An Idyllic Diversion. 12mo. Cloth, Net, $1.20

THE GLIMPSE:
After death—what? This is Arnold Bennett's attempt to answer that question. The story of a man who passed to the Other Side and remained long enough to gain a glimpse—only to return again. A book full of suggestion written with careful realism.
The Adventures of a Soul. 12mo. Cloth, Net, $1.20

A MAN FROM THE NORTH:
A story of a young man from the Five Towns, who comes to London to seek his fortune. All the loneliness, passion and quenchless curiosity of youth are in these pages. Arnold Bennett shows his power to make the hero seem extraordinary by the intensity with which he narrates his happenings.
A Story of London Life. 12mo. Cloth, Net, $1.20

LEONORA:
The story of a woman still beautiful, and younger in spirits than her daughters, who is unwilling to grow old. One of the most human of all Arnold Bennett's novels.
The Tragedy of a Commonplace Life. 12mo. Cloth, Net, $1.20

ANNA OF THE FIVE TOWNS:
A love story with a twist in it—consisting in the coming to Anna of unexpected wealth. In a vein of quiet humor, rich in whimsical character sketching, Arnold Bennett works out the problem.
A Young Girl's Love Story. 12mo. Cloth, Net, $1.20

THE BOOK OF CARLOTTA:
This book is a woman's soul confession written in the first person. In sheer audacity of purpose it outstrips all Arnold Bennett's novels with the exception of "THE OLD WIVES' TALE."
The Autobiography of a Woman's Heart. 12mo. Cloth, Net, $1.20

WHOM GOD HATH JOINED:
A dramatic presentation of the working of the English divorce laws. Their injustice to women has long been acknowledged. Arnold Bennett proves them almost as unjust to man. This novel is a stern morality, with laughter interspersed.
12mo. Cloth, Net, $1.20

BURIED ALIVE:
This is the gayest of all Arnold Bennett's writings; its sole purpose is to make fun and to entertain. He wrote it in the same high spirits as Robert Louis Stevenson's "Wrong Box"—as a literary man's relaxation.
12mo. Cloth, Net, $1.20

"There is no one equal to Arnold Bennett for investing details of a commonplace life with a humorous charm and an interest that is as elusive as perfume."—The Outlook.

POCKET PHILOSOPHIES
"For an author who carries a pen in one hand and a medicine case in the other, Mr. Bennett is a welcome caller, for if he does not sweeten his pills, they leave a spicy taste in the mouth."

AN INTRODUCTION
We have just published a most interesting character study (with new portrait) of Arnold Bennett, together with concise analyses and appreciations of his novels and philosophies. Magnet was not man enough for Marjorie, but he was the only man she knew until Trafford dropped from the sky in the nick of time And so Marjorie married, but did they live happily forever after? You don't know Wells. This was merely the beginning of "Marriage," H. G. Wells' story in The American Magazine. For Marjorie was frightfully extravagant; Trafford was not rich, and soon there was the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker—as well as the devil—to pay. All the humor and drama and human nature that made "Tono-Bungay" and "Mr. Polly" the best books you ever read, make "Marriage" a better book than either.

H. G. Wells

"Marriage"

Money, the most talked about in life, the least discussed in fiction, of all the many sources of trouble between husband and wife. In a thoroughly unexpected and Wells-like manner the author solves it, not by abolishing Marjorie's extravagance or Trafford's indigence. No! By abolishing the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, and the dressmaker and jeweler as well. How? That's the story, a story so natural and yet so surprising that you will exclaim, "How true, and yet how interesting!"

DR. COOK'S "My Attainment of the Pole"

The most absorbingly interesting and intensely discussed book of the year

DR. CHARCOT, the famous French scientist, says: "I hope to have been always very frank in my appreciations. The appearance of this volume was unexpected. It is beautifully well published."

"Dr. Cook has assumed an attitude of great dignity, which is maintained in this, his final word on the proof of his claim to being the first white man to reach the point at which all longitudes come together. * * * Dr. Cook takes up Peary's attack, and step by step the charges are refuted and their very foundations torn to pieces."—Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer, Oct. 15, 1911.

"His argument is logical, his data comprehensive, and his frankness appealing."—Eagle, Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 2, 1911.

"Dr. Cook returns to the attack in a manner that challenges attention and consideration, if only by its very boldness. If Lieut. Peary thinks he can disprove these assertions, the manner of doing so is ready to his hand."
—Observer, Utica, N. Y., Sept. 25, 1911.

THE GODS AND MR. PERRIN

BY HUGH WALPOLE

A remarkable tale of English school life, the boys almost entirely in the background and the masters holding the center of the stage.

There is a Dickens quality in the picturing of the boys' driving, of the masters' starved, cramped lives, of the mental tragedy which grips and drives Mr. Perrin. Against this background is pictured the coming of Traill, young, vigorous, hopeful; his winning of Isabel's love and Perrin's hate. The ending has rare beauty and pathos.

HARPERS BOOKS

Jennie Gerhardt

By Theodore Dreiser

Jennie Gerhardt is a book we believe in. We believe it possesses those qualities of sincerity, of simplicity, of vital passion, and above all of eternal sympathy and interest which set it apart. The author has given years of his life to its making, and the result is a work rare and unusual.

H. L. Menken, in The Smart Set, says: "By long odds the most impressive work of art that we have yet to show in prose fiction."

The New York World says: "A strong and vital book, intensely full of the instincts, the impulses, the ambitions and the mistakes that keep the world alive about us."

The Pretender Person

By Margaret Cameron

The author has brought together a jolly group of charming people—men and women, old and young. Their flirtations and serious love affairs, begun on board ship and continued in the tropics, result in delightfully humorous complications. The charm and spell of Mexico, seen through all sorts of American and native eyes, is almost as rich in interest as the story itself.

Under Western Eyes

By Joseph Conrad

Long after the author is gone, those who care for remarkable literary craftsmanship will be reading this tremendous, terrific, gaunt, relentless novel of Russian temperament of inevitable tragedy—a story of grim fascination.

Adrian Savage

By Lucas Malet

This new novel reveals the author of "Sir Richard Calmady" at the height of her power. Savage is a distinguished young man of letters, the son of an English father and a French mother. He is ardently in love with a young and bewitching Frenchwoman. An English girl, lacking beauty and charm, awakens Adrian's innate chivalry, and Savage is placed in the awkward position of declining a lady's unspoken love.

"Jean Christophe"

This sympathetic study of TOLSTOY by his distinguished friend and admirer is, perhaps, the most searching criticism that has been made.

In a volume of splendid insight and wonderful description, M. Rolland has flashed the man TOLSTOY on the canvas for us in a series of rapid, brilliant impressions. Every admirer of the late story-writer and philosopher will feel grateful to M. Rolland, on reading this remarkable book, which is at once a personal tribute and a powerful biographical study.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, OCT. 28, 1911.

THE GROUNDS OF ACTION.

"There must be something more than the mere union of capital and plant before the law is violated," said Mr. TAFT in his speech at Columbus, Ohio, in August, 1907. An attentive study of the opinions of the court in the Standard Oil and the Tobacco case will, we think, lead to the conclusion that this position has now been sustained by the highest authority. Mere bigness, then, does not constitute a violation of the Sherman act. The Attorney General has not proceeded against the Steel Trust because it is a billion-dollar corporation. In his special message to Congress in January, 1910, President TAFT set forth certain other tests to determine whether the law had been violated. One was the fixing of prices. The Steel Corporation has, of course, fixed the prices at which its own products are sold, but it has not been generally understood that it has fixed prices in the market. Evidence against the theory that it has fixed general market prices was furnished two years ago when the independent companies reduced prices. They had failed to persuade the Steel Corporation to make reductions in its scale. After an interval the big corporation did reduce prices, and then it proved that the independent companies were the first to grow weary of a situation which they themselves had created. Their great competitor might have done business indefinitely on the lower scale; they could not, so the old scale of prices was restored. This in itself is an evidence that the prices charged previous to the rate-cutting were not unreasonably high, since the independent companies could not make money on the lower basis. At any rate, in that case prices were not controlled by the Steel Corporation. It is to be presumed that the Government will produce evidence on this point.

Very likely the "Gary dinners" will figure in the case. It has always been asserted by those who took part in those banquets that they were held for the discussion of trade conditions; that prices were not fixed, that there was no agreement as to prices. The Government will have to prove directly that the charges were fixed by mutual agreement, or else, inferentially, from the maintenance of a uniform scale.

The second of President TAFT's tests was control of output. In some proceedings against Trusts this control has been proved. The output was limited with the direct intent to keep up prices. We are not aware of any publicly known facts that would support the contention that the Steel Corporation has either controlled output or has had the power to control it. The competing independent companies have apparently been free from any such control. On this point, also, the Government will have to produce evidence that will be news to the public.

The President's third point was competition by unfair methods, or the suppression of competition. That charge is made all through the Government's bill of complaint. Again, there has been a widespread if not universal belief that the Steel Trust has not been unfair toward its competitors; that it has not suppressed them or sought to destroy them. In the case of the Standard Oil Company and of the American Tobacco Company unfair and oppressive treatment of competitors, even the actual destruction of competitors, was held to be established. There will be more news for the public in the Government's evidence on this point.

The Government's bill is in many ways a surprising document. Of course the Steel Trust and its form of organization may in a dozen ways have violated the law. Everybody would admit the possibility, or even the probability, that in the technical sense the charges of restraint of trade and monopolization may be supported by a good deal of evidence. But the Government's bill seems to have been drawn upon the plan of including every form of offense of which the corporation might, could, would, or should have been guilty.

The language used, however, is in many cases vague and muddled, as if the authors of the bill had in their minds no clear picture of the offenses they were attempting to describe. For instance, in speaking of the vastness of the combination, the bill says that "the restraint imposed upon trade and commerce, the suppression of competition, and the influence upon the control of prices," &c., &c. What is "influence upon the control of prices"? The man who wrote that sentence could have had no well-formulated idea of what he wanted to say. Such expressions do not spring from definite knowledge of the facts. Again, in its treatment of an episode of the panic of 1907, as to which there has been more barefaced mendacity than about any other occurrence of that crisis, the complaint, referring to a statement given out by one of the persons who are now made defendants in this action, says: "Regardless of the intent in giving out the statement—and the facts are not sufficiently known to make any charge in this regard—the fact is that it contributed directly and strongly toward" bringing a certain firm to the point of imminent failure. This is the attitude of a man who is afraid to strike, yet not afraid to wound. Cowardly innuendo should find no place in a complaint drawn up in the office of the Attorney General of the United States. There has been abundant disproof of the "fact" to which allusion is here made.

But though a suit be ill begun, it may prosper at the finish. The "relief" which the Government asks is probably beyond either the will or the power of the court to grant. It asks not merely a dissolution but the smashing and comminution of the Steel Corporation, the breaking up into innumerable fragments of a great and prosperous industry. The Supreme Court has already declared in very plain language that the law does not intend the destruction of property. What the Attorney General asks would be the destruction of property, an enormous wiping out of values. Whatever be the result of the dissolution suit, that will not be done.

THE "EQUAL PAY" BILL.

Gov. DIX probably has at hand, and has verified, the estimates of the glaring inequalities in the vaunted "Equal Pay" bill, which the women teachers of this city persuaded Mayor GAYNOR to sign. Mr. HUGH C. LAUGHLIN, in his letter printed elsewhere, presents these estimates to our readers. The women leaders who dictated the salary schedules have, as Mr. LAUGHLIN shows, reserved the lion's share of the increases for themselves, to the disadvantage of thousands of women teachers in the elementary grades, to which the largest proportional increases should go.

Gov. DIX has spoken in condemnation of extravagance in public expenditures. He has denounced and vetoed bills that deny to cities control of their own pursestrings. He has never by word or act favored the doctrine of "equal pay," buttressed as it is by the inequalities of the Teachers' Salary bill. We trust that he will not favor this doctrine or make it law.

TRADE AND SPECULATION.

When prices are crumbling in Wall Street it is reassuring to contrast the steadiness of the dividend record, and to recall how often this experience has been repeated in recent years. According to the compilation of The Journal of Commerce the dividends and interest payable next Wednesday are the largest on record. The gain for the month is not large, but for the eleven months of the calendar year the total is $373,629,525, an increase of thirty millions over last year, and of eighty-seven millions over 1909. Those years had their troubles like this year, and yet they were pretty good years. Eleven months of 1911 are almost as good as the twelve of last year, and are fifty-three millions better than the full year 1909. This repeats the experience of 1907, until then the best year we had had. In its proportions and its sharpness that was the worst panic the country had experienced, and yet the recovery was the swiftest ever known. The reason was that the dividends and interest went right along just as though the stock market and commodity markets had parted company.

It will be remembered that when the Union Pacific declared its 10 per cent. dividend those who had not been in sympathy with the operation of a railway as an investment regarded it as an incident of a day, managed with reference to Wall Street prices. The test of years has shown the stability of that dividend, and of many other less brilliant examples of the same sort. Assuredly there must have been merit in the central idea which has enabled our leading corporation to earn $5,813,243,724 in its first decade, to accumulate a surplus available for dividends of $720,080,057, and yet soberly to refrain from distributing to the owners of the property $351,153,173. Some of its critics, carried away by a fine moral frenzy, have alleged an intoxication of success of a meretricious sort. The record reads differently, and more as though the criticisms were compiled from the vagaries of the stock market rather than from the stability of prices and wages and general excellence of industrial conditions then for the first time reduced to order. The aggregate of all dividends teaches the same lesson as these conspicuous examples. They gnaw a file who contend that our industrial and economic fabric has been undermined by the trust orgy. Never before has there been shown similar ruggedness of resistance to such an accumulation of trials. Never before has any Government so bewildered big business, and so tied the hands of the organizers of prosperity. No wonder that many looking at the stock brokers' blackboards hardly know what to think about the falling prices. Let them look at the dividend record for reassurance. Dividend checks are not subject to misinterpretation. They represent reward for a social service, and if satisfactory in volume are a sufficient answer to those who argue that smaller rewards for capital would mean larger rewards for the poor. All experience is to the contrary. Wages for men are highest when capital is earning its best rewards. Those who want to cripple capital if they succeed will make business only for the bureaus of the unemployed.

The purport of these remarks is that nothing is wrong with business itself, just as there was nothing the matter with business in a previous era of undigested securities. There were then spasms in the security markets, but trade went along with a minimum of disturbance. We are not suffering now from undigested securities, but from undigested theories. The men who have never accomplished anything in the industrial world are undertaking to teach the captains of industry their trade. The men whom we delighted to honor because they showed us how to make goods and to sell them, how to pay fair wages and earn large dividends, are being overruled by those who would do social justice out of others' pockets though the heavens should fall. The frenzy is not among big business so much as among those who misunderstand big business. The argument for a decade has been that big business has produced an economic condition too good to be true or to last.

It has been true and it has lasted. It remains to be seen how long it will last, and in the last analysis it remains for the man in the street to settle it for himself. If the men on the voting registers think that such politics as we are experiencing is a good thing for them, we are likely to have more such politics. The economic history of the world may be searched in vain for the production of profits and wages by politics. All that politics can do is to keep the ring fair for the competitors for the public favor, and for the rewards which come from winning it. The fiction that trusts have power of extortion is proved false by the fact that the strongest trust in the world cannot sell its goods at the lowest prices in its history. Its profits were made in its mills, not in its counting room.

THE OUTLOOK IN MEXICO.

Naturally the noisy element in the population of the Mexican capital resented the demonstration in the Chamber of Deputies in favor of the exiled PORFIRIO DIAZ. If it had been a sincere demonstration, really an expression of admiration for the constructive genius of the iron-handed ruler of Mexico for thirty years, it might have been excusable, for even MADERO freely acknowledges the sagacity, ability, and personal uprightness of Gen. DIAZ. But the time and place were ill-chosen, and the promoters of the demonstration were a few discouraged politicians who see no advancement for themselves in the new order of things. Wherefore the expression of resentment by the populace, while somewhat disquieting, was justifiable. Outbreaks of this sort are as common in the streets of Paris as in Mexico City, and quite as significant.

The outlook for peace and prosperity in our sister republic was never clearer. The Zapatistas, about whose depredations in Morelos and across the border of the Federal District so much is said, are the unorganized followers of a mere bandit who will be caught before long and shot. The accusation that President-elect MADERO has been making terms with him is too preposterous to be regarded seriously. No revolutionary movement now exists in Mexico. The only movement against the Government chosen by the people is in the minds of a few self-exiled politicians. Provisional President DE LA BARRA is finishing his short term with the support of all the Maderists and the confidence of the people.

Mr. HENRY LANE WILSON, the American Ambassador in Mexico, in an interview reported in The Mexican Herald a week ago, said that he had "perfect confidence in the ability of the new Government to check any petty revolutions that may occur," and declared that there was "no ground for apprehension on the part of promoters or investors in that regard." Ambassador WILSON is a man of few words, who has filled his onerous post with remarkable tact and discretion. When he says that there is no reason for capitalists who would invest money in Mexican enterprises to delay for fear of political disturbance, we may be sure that he speaks with knowledge and good judgment. He has served his country and his countrymen well during his term of office, and at critical moments has shown admirable foresight.

RAILWAYS AND REVOLUTION IN CHINA.

The relations between railways and revolution in China are complex and many of the features of the situation are obscure and conflicting. In a general way the dismissal of SHENG, the Minister of Posts and Communications, was undoubtedly due to the quarrel between the advocates of the imperial control of railways and those of provincial control, but the precise points of difference between these two policies and their supporters are not clear. SHENG was distinctly in favor of imperial control. That is to say, he favored concessions (or charters) by the Central Government, financing by national loans, and construction and administration under national supervision. He was not understood to favor financing by foreign loans only, or construction and operation through foreign corporations or agents solely. His successor, TANG SHAO-YI, who was formerly his assistant, is reported to have differed with the Minister in the degree to which he would try to provide for Chinese financing and administration, but not on the essential principle.

The opposition which secured the sudden and surprising overthrow of SHENG is undoubtedly made up of what may be called partisans of the extreme Chinese policy regarding the railways. For the most part they demand that all new railways shall be built and equipped, so far as possible, with Chinese capital and the material furnished by Chinese concerns. They go beyond this and demand that the lines within any one province shall be controlled from beginning to end by the authorities of the province, with large powers in the hands of the newly created or yet-to-be-created Provincial Assemblies. It will be seen that there is in this party much of the dog-in-the-manger spirit of our own loyal protectionists. It is narrow, blind, and foolish, in the light of reason, but Americans are not entitled to throw a great many stones at it. Of course, in China there is a difficulty hardly existing here. The Chinese could not if they would furnish the material or the skilled labor or the trained experts for the building and running of railways on a large scale or of the best sort. The provincial policy would be a very serious obstacle to railway development and to the progress for which railways are indispensable.

On the other hand, it must be remembered that the Chinese Imperial Service has been excessively corrupt and poor. The insurgents profess that the chief object of their uprising is to get rid of this corruption and inefficiency. It will be noted that the imperial edict cashiering SHENG, the Minister of Posts and Communications, clearly declared that "he had jeopardized the situation by self-interested conduct." The foreign legations that negotiated the railroad loans with SHENG will be slow to give credence to this statement. They have found him an honorable, clear-headed, and able man. But the charge shows that the change was not openly based on the abandonment of the railway policy of the Imperial Government. Moreover, TANG SHAO-YI, the new Minister, is also regarded by foreigners as an able and trustworthy man. He was educated at Yale, and he has been intimately associated with YUAN SHI-KAI, who is acknowledged the foremost Chinaman recently connected with the Government, and having advanced reform ideas. It is not impossible that the surprising action of the Imperial Government is the beginning of a serious attempt to reach an adjustment with the insurgents. In that case, the very important railway problem may be settled by a compromise, and fairly well settled.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Free Verse from the Poets' Union.

A letter just received reveals to us—what we probably have no excuse for not knowing before except that hardly anybody knows everything—the fact that there is in existence an organization that seems to be in the nature of a Poets' Union. Its official name is "The Poetry Society of America," and the list of charter members, printed on its stationery, is not only long, but it includes all of our poets, near-poets, and eminent versifiers that anybody not a specialist in song of domestic production would at a moment's notice be likely to recall.

That such a society was not formed long ago is somewhat remarkable, for the making of poetry is distinctly a skilled trade. Its practitioners can therefore hope to gain all the advantages of unionism and in case of need to exercise the compulsive powers to which unionists occasionally resort when milder means of attaining their ends seem likely to fail. He may not poetize who will, but only he who can, and therefore if the banded bards should strike or boycott any particular employer their places could not be filled, as could those of publishers and editors, by calling in from the street any man of normal intelligence.

We gather, however, that the object of the Poetry Society, or at least that its avowed object, is not to raise wages or shorten hours. It has, as disclosed in the letter to which reference has been made, the intention of discovering "(1) whether contemporary poetry cannot be brought into closer touch with the life of to-day and its dramatic possibilities, and (2) whether a larger audience cannot be interested in poetry when thus vitalized."

As a first step to the accomplishing of these high purposes the society sends to us a well-made set of verses, somewhat punky in quality and very bow-wow in tone, hailing aviators as "Conquerors" and telling them how nice it is for them to get killed in the interests of art and their fellow-men. These verses, it seems, have been sent to about a dozen other "leading dailies"—mind that, now, and the shrewdness of it!—each of which is free to print them without payment to the author or the society.

As it happens, THE TIMES has already printed at least twenty sets of verses on aviators. Each of them we thought better, in one way or another and for newspaper purposes, than this set, and several of them we regard as considerably better. But other "leading dailies" may be of a different opinion. We're not infallible.

Overspeeding Is Far Too Common.

It seems to be necessary every now and then to remind the police that the city streets and avenues are not designed to serve as automobile speedways, and that there are both laws and ordinances the purpose of which is to keep the velocity of these vehicles within reasonable bounds by punishing their owners and drivers when the limits are exceeded.

These laws and ordinances, to be sure, are in a state of some confusion, and opinions differ as to exactly what they permit and prohibit. This excuses the police, perhaps, for not even trying to enforce the more rigid interpretations of what our legislators have written, and the excuse is the better because such an enforcement on the more crowded of the urban thoroughfares would make traffic intolerably slow, if not bring it to a standstill. Nobody wants that, but what almost everybody does want, and has a right to demand, is that motor cars should not be run at speeds that are obviously beyond, and far beyond, what the law, by any strain, can be stretched to cover and allow.

And they are so run, on the less frequented streets, all day and all night, and on the others whenever it can be done with something less than certainty of immediate disaster—to the cars and their occupants. As speed makes the killing or injury of people on foot only a probability a part of the motor folk adopt it without any apparent compunction, and the police too often ignore the offense. There is hardly an hour in the day when one cannot see these displays of reckless lawlessness, and at dusk and after nightfall they are particularly numerous.

Only now and then, indeed, is anybody run down, but the narrow escapes are innumerable, and each of these involves a nervous injury of more seriousness than is commonly appreciated. To be frightened and angered is no light matter, and a purely "psychic trauma" may be, as every neurologist knows, an ultimately fatal wound. From these the police should protect us.

Another just grievance against the chauffeurs, especially the professionals, is the habit of keeping their engines going while waiting for custom at the sidewalk's edge. Where many taxicabs congregate, as at the railway stations, this fills the air with noxious fumes and is an almost intolerable nuisance. The practice is justified by no necessity, and should be both prohibited and prevented. If not now illegal it should be made so.

A Flier Worth Watching.

There is not as much talk as there should be, it seems to us, about the courage and persistency which C. P. RODGERS has shown in the aeroplane voyage which he hopes will be from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

What two or three others have attempted only to be discouraged by the accidents and delays of the first week or less, he has now about two-thirds completed. And he has had troubles—troubles innumerable. They began the day he started, they have continued ever since, and about everything except death that can happen to an aviator has happened to him. But he keeps on with a grim determination that makes one forget his journey is not made entirely for glory and love of his art.

What he is doing, it must be remembered, is real flight—real aerial navigation—real travel from somewhere to somewhere. He is not performing circus feats, but showing what the aeroplane is as a means of transportation in all weathers and over all sorts of country.

His experiences reveal, indeed, that as a vehicle its margin of safety is still too small for it to be rated as "practical" for either business or pleasure, but they also reveal that the machine, in spite of all its imperfections—its fragility and its untrustworthiness—can be used for getting about the world.

It is already about as good as, though of course more dangerous than, the first "horseless carriages," and we are all waiting confidently for some one—the WRIGHTS, probably—to make it better and good enough.

THE "EQUAL PAY" BILL.

If Gov. Dix Signs It, What Results Will It Bring?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that the Mayor has signed the "Equal Pay" bill and its advocates feel that all is over but the shouting, it may be profitable to "take an account of stock" and see who gets the lion's share of the spoils, who the bones, and who nothing but a kick. It is not my purpose to argue regarding the justice or injustice of the schedules, but rather to let the figures speak for themselves. Under the new schedules it requires sixteen years for an elementary school teacher to reach the maximum salary; that figure is therefore taken as a basis for comparison. The figures here presented refer to those teachers who may be appointed or promoted after Jan. 1, 1912.

The total income of a woman Principal in an elementary school for sixteen years under the old schedule was $38,500; under the new law it would be $52,500, showing an increase of $14,000, or 36 per cent. Under the old law a woman Assistant to Principal received a maximum salary of $1,600; this the new law raises to $1,900, and the alleged "joker" in the bill makes the maximum $2,400, an increase of 50 per cent. The total income of a woman assistant in a high school for sixteen years under the old schedule, allowing three years' service as junior teacher, was $22,550; by the new law it would be $30,700, an increase of about 31 per cent.

A woman teacher of a girls' class from kindergarten to 6B earned under the old schedule the sum of $14,400 in sixteen years; the new schedule gives her $16,980, an increase of $2,580, or 17 per cent. The teacher of a boys' class in these grades earned under the old law $15,360; under the new law her earnings in sixteen years would increase $1,620, or about 9 per cent. The earnings of a man teacher in high school for the period rise from $28,000 to $30,700, an increase of about 9 per cent.

These figures clearly show who gets the lion's share and who the bones. It remains to be demonstrated that it is the men teachers hereafter appointed to the elementary schools who receive the kicks. The earning of a man teaching a class below 7A falls from $26,370 under the Davis law to $16,980, a decrease of 35 per cent. The men teaching in classes from 7A to 8A, inclusive, would earn under the new law $19,320, a loss of 26 per cent. Men teaching in the last term of the grammar school earned under the Davis law the amount of $30,065. By the new law they would earn in sixteen years just $10,745 less, a decrease of 35 per cent.

Men now in the system also suffer to some extent in case of promotion. Men appointed to elementary Principalships after Jan. 1 will receive $2,100 less during the first six years of service than they would have received under the Davis law, a virtual decrease of over $100 a year, even when distributed over twenty years. Men now teaching below 7A cannot advance without financial loss unless they have been teaching for thirteen years. The new law guarantees them their present maximum of $2,160, but it also provides that if any male member be advanced after Jan. 1 to a position higher in rank his salary and increment shall be that fixed in the schedule in force at the time of such advancement. The maximum fixed by the new law for teachers of the last two years is $1,820, or $340 less than the amount guaranteed to them in their present positions. This part of the bill might well be termed "A provision to discourage the promotion of male teachers to classes where they are most needed."

The new law, if signed by the Governor, will equalize the salaries of men and women occupying like positions, but only blind enthusiasm will regard it as equitable.

HUGH C. LAUGHLIN.

New York, Oct. 27, 1911.

THE REV. DR. CAMPBELL HERE

Ready to Preach Against Absolute Dogmas—Not to Succeed Dr. Aked.

The Rev. Dr. Reginald K. Campbell, pastor of the City Temple, London, and an exponent of Liberal Christianity, got here yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic. He said that his mission in coming to America was to preach liberal Christianity from the modern standpoint. He said this in denying a report that he would succeed the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked as pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church.

Dr. Campbell has gained a reputation as a pulpit orator. He is about forty-one years old, his hair, prematurely gray, is worn long, and he was a commanding figure as he towered above his interviewers. He speaks with earnestness.

"What is new theology?" he repeated when the question was asked. "I prefer to call it liberal Christianity. I do not like the other term. I have broken away from the old dogmas and will preach here and in Canada on liberality of thought in religious matters. I believe in the imminence of God and the solidarity of man. That is the answer in brief. It would take me too long to go into the question now.

"I feel that the present is not a very favorable time for the Christian church. It is going through a period of transition. All over the civilized world the people are drawing away from the church. I don't think it will continue. History shows just such periods of religious unsettlement and stagnation. These are always followed by readjustment and recovery. This reaction is already setting in, especially in America.

"This falling away is not altogether the fault of the church. From the middle of the nineteenth century onward there has been an advance of modern science and a greater pace in living. This has caused a halt in the minds of modern men. They are thinking and acting in a materialistic world. I hold that the church has a weakness in two directions; first, in holding on to obsolete dogmas, and the other in being too slow to adapt herself to social conditions. She lacks sympathy."

Asked as to what obsolete dogmas he referred, Dr. Campbell mentioned the obstructional view of the atonement and the fate of the impenitent after death.

Mr. Campbell came out in favor of woman suffrage and declared the greatest modern fault was the worship of mammon.

"Women are more religious than men," he said, "because they are better than men. This is probably because they have not been forced into the rough of the battle of life. Woman suffrage is a great moral movement, and I am strongly in favor of it. It is not true that the movement is drawing women away from the church."

Dr. Campbell is accompanied by his wife and daughter. He will make a three months' tour of the country, speaking in the principal cities.

JUROR PROTESTS AT TRIAL.

Objects to Prosecutor's Way of Cross-Examining, Which Court Upholds.

A juror before Judge Malone in General Sessions yesterday arose in the jury box, and protested against the tactics used by Assistant District Attorney McGuire in cross-examining a witness for the defense in the case of Charles Kirschner of 850 Grand Street, Brooklyn, and John Zwisler of 356 South First Street, Brooklyn, two drivers, on trial for manslaughter.

Both men were charged with being responsible for the death of Lorenz Dacomba Carvallo, a coffee planter of Mexico, who was run over by Kirschner at Wall and Water Streets on April 25 last. It was charged that Zwisler was racing with Kirschner. Judge Malone discharged Zwisler, and the jury acquitted Kirschner.

Kirschner was on the stand, and Mr. McGuire was attempting to shatter his testimony, when Thomas B. Tuite, Juror 2, arose and said:

"I protest, your Honor, against the method and questions of the District Attorney. It's unfair and it's bulldozing."

"Why, what have I done, your Honor?" asked Mr. McGuire, who appeared overcome by the juror's remarks. "I am only using the tactics I always use."

"There is nothing improper in the District Attorney's actions," said Judge Malone. "He is a very zealous prosecutor, and is only trying to get at the truth in this case."

Mr. McGuire thanked the Judge, and Juror 2 sat down. The jury was out two hours.

TRUSTS' DISINTEGRATION.

An Alternative Is Their Chartering with Government Control of Prices.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the practical progress of nations, and particularly of our own Nation, in these days, it seems to me that the violent disbandment of our great manufacturing corporations is not the right way to set things right. Such a remedy means the disintegration and retardation of business and business energy in their relations to our individual citizens, to our country, and to all the rest of the commercial world.

This remedy might have been applied in the days of President Roosevelt, if at all. The tremendous growth of our corporations since, in what may be called the wrong way, so that many of them have become monopolies and controlling trusts, has made them so great and so widely linked with the individual interests of our citizens that to disband and disintegrate them is, like a volcanic upheaval, certain to be widely ruinous and dangerous.

Now, what can be done to set things right? The President has recommended National charters for companies doing inter-State business. But these charters must contain powers of supervision and control by the Government, or else they will have little or no valuable corrective effect.

I can see no other ultimate remedy than this, viz., that a body like the Inter-State Commerce Commission shall be created to supervise and control prices, increases of capital, and other vital matters in the situation. These powers may seem to be Socialistic and dangerous. They are paternal, but, I believe, necessary. They must be exercised so as to permit fair returns to stock investments of our citizens' capital in these enterprises. Then business can go on without regard to the amounts of stock held by individual owners, and business will go on if allowed fair and reasonable returns.

A Judgment on the Giants.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is an old proverb that runs, "De mortuis nil nisi bonum," so we will drop the mantle of charity over the awful carnage of Shibe battlefield. Yet, "nevertheless and notwithstanding," as a native New Yorker, I am mighty glad it happened just as it did, and let us all hope that should the Giants win out in the National League race in 1912, there will be no repetition of the disgraceful scandal resulting from the greed of a few insiders in the disposal of tickets. "Whom the (baseball) gods would destroy they first make mad." And surely this connivance with a lot of speculators was sheer madness.

Taking Defeat in Good Humor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to thank you for the "write up" of the game yesterday. You handed me many a good laugh which has taken the sting out of my shattered hopes. I wish I could always look on the comic side of defeat and smile with the winners.

FISHER ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR ALASKA

Leasing System for Coal Lands and Government Ownership of Railroad, His Policy.

HE SAYS TAFT APPROVES

Secretary of the Interior Gives Result of His Investigations in Alaska to Mining Congress in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Walter L. Fisher, Secretary of the Interior, announced the Government's policy in the matter of opening Alaska coal fields for entry and development in an address to-day before the American Mining Congress.

Secretary Fisher said that the general policy suggested by him, embracing a leasing system and Government ownership of a railroad, had been discussed with President Taft, and met his approval.

Secretary Fisher said in part:

"While I am an optimist as to the future of Alaska, I see no reason why the Alaska syndicate should not be permitted to continue the enormously expensive experiment to which its present investment has already committed it, and which that investment prevents it from abandoning. The essential thing is that we shall adopt proper coal laws under which monopoly will be impossible, and that we shall preserve ample opportunities for whatever action by the Government the future may require. The immediately important thing is that the Bering coal field should be open to wise development, so that it may supply local needs and afford ample opportunity for supplying any market for this particular coal which may now exist or which it may be possible to create on the Pacific Coast.

"My visit to Alaska has led me to take a far greater interest in the future of the Matanuska coal field, which is larger in extent, having an area of seventy-four square miles, or 47,360 acres, better in coal, better in physical condition, and freer from the complications of private claims than is true at Bering River. Against these advantages must be set off its greater distance from the sea, but this very distance connects it more intimately with the real problem of Alaskan development—that of adequate transportation from tide water to the Yukon. What Alaska needs more than all else is a trunk line railroad from the ocean to the great interior valleys of the Yukon and the Tanana, opening up the country so that its future development may really be possible.

"The railroad from Seward—the so-called Alaskan Central or Alaskan Northern—at present extends only seventy-odd miles to a point on Turnagain Arm, where it stopped for lack of funds and for various other reasons, among which the withdrawal of the coal fields from entry is particularly emphasized.

"The Matanuska coal should be brought to Seward for the use of our naval coaling station, and a mine for that purpose can well be opened by the Government on the Matanuska, where it can be made to serve as an example for private mining, where it can furnish information and serve as a check upon the profits of the lessees under Government leases. The Secretary of the Navy authorizes me to state that he believes there should be reserved a sufficient portion of high-grade Alaska coal, suitable for the use of the Navy, to be mined hereafter for this express purpose under the Bureau of Mines.

"I have made some inquiries to ascertain whether the present owners of the Alaskan Central are willing to give any assurances that they will extend that railroad through the coal fields to the interior in the near future, with the result that some at least of those interested in it have indicated a preference to sell the railroad to the Government for the face of the outstanding bonds, which amount to some $4,600,000. I assume that it can be purchased for the real value of the road, whatever that may be, and that it will not be extended by its present owners.

"We shall have an important railroad under private ownership, with Governmental regulation, to compare with one under public ownership, and these two railroads will operate in separate fields, where they will not directly conflict, but where each may serve as a check upon the other, and the advocates of both methods will doubtless come to appreciate more fully and more fairly both the difficulties and the advantages of the railroad as a Governmental agent.

"It remains only to consider more in detail the methods by which the coal fields should be opened. Those suggested have been the sale of the lands in fee, their development under lease from the Government, and their operation by the Government itself. I believe that the time has passed when the Government should convey an unrestricted title to its coal fields. The day is done in which the Government should deliberately encourage the unrestricted private exploitation of the sources of power. To impose effective regulations upon these sources after they have passed to private individuals in fee is exceedingly difficult, even if not impossible.

"On the other hand, direct Government operation, including the mining and the selling of coal, involves such deep and far-reaching changes, both of policy and of administration, that there is no likelihood at the present time of its adoption to the exclusion of private operation. Unlike the Government ownership of railroads, public coal mining has never been held by the courts to be a function of government.

"I believe that the leasing system avoids the controversies and the difficulties of both extremes of public and of private ownership. It has been adopted with conspicuous success in the great mining communities of Australia and New Zealand. It is now the established law of the Yukon territory lying in Canada, just across the border line from Alaska. It is the system under which much of the privately owned coal land of the United States is, in fact, to-day being developed. Under it we can insert as matters of contract and as conditions to which the lessee voluntarily consents those regulations and requirements which promote the public interest, the enforcement of some of which by mandatory law might be unconstitutional. By making the terms of our leases liberal we can make them even more attractive to capital than if we adopt the policy of an outright sale of the fee.

"A few persons who have expressed themselves as being 'unalterably opposed' to a leasing system for the coal lands of Alaska have stated that they were unalterably opposed to it because, in the first place, it would be impossible to get any leasing legislation through Congress; and in the second place, if a leasing bill did pass Congress, it would be impossible to get anybody to work coal lands on a lease basis. I need not discuss at this time what Congress may or may not do, except to say that, in my judgment, Congress is far more likely to pass a rational leasing measure than it is to throw the coal fields of Alaska open for unrestricted private exploitation.

"Shortly before I went to Alaska I improved an opportunity to discuss the question of its coal development with a group of prominent coal operators in the State of Pennsylvania, and I was surprised to find that they were unanimously of the opinion that the leasing system should be adopted and that only sufficient land should be leased to meet the demands of the market and provide the incentive for developing that market in a vigorous and rational manner."

The Alaskan policy, heretofore in force, was criticised severely by George E. Baldwin of Valdez, Alaska.

"Conservation up to date has been an attempt to gather all the public lands of our territory as an estate," he said. "Its forests, mines, water power, wharf sites are all managed by a vast horde, a devastating host of Government underlings, and worked by our citizens as tenants, the underlings ruled by a retinue of officials in Washington, thousands of miles away.

"All of these officials consider themselves the people's masters, not their servants. Here is a system of landlordism that out-Irishes the most Irish landlord that ever disgraced the human race by his rapacity, a landlord who refuses to develop his property, and who refuses to allow any one else to develop it."

SYMPHONY SOCIETY GIVES LISZT MUSIC

Master's "Faust" Symphony and "Danse Macabre" Are Given—Harold Bauer the Soloist.

The New York Symphony Society began its season of concerts yesterday afternoon in the Century Theatre, in which they were given last season as The New Theatre. It is the intention this year to devote the Friday afternoon concerts especially to the interests of music students, and to this end Mr. Damrosch will give, as he gave yesterday, a brief explanation of the music to be played at the beginning of each concert.

It is, of course, a necessity for all purveyors of concerts of whatever sort to fashion their programmes at the beginning of this season as a part of the celebration of Liszt's centenary. This pious duty will be fulfilled in the weeks immediately following Oct. 22, the exact date of the master's birthday; and, then it will no longer be requisite to inflict such amorphous programmes upon the docile public as that which Mr. Damrosch presented yesterday.

It contained but two numbers, the "Faust" Symphony, for orchestra and male chorus, and the "Danse Macabre," a paraphrase upon the "Dies Irae," for piano and orchestra. Both are among what the fervid followers of the master regard as his greatest and most characteristic works. The symphony is the better known; but neither has been frequently presented to this public for reasons which yesterday's concert made perfectly plain. A frequent repetition of them would be a very severe test of the public longing for Liszt that is so much spoken of in these days. The symphony, as Mr. Damrosch explained before it was played, is a group of three character pictures depicting, respectively, Faust, Gretchen, and Mephistopheles; there are representative themes appearing and reappearing in various transformations throughout the three movements, and the purport of the music is to suggest the philosophical tendencies of Goethe's drama, the passions, emotions, and sentiments that animate the characters, rather than their material aspect—the concrete imagery of the play. It is at once lofty and profound, emotional, intimate, and, as concerning the portrait of Mephistopheles, ironical, sardonic, cynical—so it is explained. It is at any rate very long, very repetitious, and very elaborate. The fervent admirers of Liszt have abundant opportunity in the "Faust" Symphony to steep themselves in his most characteristic forms and style of musical utterance. It is unquestionably pure Liszt. They also have aboundant opportunity to hear the themes and the harmonic combinations which Wagner is said to have pilfered so freely. Probably it occurred to some to marvel that Wagner's pillagings are so instinct with life and beauty, so insistent and incessant in their own appeal that they do not need the reminder of a centennial celebration or the frequent scoldings of the faithful to get themselves before the public.

The symphony was given a careful and effective performance. The male chorus was hardly large enough to count for all it ought to have in the last movement. The tenor solo was sung by Mr. George Harris, who has a voice of true tenor quality and of considerable beauty, and who will be heard with even more pleasure when he has overcome the nervousness that doubtless caused a little unsteadiness in it yesterday.

The "Dance of Death" is equally characteristic in a different way; it is one of Liszt's most extravagant exploits in pianoforte technique. It purports to be a musical illustration of a fresco by an Italian old master; to those who have not seen the picture it is a series of very free and fantastic variations on the sequence of the requiem mass "Dies Irae." This fragment of church tones has been much tortured by modern composers, but it has not suffered more than at Liszt's hands in this baroque composition. It is one of his most successful efforts to "frighten the bourgeois. Mr. Harold Bauer was the pianist, and played it with superb mastery of all its technical difficulties, with great enthusiasm and quite in the style that it requires.

He achieved some remarkable effects in the way of coloring, in variety of touch and tone, in the use of the pedal. Mr. Bauer returns to this country after an absence of four years, and there is no pianist who is welcomed with a heartier sincerity or with more confident expectation of artistic delight. It happened to be his lot to come early in company with the Liszt centenary; but there will be balm in hearing him later when that celebration shall have spent its force.

In his preliminary remarks Mr. Damrosch made an amusing quotation from a letter of Liszt's, recently published, in which he conjured up a vision of the year 1900, when his "Faust" symphony would finally be conducted with applause by "the little Damrosch." As a part of the Liszt celebration the Directors of the Symphony Society have opened in the foyer of the theatre an exhibition of relics, portraits, autographs, and other matters pertaining to Liszt.

MRS. RUHLIN'S FIGHT NOT SO VERY AWFUL

Attendance Somewhat Slim, but Mrs. Suydam Is Prominent at the Ringside.

SUFFRAGE SPEECH MIDWAY

And a Few Remarks from Mrs. Gus—Feminine Views of a Masculine Pastime, Toned Down to Suit.

Mrs. Gus Ruhlin's famous prizefight for Votes for Women came off last night and every one is alive this morning to tell the tale. It was at the Long Acre Athletic Club, 158 West Twenty-ninth Street, and there were at least two dozen women who saw it and didn't flinch. Mrs. Ruhlin says it was "All Right." Not a woman screamed, and she will try it again this very Winter.

"It was fine," big Gus Ruhlin himself said, and that was a great deal, for being a fighter and not a talker, he limits himself usually to two words. He praised Alderman Harry Phillips, the Englishman, to the limit when Mr. Phillips told the audience from the ring that the women didn't have a sporting chance, and played the part of the under dog in the world's affairs.

"You bet," said Gus.

Mrs. Ruhlin's prizefight was not the real thing and wasn't intended to be. It was a boxing and wrestling match, only called by the fiercer name because everybody objected. It wasn't even as big a thing in that line as had been promised. All the big men who "used to be" in the prize ring were to have been there, but they weren't. There were only some young chaps whom the sporting fraternity called bantams, or one-time bantams, and whom the women thought were more like white Leghorns or Shanghais. Perhaps that was the reason the big audience of men that was expected did not appear.

In the early part of the evening there was every sign of a frost in the house. At 8 o'clock when the fight was scheduled to be on there were not a dozen people there. The only warm thing about the place was a little woman in pink, who sat in an ante-room beside the picture of an athlete in fighting dress, and he was only a little more décolletée than she.

The blond young woman was in a pink evening frock, fluffy petticoats showing beneath the skirt as it was drawn around her over her silk-stockinged feet and little pink slippers. Her light hair was held in place with a band of pink ribbon and over her evening dress was a long coat of white fur. Perhaps that is the usual dress for a lady at a boxing match, but it was the only one in the hall last evening. The young man escort, light-haired and light-complexioned, was in gray.

It was Mrs. Suydam of Brooklyn, now well known because of certain stories in the newspapers, and young Noble, the plumber's son, who has shared the stories with her. Later they sat in the ring seats, both of them smoking cigarettes, while the audience which had come to the match watched them with some interest and no admiration.

It was 9 o'clock when things began to look exciting to the two dozen women who were seeing their first prize fight—as they said. It was they who had kept the men away. The Athletic Club regulars were not willing to spend their good money to see such a pink tea affair as they were afraid would be served up to the women. But a good number of them did get in finally and seemed to have a pretty fair time, if Gus Ruhlin, "Young" Corbett, and "Montana Dan" Sullivan were only referees.

The white leghorns or the bantams seemed to try to knock each other about in a most unladylike way, the women thought, and if shouts counted for anything the men thought so, too, and had what any woman would have thought from the enthuusiasm was the time of their lives. When Prof. Nick Mundy of Brooklyn tried to get both the shoulders of "Young" Hackenschmidt of Washington down to mother earth—there was a lot of mother earth or dust of some kind in the covering of the square inclosure they called a ring—things began to be exciting. The women learned, after a time, that that was the thing to try to do in a wrestling match, and some of them wished about that time that they were home. That was because the Mundy person had twenty-two pounds the better of the other man—the men said that—and perfectly awful manners.

The men said that, too, only not in quite the same way.

"He's a brute," they shouted, and the women, who were getting scared, got a little interested because you couldn't help hoping the littlest fellow would win when the other pulled his hair.

"None of that!" called the men. "He's got the leg hold over his neck! What do you think of that! (of the littlest man.) "Hold him there! He's got his neck under his arm. He's wriggling. He'll weaken in a minute."

"Well, I wouldn't hold on to the rope," said a woman, who had been looking through her fingers. The men didn't believe in that, either, and they called to the referee: "Gus, shall I get you an axe?"

The women got all mixed up when the boxing matches began. They liked the sound of the names because you never could tell what the "Coming White Hope" meant except that it was "Al" Panzer, and they knew that he and "Jack" Gitney were two "husky boys," because the men said so. It was hard to get to know which man wore blue trunks or red ones or some other color before the time was up and they were sitting down in corners. But it was easier when "Red" O'Neill came on with Willie McDonald, because they were nice little boys and any one can tell when a man is called by the color of his hair.

"If I had anything to do with anything of this ind I'd put signs up in the corners telling the people who sat there," said one of the women, "and I'd always call them by the color of their clothes."

Nice little "Red" O'Neill and Willie McDonald didn't play fair at all, and had to be continually pulled apart, but bleached blond Sam kissed Jerry Gaines when one of the two little chocolate boys had hit the other square on the nose and given him nosebleed. Any one could see what science was in boxing matches when "Young" Mango and "Kid" Black were boxing, for it is the small nose that counts for not being hit. Then all the men shouted for "Young" Saks when he came on, and the women liked him, too—a small boy with a pleasant face and spiderlike arms and legs. They were glad when they thought he had the best of it until "Young" Walter confided to them later:

"I couldn't do anything because Saks told me I must only tap him a bit."

Little Dorothy Frooks, whose brother, a Cornell man, was one of the referees, made a suffrage speech in the middle of the evening. "Billy" Neumann, who had charge of the boxing match, introduced little Miss Frooks, who is an infant phenomenon as a suffrage speaker.

"Mrs. Ruhlin thought the other women were getting on too slowly and started the Women's Progressive Political League," said Miss Dorothy. "You men won't come to hear suffrage speeches, so we come here to make you. If you think this is not a nice place, it is your fault, because it is the kind of a place you have made. We thank you all for coming here. To show your appreciation of Mrs. Ruhlin won't you give three cheers for her, and make the house come down?"

This little speech was made from the ring, and Mrs. Ruhlin herself climbed up to say:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I'm not a speaker, I'm a worker and so I must go down."

She did go down and the men gave her three more cheers.

"The seats weren't very satisfaotory," said Mrs. Ruhlin, commenting about the comparatively small audience later, "but everything has gone off well and I am satisfied."

"The men were afraid to come because they thought the ladies were coming," said one of the men, who had been an enthusiastic rooter for the boxers. "They thought it would be too tame. They ought to have put the best men on and let the ladies see what it really was."

LORD CAMOYS GETS LICENSE.

His Fiancee, Mildred Sherman, Has a Sprained Ankle, and Clerk Visits Her.

Lord Camoys, who is to marry Miss Mildred Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Watts Sherman of New York and Newport, on Dec. 2, visited the Marriage License Bureau yesterday at the City Hall and asked that a clerk be sent to Miss Sherman's residence, 838 Fifth Avenue, with a blank for her to fill out. He produced a certificate, signed by Dr. George Montague Swift of 20 West Fifty-fifth Street, stating that Miss Sherman was indisposed, and that it would be inadvisable for her to come to the City Hall.

In accordance with the request, Stewart Harris, chief clerk of the bureau, went to the Sherman house last evening and Miss Sherman answered the necessary questions.

Lord Camoys said his fiancée was suffering from a sprained ankle. He filled out as much of the application as was necessary for him before leaving. He gave his name as Ralph Francis Julian Stoner, Lord Camoys, and his age as twenty-seven. He gave his residence as Henley-on-Thames, London, England, and his father's name was given as Francis Robert Stoner, Lord Camoys, and his mother's, Jessie Phillippa Carew.

The date of the wedding is given as Dec. 2 instead of Dec. 5, as was at first reported. The wedding will be a quiet one, and the ceremony, which will be performed at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, will be witnessed only by the immediate family. Miss Sherman's only attendant will be her sister, Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillespie. A small reception will follow the ceremony. Lady Camoys, Lord Camoys's mother, will not come over for the wedding.

GABLER NOT CRUEL TO VAN ETTEN DOG

Beat It Only When It Bit Him, He Says, and County Justice Acquits Him.

COURT IN A BOATHOUSE

With Everybody There but the Dog—Mrs. Van Etten Doesn't Wait for the Verdict.

Special to The New York Times.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Emil Ernest Gabler, a New York piano manufacturer, whose Summer camp is on Hoel Pond, was acquitted to-day of the charge of "cruelly and maliciously beating a prize French brindle bulldog," owned by Mrs. Edgar Van Etten, whose camp adjoins Mr. Gabler's property. Mrs. Van Etten's husband is President of the Cuban Eastern Railway and advisory officer of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

Mr. Gabler was arrested by the S. P. C. A. on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Van Etten and her chauffeur. The episode which started the suit occurred on Mr. Gabler's property on Oct. 4. All the testimony given by the principals, chauffeurs, and maids showed that the prize bulldog invaded Mr. Gabler's camp and attacked his dog. The dogs were separated by the chauffeurs of the respective camps and the Gabler chauffeur was taking the Van Etten dog to its mistress when Mr. Gabler rushed from the bathroom and seized the dog. The animal bit him on the thumb and then Mr. Gabler cudgeled the dog twice over the head. Mrs. Van Etten, it appeared by the testimony, then paid a visit to Mr. Gabler at his camp. He says she exclaimed:

"I hope you get hydrophobia."

Mrs. Van Etten distinctly contradicted Mr. Gabler at this point. Her version of the remark was:

"I hope you don't get hydrophobia."

There were several clashes of testimony on minor points brought out at the trial. The Justice who tried the case was Newell Lee of Santa Clara, who has a record of disposing of eight dog cases in a day. The array of counsel was imposing, including George K. Jack of New York for the defense and Lamar Hardy of Bothby, Baldwin & Hardy for the prosecution. Legal tilts were frequent, and the repartee between witness and lawyers furnished unlimited amusement for campers, guides, chauffeurs, and maids who crowded the improvised courtroom in Dr. Samuel B. Ward's boathouse.

Personal enmity between the Gabler and Van Etten camps crept out frequently in the testimony in spite of injunction by counsel and the endeavor of the Justice to exclude the manifestations from the records. A letter written by Mr. Van Etten to Mr. Gabler was placed in evidence. In part it said:

"I regret the tone of your letter about the dog. It does not carry with it the proper spirit of live and let live. John"—referring to Mrs. Van Etten's chauffeur—"wrote me about your threats about the dog and his counterthreats. I want to say now if the dog comes on your property kill him by all means if you feel that way. We tried our best last year to prevent trouble, and two or three times I prevented a row when your dog was on my property."

Mrs. Van Etten was on the stand for some time and told feelingly of how her dog was brought to her after he had been beaten by Mr. Gabler.

"He was unconscious, with his tongue black and protruding, his body apparently stiffened in death," she said almost tearfully.

The defense completely broke down the prosecution's case when lawyers tried to show that Mr. Gabler could not have been bitten by the dog, which he admittedly held by the neck. Lawyer Jack referred to Mrs. Van Etten's remark that she hoped Mr. Gabler would not get hydrophobia.

"Perhaps he could get hydrophobia without being bitten," said he, "but the court will have to have expert medical testimony to that effect."

The cudgel, dog collar, Mr. Gabler's wound, and everything else connected with the case were offered in testimony except the prize brindle bulldog. It did not appear, said one of the lawyers for the prosecution, because it was feared he might attack his old enemy, Mr. Gabler, in court.

Mrs. Gabler, who was on the stand for nearly an hour, proved a clever witness, and her repartée disconcerted opposing counsel several times. She said in reply to a question that she did not stop to examine Mr. Gabler's fingers when he held the dog to see if they were in a position to be bitten. She admitted frankly that she had screamed when she saw blood on her husband's thumb, and said she heard Mrs. Van Etten tell Mr. Gabler she hoped he would get hydrophobia. "A nice, pleasant wish," the defendant interjected. Her remark was ordered stricken from the stenographer's minutes.

During the rebuttal Mrs. Van Etten spoke up several times, but she was silenced by the Judge and the outcry of counsel by both sides. After all the testimony was in Mrs. Van Etten, who seemed to feel that the case was going against her, left the courtroom and was not present when the Judge announced his verdict an hour later.

Mrs. Edgar Van Etten was, before her marriage in 1897, Miss Lillian Frances Cramblett of Killbuck, Ohio. She has for some years been prominent in the affairs of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and in the Spring of 1906 declined the nomination for Vice President of that organization in Massachusetts, saying she much preferred her home life to the turmoil of politics. She said the office would necessarily take her away from her home a great deal, and she would rather continue the enjoyment of her home than have the honor proffered her.

In March of last year she was hurt in an automobile accident in this city while riding with her dentist, Dr. W. A. Wood of 15 East Forty-eighth Street. When in this city she makes her home at the Chatsworth apartments.

He followed farming, and for many years he had the privilege of cutting the salt hay on the old Flushing Meadows. When the real estate boom struck Queens he got control of the meadows and later disposed of the land realizing $1,000 an acre, making a fortune from land which for years had been deemed only fit for growing salt hay. Shortly after settling in Newtown Mr. Connolly married Miss Mary Burns, who survives with seven children.

PERIPATETIC BISHOP HERE.

His African Diocese Covers 40,000 Square Miles—Walks Much of It.

Bishop John O'Gorman of Sierra Leone, Africa, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic. His diocese covers 40,000 square miles of territory. His home is at Freetown, but he admitted that, as he covers much of the country on foot, there is but little time for him to be at home. Bishop O'Gorman was formerly a priest at Cornwells, Penn., and he comes here to visit friends in Philadelphia.

"The British Government," he said, "is trying to stamp out cannibalism, which is troublesome in Sierra Leone. Thirty-three were hanged three years ago, and two years ago the death list was fourteen. I don't know how many died on the scaffold last year.

"The cannibals have a secret order of their own, called the Order of Leopards. Leopard skins are the badge of the order. They believe they can gain magic charms by killing human beings and eating their flesh.

"The date for a feast is arranged, and they debate as to who will be appropriate for the sacrifice. The execution is carried out as planned, and the victim cooked. When they are caught another execution takes place, but this time it is a Government representative who does the killing."

PRINCETON EXPECTS HARD GAME TO-DAY

Several Unexpected Shifts Made in Team That Will Play Holy Cross.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 27.—Several unexpected shifts in the Tiger line-up during to-day's drill, and the coaches' announcement of the team that will play Holy Cross to-morrow, portends a stiff contest against the New Englanders, who had not been dreaded up to this time. Princeton's practice to-day consisted of a long signal drill and some light scrimmage work for the line candidates, who have been hard pushed throughout the week.

Bluthenthal, who has been in the line-up at centre throughout the season, strained a tendon in his leg yesterday, which will necessitate his retirement to the side lines to-morrow. Ormond has been assigned to his place. It is probable that Tom Swan will also have a workout in to-morrow's game at the pivot position. Joe Duff, who has shown some high-class football during the past week at guard, will not start the game to-morrow, but will undoubtedly be in the line before the end of the afternoon. Dutch Brown, who started the Navy game at right guard, will have the first call to-morrow.

One of the features of the signal drill to-day was Vaughn's shift to tackle from end, a change that has been long wished for by the Princeton following. The big fellow did not prove as clever at end as was anticipated, his work in an open field being fearfully ragged. He should make a good running mate for Capt. Hart. Pendleton will start the game at quarter back to-morrow, after a week's drill at half back, but as in many of the other positions, a substitution will undoubtedly be made during the game, and in that event Pendleton will go to half back and Chrystie will step in as quarter back. The whole make-up of Princeton's eleven to-morrow will be subject to change after the start of the game. Coach Roper announced the line-up against Holy Cross as follows:

The management of the Princeton football team announced this evening that the demand for Harvard game seats for next Saturday was not so large as had been expected. The stands are built to accommodate 27,000 persons, but many seats in the north and south stands are not yet applied for.

HOLY CROSS MAY SCORE.

Worcester Team Coming Strong to Play Tigers at Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 27.—After putting the Holy Cross football squad through a light scrimmage, signal drill, and rehearsing new formations, Coach Larkin left this afternoon with the local gridiron warriors for Princeton, where they will tackle the Tigers to-morrow in what is slated to be a hard battle. Although the Holy Cross eleven is not quite as heavy as when it tackled Harvard, due to several of the best players being on the hospital list, Princeton will nevertheless have to do some playing in order to win.

Wide open playing, trick plays, and the use of the forward pass will be the line of attack which Coach Larkin intends to have the purple followers use in to-morrow's game, and if the local collegians succeed as well as they did against the Harvard players and the strengthened second team during the last week in practice, it is figured by those interested that Holy Cross will be capable of scoring on the Tigers. Every section of the team has been thoroughly tested during the daily workouts of the last week, and several changes were made in the backfield and the line which have materially strengthened it, especially in the tackling department.

HARVARD AND BROWN.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 27.—Harvard's football opponent in the Stadium to-morrow will be Brown, the team that beat the University of Pennsylvania 6 to 0 last week and which humiliated Yale last Fall 21 to 0. The Brown coaches have planned their season for the Harvard game, and the team will come up from Providence confident that it will be able to beat the Crimson, which it never has done in all the years that the teams have played football against each other.

Harvard has been getting ready for the Princeton game next week, and has made no special preparations for Brown except to plan a defense against the Providence team's open game. A hard game is expected, but the Crimson coaches expect to see their team win, although a very small score will be satisfactory.

It rained here all day, and a heavy field to-morrow will help Harvard, which all season has been developing a line-plunging game. There was no scrimmage for the eleven to-day, the regulars having an hour's signal drill and getting a lot of speed into their plays. Huntington will be at full back, with Wendell and Campbell as half backs, and the new combination is expected to make a lot of ground.

Brown came very near tying Harvard last year, and the last six games have been very close, Brown scoring in three of them and Harvard making not more than two touchdowns in any game. Capt. Fisher will lead his team to-morrow, this being his first real football since Harvard played Williams, two weeks ago. The line-up will be: Felton, left end; Hitchcock, left tackle; Leslie, left guard; Storer, centre; Fisher, right guard; Gardiner, right tackle; Smith, right end; Potter, quarter back; Campbell, left half back; Wendell, right half back, and Huntington, full back.

This is the strongest team that Harvard can put on the field, with the possible exception of Reynolds in the back field, and he will surely get a chance to-morrow.

Before the 'Varsity game the Harvard freshmen will play the Cornell 1915 team, this match having been arranged as the 'Varsity teams of the two universities will not meet this Fall. The Harvard second team, which did not play against the 'Varsity to-day, beat a combination of players from the fort teams about Boston Harbor by a score of 10 to 0.

CORNELL FEARS PITTSBURGH.

Pennsylvania Eleven Big and Husky and May Hold Ithacans.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 27.—On account of the rather strenuous exertions of the week the Cornell football squad was given a rest this afternoon, and, in spite of the sloppy weather, was taken out for an automobile ride. Outdoor practice on the wet gridiron was abandoned, but this evening the men reported at the university armory for a signal practice, which ran off very smoothly. As in the Penn State game a few weeks ago, the Ithacans will play to-morrow without Eddie Butler at quarter back. The brilliant little general is not in the best of condition, and the coaches refuse to sacrifice him for the sake of getting bigger results in to-morrow's game with Pittsburgh. They are going to let the team work it out as best they may, but, judged by the developments of the day, the men won't suffer.

Smith, the regular quarter back, will start the game, and, in order to keep a fresh general on the field all the time, the coaches will spring a new quarter back in O'Connor in the second half. O'Connor has been used occasionally in this position, and he certainly has looked pretty good. One of the fastest men on the team, a good punter, clever in handling the ball, and with more weight than Butler, he makes a very capable quarter back. The football enthusiasts would be pleased to see him in action to-morrow.

There will be another change in the 'Varsity lineup at right tackle. Champaign had not been feeling very well lately, and the coaches have decided to give him a layoff. His place will be taken by Williamson, the big sophomore, who has been doing some good work on the scrubs this season. The rest of the 'Varsity lineup will be regular, however. Capt. Munk will be in shape to play, and this is expected to strengthen the line from end to end, as Munk's experience is invaluable to the younger men. Eyrich at left end and Guyer and Stimson at right end are the selections. Munk and Williamson at tackles, O'Rourke and Munns at guards, Whyte at centre, Smith quarter back, Hawkins, McCormick, Collins, and Whyte half backs, and Underhill full back.

The Pittsburgh team, which arrived to-day and is stopping at Rogues' Harbor, weighs about twenty pounds more on the average than Cornell, and the players are much older. The Ithacans hope for a fairly dry field, but the game is expected to be close, and Cornell will consider that she is lucky to win.

Newashe Out of Indian Team.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Oct. 27.—The Carlisle Indian football team will be handicapped in the game against Lafayette at Easton to-morrow by the absence of Newashe, who has been threatened with an attack of pneumonia, and Arcasa, who is incapacitated with bruises. Indian Coach Warner put his men through a light afternoon's practice to-day and against cautioned the redskins against overconfidence. The make-up of the Indian team to-morrow will likely be: Left end, Roberts; left tackle, H. Wheelock; left guard, Jordan; centre, Carlow; right guard, Busch; right tackle, Hudge; right end, Capt. Burd; quarter back, Welch; left half back, Thorpe; right half back, J. Wheelock; full back, Powell. The Indians generally are in good shape. They leave here early to-morrow morning for Easton.

Snappy Signal Drill at West Point.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 27.—In a drizzling rain the Army eleven held a snappy signal drill this afternoon and ran through several plays they are developing for use in the final big game. In all likelihood the Navy game will be played on a wet field, but after last Saturday's weather conditions nothing short of a cyclone or a cloudburst can cause the soldiers a moment's concern. With their goal line still uncrossed, the cadets are anxious to enter the Navy game with a clean slate. The coaches decided to try out Rowley and Lamphart at the end positions to-morrow in place of Gillespie and Hoag. This change, with the exception of Littlejohn going back into his position as right tackle, is the same line-up that faced Yale last week.

Springfield Team at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 27.—The football team of the Springfield (Mass.) Training School arrived here this evening for its game to-morrow with the Syracuse University eleven.

GIANTS PAID OFF; GOING TO CUBA NEXT

Manager McGraw to Lead Invasion to Island, Where 12 Games Will Be Played.

The players of the New York team received their share of the world's series money yesterday. President Thomas J. Lynch of the National League indorsed and turned over to Manager McGraw a check for $51,164.24, and the New York manager deposited it, later making out personal checks for the players. Nineteen of the twenty-one players who were declared eligible to take part in the series received checks calling for $2,436.39. Catcher Hartley and Infielder Paulette figured in one of the remaining shares, the former getting three-fourth and the latter one-fourth. One full share remains and that will probably be divided between Coach Wilbert Robinson, Pitcher Maxwell, Outfielder Burns, and Trainer Ed Mackall. The players made up a contribution among themselves for Al Bridwell, who was traded to Boston in the middle of the season, whereby the latter will draw down the equivalent of one-half of the regular share.

Having lost out in the series, the players have decided to acept the proposition of the Cuban promoters and take a jaunt to the island for twelve games. Such a trip would not have been permissible had the Giants won the world's series. The players will leave here on Nov. 10 and will sail from Cuba on the return trip on Dec. 19. Games will be played on Sundays, Mondays, and Thursdays for four successive weeks, making twelve games in all. The players have been guaranteed $500 each and all expenses for the trip.

Manager McGraw will be in charge of the team during the Cuban invasion, but he will not have his full team. Merkle and Murray will be the only regulars out of the line-up, both having passed up the chance to go to Cuba. Devlin will play first base and Becker right field. Some of the star battery men will also be missing. Chief Meyers will leave next week for his home in California to give his personal attention to his fruit farm at Riverside, also to enjoy a much needed rest from the diamond. Marquard has accepted a vaudeville offer and will also be among those not going to Cuba. Those who will make the trip are: Catchers Wilson and Hartley, Pitchers Mathewson, Wiltse, and Crandall, Infielders Devlin, Doyle, Fletcher, and Herzog, and Outfielders Devore, Becker, and Snodgrass. Nine of the party are married men, and they are accorded the privilege of bringing their wives along, all expenses of the party being guaranteed by the Cubans.

The Giants will make their last appearance of the year in uniform to-morrow afternoon, when Larry Doyle will assemble the team on Lenox Oval, at 145th Street and Lenox Avenue, where they will play Ty Cobb's all-star club. Rube Marquard will pitch.

HARRY DAVIS AS MANAGER.

Athletics' Veteran First Baseman to Head Cleveland Club.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 27.—Harry H. Davis, first baseman of the world's champion Athletics, and lieutenant of Connie Mack, their manager, to-day signed a contract to manage the Cleveland team of the American League in 1912. He arrived here this morning from Philadelphia and immediately went into conference with President Charles Somers and Vice President E. S. Barnard of the Cleveland Club.

No announcement as to the nature of the contract was made. It is understood, however, that Davis will have entire control of the team, including the purchase and trading of players.

Davis succeeds George Stovall as manager of the team. The latter probably will be traded or sold to some other club. He has been manager since last Spring, taking the place of "Jim" McGuire, who resigned three weeks after the season started, because of the club's poor showing. Stovall produced good results immediately, bringing the club from sixth position in the pennant race to third, where it finished.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—When Connie Mack, manager of the world's champions, was informed that Davis had signed a Cleveland contract, he said:

"I knew that Davis was negotiating with the Cleveland Club. I am sorry to lose him. He had a life position with the Athletic Club. He has been such a wonderful help to the club and to me, however, that we did not stand in his way when an opportunity came for him to be a manager. He will be an ideal manager and will make a good showing. I wish him all the success in the world."

Davis, while Captain of the Athletics, helped to win four American League pennants and two world's championships.

Triple Tie in Columbia Baseball.

By defeating the juniors on South Field yesterday the Columbia Law School baseball team evened up the series for the Eddie Collins medals and created a triple tie. The game was called at the end of the sixth inning, when the score was 2 to 1 in favor of the Law School. Ulrich, the 'Varsity pitcher, twirled for the juniors and held the opposing team safe until the fifth inning, when he was hit hard. Bailey, the Law School pitcher, was steady throughout, and the juniors scored their only run on errors. The result of the game brought about a triple tie between the Law School and the junior and senior teams. Another round robin series will be played, and if a second triple tie results the deciding game will not be played until next Spring. The score follows:

Law School ....0 0 0 2 .—2 6 0

Batteries—Ulrich and Maloy; Bailey and Williams. Umpire—A. M. Lee, Jr.

Baker's All Stars to Play.

The gates of Olympic Field, 136th Street and Fifth Avenue, will be closed for the season after the game there to-morrow between Home-Run Baker's All Stars and Red McMahon's Lincoln Giants. Baker himself will play third base, and Manager McMahon has offered a special prize to Baker for every home run he makes in the game. McClellan, the star southpaw, will be in the box for the Lincolns, and Chappie Johnson will backstop. All the other members of the Lincolns will be in the game. Play will be called at 3 o'clock. There will be a game at 1 P. M. between two fast semi-professional teams.

Louisville at Edison Park.

There will be another banner attraction at Edison Park, Lorraine and Henry Streets, Brooklyn, to-morrow at 3 P. M., when the Velta Athletic Club play the Louisville American Association team. Johnny Burke, formerly of South Brooklyn, and who played left field for the Brooklyn Edison team for two seasons, and was then drafted from them by the Louisville Club, will play the same position against some of his old friends.

Giants to Play at Lenox Oval.

Ty Cobb's All-Stars will play a team under the management of Larry Doyle at Lenox Oval, 145th Street and Lenox Avenue, to-morrow afternoon. Cobb will have Joe Lake and Kritchell as his battery. Ames and Meyers will be in the points for Doyle's team, and other Giants who will play are Devore, Murray, Merkle, Snodgrass, Devlin, Herzog and Fletcher.

Bowdoin's New Captain.

BRUNSWICK, Me., Oct. 27.—Leland H. Means of Orleans, Neb., was to-night unanimously elected Captain of the Bowdoin College basebal team for the coming year. Means is a pitcher and a member of the class of 1912.

YALE SUBS TO GET CHANCE.

Many Changes Will Be Made in Team That Will Play Colgate.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 27.—Plenty of substitutes will be scattered through Yale's battle line to-morrow in the game against Colgate, but the coaches are inclined to regard the contest as one of minor importance on the schedule. The hard driven Eli team has been exceeding the speed limit all week because West Point had the jump on it last Saturday, and the maximum of minor injuries for the season has undoubtedly been reached.

Ketcham, Philbin, Capt. Howe, and Childs cannot play to-morrow, and, outside of the size of the Yale score, interest will centre on the showing of several Yale substitutes, who will get their baptism of gridiron fire. Marting, who has sprung up from the third team and has been played at centre, guard, and tackle, will be started as snap-back in place of Ketcham. Cooney, first substitute for the place, is needed at guard in place of Childs, whose back, injured in the West Point game, will keep him benched two weeks longer. In the absence of Capt. Howe, Dick Merritt, the baseball Captain, will run the eleven. Flaws crept into his work at West Point, but he has driven the team at a fast rate all the week in practice.

It is unlikely that McDevitt and Paul will play long. Both have bruised knees. Perry, the wrestling team Captain, will take Paul's place, and Thomas St. Germaine, the Carlisle School player, will be used at guard when McDevitt retires. The advent of St. Germaine is awaited with interest because no Indian, negro, or Mongolian player has ever been enrolled on a Yale football or athletic team, with the exception of a Chinese crew coxswain. A scarcity of guard material at Yale may ultimately give St. Germaine his "Y" this season.

Head Coach Field said to-night that Capt. Howe may be sent into two or three plays to-morrow, especially in case Yale needs a field goal. Howe has not been in a scrimmage for two weeks, but has stepped from the side lines to punt or drop kick for his team occasionally.

The Yale delegation to the Harvard-Brown game at Cambridge will be large. Several former Yale players will attend, and from the Yale staff Philbin and Ketcham will be present.

Yale's preparation for the Colgate game closed with two hours' open practice, more than half of which was devoted to a painstaking rehearsal of protective formation for kicks and attempted goals from behind the rushline, with every variety of play. Capt. Howe was in splendid goal kicking form, and Francis, Philbin, Merritt, and McDevitt also showed class.

Although the gates of Yale field have not been closed this week the coaches probably will hold secret practice next week and continue it practically to the end of the season. Yale has shown nothing in the line of scoring plays, and its attack will be perfected in secret for the final games.

Sailors in Football Match.

The football eleven of the United States Steamship Connecticut defeated the team of the United States Steamship New Hampshire yesterday at Van Cortlandt Park for the chapionship of the first division of the Atlantic Fleet, by the score of 28 to 0. The victors were strengthened to a considerable extent by the work of three midshipmen who were prominent on the Navy team several years ago. Shingluff of the Navy team in 1905, Lang who captained the Annapolis eleven in 1908, and Richardson of the Navy team of 1909 were the three who were responsible for the one-sided victory for the Connecticut eleven.

The New Hampshire's lin ework was very weak and their opponents had little trouble in wading through it. Although the New Hampshire team was unable to score they showed a knowledge of the new rules and both sides played a strong game aside from the star work by the three middies. The preliminary games of the series were contested at Hampton Roads, Virginia.

The second and third divisions will play at the same grounds to-day for the supremacy of the two divisions and the victors of this game will be opposed by the Connecticut team for the final championship of the Atlantic Fleet. The line-up.

N. Y. U. Goes to Williamstown.

Williams and New York University play to-day at Williamstown in what promises to be a game full of the new style of football. Both teams are very fast and rely chiefly on forward passes and onside kicks to gain their ground.

Williams has been defeated this year by Harvard and Springfield Training School, but these scores were very small and are no criterion at all of the strength of the team. New York outweighs Williams about seven pounds to the man, but they go to Williamstown having played only two games this year and with a team far from being in first-class shape. Williams, on the other hand, has played four games and is getting into condition for the final contest of the season with Amherst.

The Purple team will outdistance New York in the kicking, as the local college has no one to compare with Michaels and Fish, who will punt for Williams. Fish is likewise a star at drop kicking and is a dangerous man within the forty-yard mark. New York has a strong line, and the Massachusetts aggregation will have a hard time piercing it. The New York team will line up as follows: Left end Crawford; left tackle, Vesely; left guard, Mackay; centre, Torrence or Bristol; right guard, Henneverger; right tackle, Wiener; right end, Dutcher; quarter back, Nixon; left half back, Ellife; right half back, Moore; full back, Brennan, Captain.

Brown and Gilchrist Out of Navy Line.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 27.—There will be two changes in the line-up of the navy team tomorrow, when it plays Western Reserve, Brown, the big left tackle, and Gilchrist, right end, not being in condition to play. Ralston will succeed Brown, and Whiting will take Gilchrist's place. The changes will reduce the average weight of the team considerably. Though suffering to some extent with a sprained knee, Capt. Dalton will start the game in his place at left half. This will make the back field the same as that which played against Princeton on last Saturday. Leonard, the fast scrub, who has done such good work in practice this week, will probably get a chance during the game.

Arnst Will Not Row Durnan.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Oct. 27.—"Eddie" Hardon Rurnan, the Canadian sculler, replying to a cablegram from Richard Arnst of New Zealand, the world's champion sculler, offers $750 for expenses and one-half of the gate receipts for a match with the champion at Toronto. Arnst, who had indicated his willingness to row in Canada under certain conditions, does not consider Durnan's proposition as sufficient inducement.

SIX COLLEGES IN BASKET BALL LEAGUE

Columbia to Open the Season with Dartmouth, the New Member, on Dec. 16.

Representatives of all six colleges, which comprise the Eastern Intercollegiate Basket Ball Association, met last night at the Hotel Imperial to appoint an Executive Committee, arrange a schedule and discuss all points incidental to the opening of the season of 1911-1912. The meeting was largely attended and it was the prevailing opinion among the delegates that the coming season would be one of the greatest in the history of the sport.

The league will be made up this year of six teams, Dartmouth being added to the five which were represented last year: Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Cornell, and Columbia. The delegates in attendance at last night's meeting were as follows: Yale—R. B. Hyatt and J. M. Ely, manager. Princeton—W. W. Roper, Athletic Director; A. Devereaux, Manager, and V. B. Jarvis, Assistant Manager. Pennsylvania—Ralph Morgan, L. B. Walton, Captain, and J. W. Bodley, Jr., Assistant Manager. Cornell—G. E. Kent, Graduate Manager; W. E. Irish, Manager; Prof. G. V. P. Young. Columbia—Harry A. Fisher, Graduate Manager and Coach; A. A. Clyne, Manager. Dartmouth—J. W. Gannon and H. S. Fuller, Manager.

The Executive Committee for the season was elected as follows: R. B. Hyatt, Yale, Chairman; Ralph Morgan, Pennsylvania, Secretary; Harry A. Fisher, Columbia; Prof. G. V. P. Young, Cornell; Dr. J. E. Raycroft, Princeton.

The rules of the game did not come up for discussion, as the code which was recently issued by the Rules Committee was thoroughly understood and entirely satisfactory. A few changes have been incorporated in the playing rules since the close of last season, but they are all of a minor nature.

The schedule was not definitely decided upon last night, as the dates for five or six games in the original schedule had to be changed, and it will be necessary to receive faculty consent for the new dates. The revised schedule will be given out in about two weeks.

An innovation regarding referees will be introduced this year, the plan being to have all the officials in charge of an appointive board, as is the case in football. This, it is thought, will do away with disputes between colleges in the choice of referees for important games. A list of officials has been made out by the Rules Committee, and the Executive Committee of the association will appoint the officials for all league games. The committee went into session immediately after the meeting last evening, and decided upon the officials for all games. This list will be issued with the revised schedule.

The league season will open on Dec. 16, Columbia and Dartmouth figuring in the opening game at Hanover. Cornell and Dartmouth will close the season at Hanover on March 2. Thirty games will be played during the league season, each team opposing each of the other five at home and abroad.

In an effort to bring about a National championship the delegates voted in favor of one or more games between the champion teams of the Eastern and Western Associations. Secretary Morgan was instructed to communicate with the Western Association to find out the views of that body, and to arrange, if possible, for a championship game or games.

A vote of thanks was tendered to James E. Sullivan of the A. A. U. for the banner which he presented last year as a trophy for the champion team.

Steeplechasing, Hurdling, and Running on Flat at Belmont Terminal.

The first day's racing of the Fall season at Belmont Terminal, adjacent to Belmont Park, will be held this afternoon under the auspices of the United Hunts Association. This hill and dale course attracts New York and Long Island society in large numbers, especially from the hunting and horse show sets, and these occasional days of racing are productive of excellent sport and keen competition among the young gentlemen amateur riders of this section.

The programme for to-day is varied, opening with a hurdle race of about 1½ miles, then a private sweepstake, in which Raymond Belmont's Culvert, Harry W. Smith's Nattie Bumpo, and Robert Kelly's Kinderhook will race in the feature event at five furlongs. Two steeplechases and a race for the Nassau plate will complete the card of the afternoon's sport. Special trains will run from the Pennsylvania Station, Thirty-third Street, to the course. The entries follow:

YALE STADIUM IN 1913.

Great Athletic Plant to Seat 70,000 Persons—Football Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 27. — Although none of the details of Yale's proposed new stadium have been settled, the committee which has been appointed for a two years' term to direct the work has become convinced that the new structure cannot be completed before 1913. It was said by a member of the committee to-night that this makes it certain that the Yale-Harvard game next year must be played on the field surrounded by the old wooden stands on the present Yale field.

On of the results of this, according to Everard Thompson, who has charge of the Yale football ticket distribution, will be to cause the number of tickets which each Yale graduate can get next year to be limited to one. This year two are allowed. Until last year three was the limit.

It is known that preliminary architectural plans for the new Yale stadium call for a structure holding 70,000 people. This is more than twice as large as the Harvard stadium. The task of financing the problem and of constructing the stadium make it impossible to begin work on it before next Summer, and fully a year will be required for its completion after the foundations are begun. The stadium will be the largest in the world, and will house all of Yale's big athletic events. Many alumni urge Yale to transfer the Harvard football game next Fall to New York City, where it can be played on the Polo Grounds, where 38,000 spectators can be accommodated, but the sentiment among the Faculty is strongly adverse to removing the contest from college grounds for even one year.

The selection of officials for the Yale-Princeton football game still hangs fire, but the set will probably be almost the same as last year. Officials for all the other games Yale will play this season were given out to-night by the football manager as follows:

Yale-Colgate game—Referee, W. S. Langford, Trinity; umpire, R. G. Torrey, University of Pennsylvania; field judge, J. H. Costello, Cornell; head linesman, Dr. Talcott B. Hull, Yale.

Yale-New York—Referee, A. E. Whiting, Cornell; umpire, David Fultz, Brown; field judge, N. E. Davis, Wesleyan; head linesman, J. A. Hatch, Williams.

Yale-Brown—Referee, Joseph Pendleton; umpire, J. N. Morice, University of Pennsylvania; field judge, Robert G. Torrey, University of Pennsylvania; head linesman, N. E. Davis, Wesleyan.

Yale-Harvard—Referee, W. S. Langford; umpire, David Fultz; field judge, J. N. Morice; head linesman, Joseph Pendleton.

DE WITT CLINTON GAMES.

Juniors Defeat Seniors, 42 to 27—Capt. Trenholm Stars.

The juniors of the De Witt Clinton High School defeated the seniors in the interclass games yesterday, 42 to 27. The feature of the competition was the contest in the high jump between Daniel Trenholm, Captain of the track team, and Phillip Carlin, the team manager. The former finally won by one inch. Trenholm was easily the star of the games, winning four firsts for his class. Next Friday the juniors and sophomores will hold their interclass games in the school gymnasium to decide the championship of the school. The summaries:

NEW AUTO ROUTE PLANNED.

E. L. Ferguson to Take Readings in South for Map for the A. A. A.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 27.—American Automobile Association officials decided to-day to send E. L. Ferguson north upon a new National highway scouting trip, beginning Saturday morning. He will take readings for a strip map of the new road, which is to include Columbia, S. C., Augusta, and Savannah, Ga. This new route to New York will be much shorter than the one over which the Glidden tour entered Jacksonville. The new highway will join the "Dixie Trail" at Charlotte, N. C.

Gov. Smith Gets Auto Trophy.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 27.—Gov. Hoke Smith's car in the Glidden tour has been awarded the Anderson trophy, having taken the winning number in the drawing. There were fourteen individual cars with perfect scores.

Long Island Yachtsmen Meet.

At the regular meeting of the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound, held last night at the Hotel Astor, at which Charles P. Tower presided in the absence of President Stuyvesant Wainwright, these members were elected as Nominating Committee for 1912: Ward Wilson, George P. Granbery, C. Sherman Hoyt, Harry Stephenson, and Charles P. Tower. A long communication from R. W. J. Kingan, owner of the one-design boat Scaup of the Stamford Yacht Club, in which he protested against the decision of the committee in a race of that club on May 30, and suggesting a change in the rules so as to allow racing men the right to appeal to the association, was referred to its Executive Committee to report at the next meeting.

Talk No. 10

SIMPLEX engineering takes care of every detail. Here is an important factor in Simplex construction that receives special attention: We make all the nuts and bolts we use in the different chassis. Sometimes the stretch of a thousandth part of an inch in a bolt is sufficient to allow the nut to back off and probably cause serious trouble. By knowing the quality of materials used in this department we eliminate the possibility of trouble. Some would say this is too small a point to consider—but is it? We believe that nothing is unimportant in a Simplex Car.

WATER POLO RULES MAY BE CHANGED

Yale and Princeton Will Oppose Any Modification in Meeting Here.

A proposed change in the rules governing water polo as played in the colleges is scheduled to create some warm discussion at a meeting of the Inter-Collegiate Swimming Association to be held to-morrow in this city. The motion will be introduced by Columbia, and there is little doubt that both Yale and Princeton will bitterly oppose the change.

The motion will concern the method now obtaining of allowing the players to swim for the ball after a goal has been scored. Capt. Barker of the Columbia water polo team discussed the motion yesterday and explained the stand of the Morningside Heights players on the amendment.

"In water polo," he said, "the team first gaining possession of the ball has a decided advantage, for it can try at once for a goal, while the other side must undergo a hard scrimmage before getting the rubber into the opponents' territory. It follows naturally, that one swimmer speedy enough to get the ball after each line-up often enables the inferior team to win, and this is not fair.

"We believe that the method adopted in football of giving the ball to the side that has been scored upon would be a lot more satisfactory. By lining up the backs behind their own four-foot line and the forwards on the 15-foot line would equalize matters and not give an unwarranted advantage to either team."

One of the Yale players has outlined their stand on the motion in controversy as follows: "We admit the contention that possession of the ball gives an advantage, but we do not think that it is an unfair one. Water polo is a swimming game and speed should be at a premium. If a team develops a forward fast enough to get the ball every time, why should it be deprived of the benefits of it? Coaches frequently have to sacrifice speed for weight or weight for speed in choosing their players, and the present rule works the same for all teams. Let the protestants pay more attention to developing speed in their players and they will have no complaint to make. We consider at Yale that the proposed amendment would place an unwarranted hardship on the better team."

Delegates from Yale, Columbia, College of the City of New York, Princeton, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Amherst, Williams, Brown, and possibly Syracuse, will attend the league council. Officers to serve during the season of 1911-12 will be elected, a tentative schedule will be arranged for the championship meets, and the question of combining the inter-collegiate and New England associations will be discussed.

BANGS QUITS ROWING BOARD

Columbia Race at Annapolis and Philadelphia Again Next May.

The resignation of Francis S. Bangs, Columbia '78, from the Board of Stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association was accepted yesterday at a meeting of the Rowing Club held at Columbia University Club. At the same time a vote of thanks was given for his untiring efforts in advancing intercollegiate rowing. In Mr. Bangs's place, Morton G. Bogue, Columbia '00, was chosen.

A race with Annapolis was assured for Columbia by a vote authorizing negotiations to be opened immediately by the Columbia manager, and it was further decided to again enter crews in the Schuylkill regatta held annually at Philadelphia. The date for the Annapolis race will be May 11, while the Schuylkill regatta will take place on May 24.

The members of the 1914 crew were voted their oars by the Directors. The sweeps used in the winning freshman eight are among the priceless treasures of all who manned them in the race, and they will go to adorn dormitory walls. The interclass meet to be held on the Hudson next month is still rather doubtful, but if held will take place on Nov. 4.

A. A. U. WRESTLING BOUTS.

Matches in Three Classes Decided at Bronx Church House.

Several fast and hard-fought wrestling bouts were held at the Bronx Church House in the A. A. U. tournament last night. Amateur wrestlers representing many of the settlements in the city competed for gold medals in the 120, 130, and 140 pound classes, and the event brought out one of the largest crowds that has yet attended a similar event at the church house.

The bout between L. Ruggerio of the Grace A. C. and J. Litowitz of the Educational Alliance was one of the most exciting of the evening, and went two periods before Litowitz succeeded in getting the fall from his opponent. Both men appeared evenly matched, but in the second period Ruggerio perceptibly weakened after the first minute, and it was then apparent that he had lost out.

V. V. Vosen of the Bronx Church House put up a scrappy tussle against H. Halickman in the final of the 130-pound class, but the latter outweighed Vosen, and he did not have much chance of a fall. C. Carlson of the Swedish-American A. C. outclassed H. Prymus of the Central A. C. in the final of the 140-pound class. The summaries:

120-Pound Class.—L. Ruggerio, Grace A. C., defeated A. Horn, St. George A. C., bar and body hold. Time—2:08. J. Mille, St. George A. C., defeated E. Schuszler, St. Bartholomew's A. C., with a body hold. Time—1:08. V. V. Vosen, Bronx Church House, won from D. Madeo, Pennant A. C., by default. J. Litowitz, Educational Alliance, drew a bye. Semi-final—L. Ruggerio, Grace A. C., defeated J. Mille, St. George A. C., with crotch hold. Time—1:30. J. Litowitz, Educational Alliance, defeated V. V. Vosen, Bronx Church House, on work done. Time—6:00. Final—J. Litowitz, Educational Alliance, defeated L. Ruggerio, Grace A. C., with full Nelson. Time—9:10.

130-Pound Class.—First Round—N. Ewens, Grace A. C. defeated Perybylski, Franklin A. C., with crotch hold. Time—3:50. V. V. Vosen, Bronx Church House, defeated Swanson, Swedish-American A. C., with half-Nelson. Time—2:35. Halickman, Educational Alliance, defeated Levin, Educational Alliance, on work done. Time—6:00. C. Ritchie, Bronx Church House, drew a bye. Semi-final—H. Halickman, Educational Alliance, defeated C. Ritchie, Bronx Church House, with crotch hold. Time—0:22. V. V. Vosen, Bronx Church House, defeated W. Ewens, Grace A. C., with half-Nelson hold. Time—4:51. Final—H. Halickman, Educational Alliance, defeated V. V. Vosen, Bronx Church House, with crotch and far Nelson. Time—4:25.

140-Pound Class.—C. Carlson, Swedish-American A. C., defeated R. Siebern, Bronx Church House, with half-Nelson hold. Time—1:23. H. Prymus, Central A. C., defeated G. De Vere, Jr., Bronx Church House, with arm hold. Time—2:57. Semi-final—C. Carlson, Swedish-American A. C., defeated J. Pantaze, Greek-American A. C., with crotch hold and Nelson. Time—7:10. Final—C. Carlson, Swedish-American A. C., defeated H. Prymus, Central A. C., with a half-Nelson and crotch hold. Time—3:32.

With the Wrestlers.

Zbyszko, the big Polish wrestler, will arrive in New York to-day. He is a passenger on the steamer Auguste Victoria, which sailed from Hamburg on Oct. 19. Zbyszko comes to America with the avowed purpose of forcing Frank Gotch into a match for the world's championship title. Forfeit money will be posted in New York on Monday.

John Middelsky, the only American Indian wrestler in the world, will try to show sport lovers that an aborigine can be a first-class grappler when he faces Ivan Romanoff, the Russian giant, in a finish match in the Harlem Casino Monday night. Paul Samson, the man Dr. Roller failed to throw in an hour, will appear against George Sendele. Middelsky and Romanoff are two of the biggest wrestlers that ever came to New York. The Indian stands 6 feet 6 inches and weighs more than 300 pounds. The Russian is 6 feet 8 inches tall and weighs close to 300 pounds.

Whitney and Vanderbilt Win.

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 27.—The Queensberry Handicap of 500 sovereigns, for three-year-olds and upward, distance five furlongs, was run here to-day and won by H. P. Whitney's Iron Mask II. The Tower was second and Well Done third. There were eight starters.

MAISONS-LAFITTE, France, Oct. 27.—The Prix de Crecy, a selling event of $800, for two-year-olds, was won here to-day by W. K. Vanderbilt's Batyrane.

SMITH WINS AT BROWN'S.

Jersey Fighter Carries Fight to Kid Burns and Earns Honors.

Cy Smith of Hoboken defeated Kid Burns of the west side last night in Brown's Gymnasium in a ten-round bout which went the limit. Both men were considerably beaten up, but throughout the latter part of the go Smith was the aggressor, winning all of the last five rounds. Burns was the victor in the opening part of the battle, scoring enough in the first, second, fourth and fifth to get a popular decision up to that stage. The third was even.

Burns had a shade the worst of it in the matter of weight and was the victim of Smith's rushing tactics, which helped to wear him down in the latter stages. He began in capital shape, however, jabbing and crossing with his right in a manner which made Smith respect him until half the battle had been fought.

Beginning the sixth round Smith started boring tactics and in one of his rushes, which were bull-like, he opened up a gash in Burns's scalp which refused to stop bleeding throughout the remainder of the "mill." He did hard work with his infighting, Burns contenting himself with attempting to stop such work with rights to the jaw.

No matter how many such wallops Burns put across, Smith always came back apparently ready and willing for more, in the meanwhile playing the liveliest kind of a tattoo on his opponent's body. Burns put over some corking smashes to the jaw in an attempt to check the rushes, but there was no apparent change in the speed of the Jerseyman.

Starting the seventh round Smith ran at his man as though beside himself immediately the bell sounded and forced matters. Both were a trifle wild in their attempts to land a winning punch, Burns meeting several rushes with rights which rocked Smith. The latter mussed his man up considerably in the close work, causing Burns to assert that he was being hit low. He was at all times swinging rights and lefts to the body in a way that left the west sider weak at the end of the session.

Smith began to make play for the wind commencing the eighth, scoring with both hands repeatedly. Burns woke up to the fact that he was getting the worst of the battle and shot across his right to good purpose during this part of the round. Continuous body punches helped to take the steam out of his blows, and left Smith in a position to carry the fight to his man almost at will.

Both got in close beginning the ninth round, and each was particularly busy. Smith's rushes, however, were having their effect, and he was slowly but surely wearing his man down. The last round was a repetition of the four previous ones, Smith doing most of the work. Burns woke up for a few moments in the middle of the session, and gave his admirers some hope, but the comeback was only temporary, causing Smith to wade in as before and wallop his man, who was inclined to clinch toward the end.

LITTLE KNOCKED OUT.

Young Cashman Sends Chicagoan to Dreamland in Seventh Round.

Walter Little, the Chicago lightweight, who has suffered only one defeat, which was at the hands of Champion Ad Wolgast, and whom Packey McFarland picked as the coming champion, was defeated the second time last night when Young Cashman, a local boy from the Hamilton A. C., knocked him out in the seventh round of the star bout at the New Polo A. C.

The contest was one of the fastest ever witnessed at the Harlem Club. Cashman outweighed Little, and in addition to reach, had a much more powerful pair of shoulders.

Cashman was the master of the bout from the start in all except a few instances, when his opponent played at long range, and after a bad start in the opening round, in which Little was almost knocked out, he showed plenty of cleverness, and was about to take the upper hand when the knockout was scored. Little was unable to get started properly in the first session, and seeing his opportunity the boy from the Hamilton A. C. was keen to grasp the situation. He went straight for Little, and was all over him with right and left hooks to the body, and after driving Little through the ropes followed up his advantage by dropping his man for the first time.

It looked as though the contest would end in this session, but Little covered cleverly and then shot a right to the heart, and the pair dropped to the floor. Cashman then staggered Little with a right and left to the jaw, and repeated the dose in quick fashion. As the bell sounded Little had just stuck a stiff left jab to the face.

Little used good headwork in the second round, and stayed away from Cashman as much as possible and did much better work from long range by getting over some clean jabs. Cashman was slow and did not force the work as in the initial session, the round ending even. Cashman again forced matters in the third and fourth rounds, and had a shade the better in the third, with a clean victory in the fourth.

The fifth went to Little by a safe margin after he had scored some hard punches, which were all from a distance, and by keeping out of danger had Cashman guessing at his attack. He continued his fast work in the sixth round and forced Cashman to do his best in order to stave off the volley of jabs. Little appeared to be taking the upper hand in the seventh, but was a trifle wild, and Cashman, who packs a terrific punch, shot over a left to the heart. Little went down and took the count of nine, but had no sooner regained his feet than a second blow of the same nature sent him to the floor again. He was in very bad shape as he came up for the third time, and wabbling about, unable to defend himself, Cashman hooked a left to the jaw, followed with a right over the heart, and another left to the face put Little to the floor in a heap and completely out.

The semi-final was also a good contest in which Jimmie Paul outclassed Jimmie Sullivan from the start in a fast and slam-bang encounter.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

Biz Mackey of Cleveland and Johnny Lore, the west side boxer, are scheduled to go ten rounds in the star bout of to-night's show at the Sharkey A. C. Joe Mooney and Billy Williams will clash in the six-round semi-final.

Charlie Goldman and Marty Allen will be the headliners of the opening show.

HOUNDS LEAD MERRY CHASE AFTER FOXES

Green Spring Valley Pack Makes One "Kill" in Long Island Run.

Special to The New York Times.

MEADOW BROOK, L. I., Oct. 27.—It has generally been conceded that the fox hunting of the Green Spring Valley hounds the past week has been the best sport of the kind afforded in the Long Island country this year. In the run this morning, with Redmond Stuart, Master of Hounds, leading the field, the hounds led a big party of riders from the meeting place at the Blue Hotel, through the North Shore section, starting two foxes and making one "kill."

The start was between 6 and 7 o'clock, and hardly had the hounds been released when they started a big red fox. They raced it to Glen Cove, then to East Norwich, and over the rolling country toward Piping Rock, leading the hunters a fast pace.

The hunters included some of the pick of the Meadow Brook colonists' stables. The veteran timber toppers were on their mettle and negotiated the stiff rail fences in splendid shape. At Piping Rock the pack closed and the brush was awarded to the first "in at the death."

Shortly afterward the hounds started another fox. It ran in the direction of Oyster Bay, circled back and, forsaking the open for the protection of the village, ran over the Long Island Railway, crossing at Locust Valley and escaped.

Those out to-day were Redmond Stuart, M. F. H.; Mrs. Stuart, Philip Livermore, Harvey Ladew, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, the Misses Hitchcock, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Burden, Ralph N. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davis, Robert F. Potter, J. A. Rawlins, Henry C. Phipps, and Jay Phipps. Mr. and Mrs. Stuart are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Davis at Wheatley. They leave Sunday morning to go back to Green Spring Valley.

BEATTY'S LONG SHOT PUT.

Columbia Sophomore Throws Ball 49 Feet 2¾ Inches.

With a put of 49 feet 2¾ inches, R. L. Beatty, a sophomore at Columbia University, bettered the intercollegiate shot put record by eight inches yesterday afternoon in the finish of the interclass games started on South Field last Wednesday. In warming up prior to the event yesterday afternoon, Beatty put the sphere 49 feet 7 inches. This mark made by Beatty betters the Columbia record, held by W. Roos, '13, over three feet.

The management of the track team, in contemplation of a record breaking feat by Beatty, had C. H. Mapes, Harry A. Fisher, and A. H. Smith present to verify the reading of the tape and the measurements were all certified by these men. Bernie Wefers, who also was present, is confident that this young prodigy can beat the world's record within the year, and his work will be watched again with interest in the sophomore-freshman meet to be held next Wednesday on South Field.

In addition to starring in the shot put, Beatty completely outclassed the other Columbia men who were entered in the discus throw by hurling the discus 118 feet 7¾ inches.

Beatty's 10 points gained in these two events upsets the victory which the seniors had apparently won last Wednesday, and the sophomores are now the final victors with a margin of 3 points. The total scores now give the sophomores 38¼ points, the seniors second, with 35¼ points, the law school third, with 18 points, the juniors fourth, with 11 points, and the freshmen last, with 9 points. The summaries:

Shot Put.—Won by R. L. Beatty, 1914, with a put of 49 feet 2¾ inches; R. Hale, 1914, second, with a put of 37 feet 11¼ inches; G. Fishell, 1915, third, with a put of 32 feet 11¼ inches.

Discus Throw.—Won by R. L. Beatty, 1914, with a throw of 118 feet 7¾ inches; H. S. Babcock, 1912, second, with a throw of 96 feet 2½ inches; R. Hale, 1914, third, with a throw of 95 feet 4¼ inches.

Hoppe Wins from Slosson.

Willie Hoppe, who is matched to play George Sutton for the 18.2 balk line billiard championship title of the world on Nov. 28 at the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, defeated George Slosson in last night's game of the practice series in which he is playing at the latter's billiard academy, Thirty-first Street and Broadway, by the score of 500 to 409. The champion's high run was 121, and he had an average of 20 points. Slosson's best run netted him 70 points, with an average of 17.

Garfunkle Wins with Cue.

In the continuation of the amateur 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at John Doyle's Forty-second Street Billiard Academy last night, S. Garfunkle easily defeated Stephen Cortelyou by the score of 150 to 60. The contest required thirty-two innings and the winner made the high run of 20, while Cortelyou's best run was 13.

ST. NICHOLAS RINK OPEN.

Skating Season Here and Hockey Begins in a Month.

The St. Nicholas Rink was formally opened to the public last night for the season of 1911-12, and upward of 3,000 people accepted the invitation to be guests of the management. Upward of 5,000 cards were sent out. The skating surface was completely filled throughout the evening, and the opening far surpassed that of any previous year.

Since the rink was closed last season upward of $20,000 has been expended in the way of improvements, affording better facilities for skating, more spacious galleries for spectators, and in every way adding to the comfort of patrons. The installation of an entirely new freezing plant will obviate the possibility of having to close the rink at any time this season on account of soft ice, as was necessary several times last season.

To afford a better view of the playing surface for hockey enthusiasts, the entire west balcony has been cut off, the boxes have been removed, and new seats arranged in such a way that occupants are afforded an uninterrupted view of everything that occurs on the ice.

Three sessions, with band concerts, will be held daily, and the Monday Club will not have the rink one entire day each week as in previous years. The hockey season will begin about Dec. 1, starting with the usual games between the Canadian and American champions, to be followed by the regular games of the Amateur Hockey League.

Paul Withington Wins Race.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 27.—The Harvard Fall track handicap games, which were held in a drizzling rain to-day, were noteworthy mainly for the work of Capt. Paul Withington of the track team in the three-mile run. Withington went the distance in 15:22. The track was heavy from rain, and the time in most of the events was slow. Because of the adverse weather conditions the field events were held inside the baseball cage. The broad jump went to P. G. M. Austin, his distance being 21 feet 2 inches.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The tropical disturbance passed westward near Havana early Friday morning, and to-night it is probably in the Southern Gulf of Mexico traveling westward. Very low temperatures prevail from Texas to Canada and the lake region, being below freezing as far south as the Texas Panhandle, where several inches of snow fell.

On Sunday generally fair weather is indicated. It will be somewhat colder Saturday from the Lower Mississippi Valley into the Atlantic States, and continue cool on Sunday. In the West temperatures will again be rising by Sunday.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate north; Middle and South Atlantic Coasts, moderate north and northeast.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have moderate north winds with cooler weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Colder and generally fair Saturday; Sunday fair, moderate north winds.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Close with Rally After Sharp Declines on News of Steel Corporation Suit.

BREAK OF 8 POINTS IN STEEL

Other Stocks Much Less Affected—Railway Issues Relatively Firm—Interest in Tobacco Hearing Increased.

All things considered the stock market gave a good account of itself yesterday in the face of the news of the Government's suit for the dissolution of the United States Steel Corporation. The selling of United States Steel was conducted on a scale seldom witnessed in any stock, and a fall of over 8 points accompanied the liquidation and the heavy short selling, but elsewhere in the list the declines in prices did not amount to severe market unsettlement. This was particularly true of the railroads, a number of which showed but small losses, and even among the industrial issues net losses of over 2½ points were exceptional. The railroad stocks which suffered most were Union Pacific and Reading, and sight was not lost of the fact that both of these companies are now before the court in actions begun by the Federal Government. The relative firmness in yesterday's trading of the railroad issues as a whole is in keeping with the feeling widely entertained that the railroads have about passed through their formative period of Government regulation and that they occupy in this respect a less uncertain position than many industrial concerns which are naturally under the influence of such proceedings as the dissolution of the Standard Oil and American Tobacco Companies, and the present suit against the Steel Corporation. The closing prices yesterday were by no means the worst of the day, for as was natural after the decline which had taken place, particularly after such a severe fall as that which occurred in United States Steel, there was a very considerable amount of buying from various sources which brought an upturn from the low level of the day.

Discussion very naturally turned yesterday to the matter of the dividend on United States Steel common. The Directors are scheduled to meet on Tuesday next to act on the quarterly dividend, and up to yesterday when the Street had before it the news of the Government suit there was no discussion at all of the action which would be taken at that meeting. The decision of the Directors of the Steel Corporation cannot, of course, be forecasted, but there are certain considerations which may well serve to lessen any feeling of uneasiness among the company's stockholders in respect to the action which may be expected at next Tuesday's meeting. Among these considerations is the understanding that the net returns for the third quarter of the year out of which the next dividends are to be declared have been ample to meet the corporation's dividend requirements despite the relatively low prices for steel products which have recently prevailed. It must be evident, too, that the Steel Corporation Directors would not lightly decide upon a step which would be calculated to aggravate the feeling of uneasiness which the Government suit against the corporation has naturally brought about. Even more importance will now attach to the outcome of the hearing before the United States Circuit Court on the proposed plan of reorganization of the American Tobacco Company for the views regarding the possible results of the suit which the Government has undertaken against the Steel Corporation will be formulated to some extent in the light of the outcome of the proceedings for the reorganization of the American Tobacco Company.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Transactions in United States Steel common on the Consolidated Stock Exchange totaled 156,390 shares, this establishing a new high record as to dealings in that stock on the Exchange. In fact, it represented the greatest one day's turnover ever witnessed on the floor in any stock. It accounted for about 60 per cent. of the grand total of 250,940 shares, which was distributed over a list of sixty-five different stocks. Commission houses handled an enormous volume of odd-lot orders in Steel. It was evident that many holders of the stock became frightened by the filing of the Government suit seeking to dissolve the corporation. At the lowest levels floor traders were large buyers to cover short contracts and secure profits.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Steel Shares Decline in London—Paris and Berlin Prices Weak.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—United States Steel shares were the feature on the Stock Exchange to-day. The common stock broke sharply at the opening, and later touched 54½ on light transactions, while the preferred declined to 108. The rest of the list opened weak in sympathy, but later in the forenoon the market recovered fractionally on covering. In the afternoon Wall Street offerings caused another setback, and Steel common broke 3½, making the net loss for the day 8⅝ points.

The general list followed with losses, ranging from ½ to 2 points, and the market closed flat. Copper shares less 1⅜, in sympathy with the weakness in Rio Tintos.

With the settlement concluded satisfactorily and the recent broadening demand sustained, the other sections closed steady and higher, with Consols and home rails the features.

Money was in demand for month-end requirement, and discount rates were quiet.

Money, 1½@1⅞ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3¼@3⅜ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 3⅝@3⅞ per cent.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Unfavorable New York advices caused a weak opening on the Bourse to-day. Prices improved later, and the market closed steady.

Three per cent. rentes, 94 francs 90 centimes for the account.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Prices declined on the Boerse to-day. American shares were especially weak.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Reading's Statement.

The Philadelphia & Reading's gross earnings in September were almost the same as in that month last year, the increase being negligible. Its expenses, however, were higher, so that the company closed the month with a net loss of $105,000. As for the coal company, its $2,524,000 business in September was done at a loss. It has long been the Reading's policy to take its profits from the coal operations indirectly and its earnings, figured at their face value, make the coal mines appear as an unprofitable adjunct of the railway business.

Looking at the Silver Lining.

Wall Street has stood so much buffeting in recent months that it has begun to take matters philosophically. A number of bankers, who might have been expected to condemn the Government for bringing suit against the "Good Trust," expressed gratification yesterday over the filing of the complaint at Trenton. "The people have demanded prosecution of the Steel Corporation," said one man. "If we did not get a suit under Mr. Taft we would have to face one under the next administration, anyway. It will be better for us ultimately to have the matter determined as early as possible, so that the country can adjust itself to the new conditions."

* * *

Reduced Harriman Expenses.

For the first time so far in the new fiscal year, both Union Pacific and Southern Pacific reported increased net earnings in their September statements yesterday. With both roads, gross revenues were considerably smaller, $213,000 in the Union's case and $317,000 in the Southern's, but lower operating expenses took care of the loss in gross and left a gain of $75,000 in Union Pacific's net and $182,000 in Southern Pacific's. In the preceding month Union reported a loss of $457,000 in net and Southern a loss of $470,000. In July, the first month of the new railroad year, the decreases were $363,000 and $443,000, respectively.

Heavy Trading.

The market's reception of the news of the steel suit closely approximated what happened in September following the Wickersham interview, which was taken as confirmation of the then growing belief that a suit would be brought. The market then showed the greatest activity since the days of the so-called silent panic of March, 1907, and Steel common sold off to a new low record, all of which was repeated, in effect, yesterday. The day's total sales of 1,365,285 shares were more than 300,000 less than on the big day of Sept. 27 last, when the total was 1,683,729, the largest since March 15, 1907, when the aggregate was 1,753,133 shares. As in the days of apprehension in September, steel common yesterday made nearly one-half of the market. The total trading in this issue amounted to 702,200 shares, which was the largest since Sept. 22 last, when the aggregate was 716,950 shares of Steel common, the biggest day in the stock's history. Before the September slump in steel the stock's largest previous day had been on Oct. 6, 1909, when 633,800 shares were traded in on a bull movement.

Low Records Again.

After nearly a month of respite from the almost continuous low record making which distinguished the daily trading from Aug. 2 to the last of September, yesterday's results showed a dozen stocks at new low prices for the year. The decline of Steel common from the opening at 55 to 50, was of course the most prominent, and the other records were widely scattered. United States Steel common at 50 is at its lowest price since the upturn began in earnest in 1909, on which the stock went to 94⅞, its highest price. The previous low point, reached on Sept. 25, was 51⅝, but from that level the stock had recovered in the upturn early this month to 62⅝, a price made on Oct. 2. At the close yesterday steel common was at 52⅛, a net loss of 6⅜. The preferred issue also made a new low price, dropping from 105 to 103 and closing at 103⅜, a net loss of 4⅝. Other low records were: American Agricultural Chemical, 99½; American Linseed preferred, 26⅛; American Locomotive, 32⅛; American Wool preferred, 85¼; Pittsburgh Coal, 17¼; Public Service Corporation, 108; Railway Steel Spring, 26; Republic Iron and Steel, 18, and Republic Iron and Steel preferred, 74⅛. Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis preferred made a new high record at 77 on a sale of 100 shares, which represented a gain of three points from the last previous sale.

Steel Stockholders.

When a list of steel stockholders was taken off the books at the annual meeting in 1910, the first that had appeared in several years, there was a good deal of surprise that many of the supposedly large holders did not appear at all. Of course many such held their stock in the names of employes or agents. The 17,395 shares, then appearing in the name of Luke H. Cutler were, for instance, generally conceded to be Rockefeller holdings, which have since been disposed of, and other steel Directors may well have had their holdings similarly concealed. The great bulk of the large blocks of stock stood in the name of Stock Exchange firms or foreign banking houses, one Dutch house being the owner of record of 216,870 shares. Last Spring a list of holders of more than 5,000 shares revealed only half a dozen of the Directors of the corporation. George F. Baker had 2,500 shares of the preferred, which had not appeared in his name in 1910, and had 20,000 shares of common. E. C. Converse, who in 1910 had been down for 10,000 shares of common, had only 2,000 shares of preferred in his name. Henry C. Frick was the owner of record of the same 15,000 shares of preferred which have stood in his name for several years. Elbert H. Gary was down for 7,034 shares of preferred and 1,433 shares of common, and W. E. Corey, then President of the corporation, was the holder of record of 4,430 shares of preferred and of 3,125 shares of common.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

TERMS OF SUBWAY PLAN

Enough Chicago Subway Holders Agree to Make Reorganization Effective.

The stock exchanges at other points were dominated yesterday by New York's reception of the Steel suit, and sympathetic declines resulted.

Baltimore, being to so large an extent an investment rather than a speculative market, the securities traded in there yesterday were unaffected by the Steel dissolution suit, except in the case of those issues which are traded in on the New York market. Price changes were few and small.

The Boston list was adversely affected by the filing of the Government suit against the Steel Corporation, and the break of more than eight points in Steel common on the New York Board. Trading was more active than in several weeks, and, though the list was broadened materially by the execution of stop orders in copper shares and industrial issues, by far the greatest volume of business was done in Steel. Other arbitrage issues were very active, including Amalgamated, which broke three points and rallied one or more. Other coppers followed the leader, but were not especially active on the decline, which reached a point in Utah Consolidated, Lake, North Butte, and a few other favorites. United Shoe Machinery, American Telephone, Massachusetts Gas, Massachusetts Electric, Swift, Pullman, General Electric, and American Sugar were sold lower, in sympathy with the general movement of similar groups in New York and London.

In sympathy with the weak New York market, stocks on the Chicago Exchange ruled heavy, declines in some issues running into several points. Sears, Roebuck, one of the heaviest features, opened off 1½ from the close of yesterday, and sank below 136, a loss of more than 4 points, closing slightly above that figure. Can preferred lost 2½ and Match 2, while losses of a point or more ruled in Booth Fisheries common and Chicago Railways 2. Fractional losses were made in Swift, Illinois Brick, Pneumatic Tool, American Can common, and People's Gas. On the authority of those who represent the largest interests, it is stated that the holders of enough Chicago Subway stock and bonds have agreed to the reorganization plans to make them operative. A syndicate has been formed that will pay the assessments for such holders of the stock and bonds as are unable to meet the obligations. This means that those who so declare may exchange their subway bonds for the new preferred stock, par for par, and their subway stock for new common stock, the latter in the ratio of two shares of old for one share of the new.

Stocks in Philadelphia held surprisingly well in face of the break in United States Steel and the general weakness of the arbitrage list. Even Cambria Steel only reflected the wide drop in its big brother by a decline of a trifle more than a point, and later this was partially recovered. The Government suit to dissolve the Steel Corporation ought not affect either the Cambria or Pennsylvania Steel Companies, both being independent concerns, owning their own ore supplies, while such a large proportion of their shares are held by railroads that they are practically assured of a substantial business.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following Foreign Trade Opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

7,509. BUTTER CASES—An American commission merchant writes to the Bureau of Manufactures that he has an inquiry from one of his clients in South Africa for about 40,000 butter cases, 12 by 12 by 12 inches inside measurement, ⅝-inch hooks, name of dairy to be printed on two sides. Offers should be accompanied by samples of the wood, and if possible quotations should be cost, insurance, and freight, East London and Durban; if this is impossible, free on board steamer New York, with an estimate of the gross and net weight and cubic measurement of the readmade shooks for 40,000 cases, or a certain number of them, packed for shipment.

7,510. AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY FOR A FOREIGN GOVERNMENT.—An American Consular officer has forwarded a schedule showing the nature and amount of agricultural machinery purchased last year by a branch of the local Government. The prices quoted were established as the result of competitive bids. The present contracts of sale and purchase will expire on Feb. 28, 112, and new contracts will be made in consequence of fresh adjudications. American manufacturers of agricultural machinery and impliments should avail themselves of this prospective opportunity of introducing their products into this market, which is constantly demanding a larger supply of labor saving devices.

7,511. AMERICAN FIBER AND LEATHEROID.—The Bureau of Manufactures is in receipt of a communication from a business firm in Germany requesting the names of large manufacturers of American fiber and leatheroid. The firm states it is in the market for large quantities.

7,512. HIDES.—A business man in Mexico has informed an American Consulate that he desires to correspond with American hide dealers, preferring a reliable firm in New York. He writes that he is able to ship hides of all kinds in considerable quantities and is willing to sign a contract under satisfactory conditions.

Curb Trading Reflects Declines on 'Change in Recessions in Coppers.

INSPIRATION SELLS UP

Proves an Exception to General Market and Closes ⅜ Above Day's Low Price—Cobalts Irregular.

Curb stocks reflected the slump on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and substantial losses were made in most of the coppers, although trading was not heavy. Butte Coalition sold off 1 point from 16 to 15. British Columbia and Greene-Cananea each were ⅛ down at the close, and Giroux lost 3-16. Inspiration was an exception to the general course of the coppers selling up from 7⅛ to 7½, after opening at 7⅜. Transactions in this issue totaled 5,500 shares. The Cobalts were irregular. Nipissing advanced from 7⅝ to 7¾, and La Rose sold off from 3 13-16 to 3¾. In the bond list New York City 4¼s became active, reporting transactions of $115,000, on which the price declined 1-16 from the opening to 103.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

The record-breaking cotton crop, indicated by the extraordinary ginning report, means so much for this country in both its foreign and domestic trade and in its relation to the money market that it fairly ranks as the most favorable development of the year. The resulting reduction in prices is, in connection with low stocks carried by merchants, effecting a marked improvement in the dry goods trade.

Retail trade generally is benefited by better weather. The banking situation is strengthened by the improvement in the leading foreign money markets. As concern over the European political situation becomes less acute, the rebellion in China attracts attention and is having some effect upon export trade, especially that in cottons, which is checked thereby. Foreign commerce during the latest week at New York shows a large increase in imports and a large decrease in exports; imports were $19,008,000 against $16,737,897 in 1910, and exports $12,781,866 against $17,076,695. Reports from the principal trade centres are nearly all satisfactory, indicating a fair volume of activity, and in the Northwest the feeling is that conditions in that section have fully recovered from the setback of last year. Railroad earnings during the first half of October gained 2.0 per cent. The situation as a whole is clearly one of advance. While the volume of business is below full producing capacity, and there are disturbances in some industrial departments, a quickening of the trade movement is apparent.

Bradstreet's says:

Trade displays little change, with perhaps a slightly greater tendency toward irregularity. Yet the consensus of reports from many markets, barring some at the South, indicate that retail trade on which branch of distribution attention is centered, has been materially helped by cooler weather. As a result the week has witnessed a good demand for seasonable dry goods, wearing apparel, caps, mittens, and footwear. Incidentally, groceries and flour are in good request. But in parts of the South, those sections which depend almost wholly on cotton, final purveyors have experienced a quiet period, principally because of the low price of cotton, which staple farmers are holding for a better market.

Proceeding to the larger lines, the reports as a whole do not indicate anything better than fair, though the low condition of retailers' stocks, coupled with the fact that final distribution is now likely to increase, may, and probably will, eventuate in much small lot buying, as well as in the reinstatement of orders heretofore canceled by timid buyers. But it is generally conceded that trade, wholesale, jobbing, and retail, tends to reflect improvement over this time last year, when more or less repression was in evidence. As matters stand, small lot buying continues to rule in the larger lines, with continued requests for prompt shipment. Yet the season is now so late that road orders for Fall and Winter goods tend to recede, and Spring business is developing along conservative lines.

Apparently jobbers are reconciled to this policy, and in fact in some instances they seem disposed to encourage it, presumably because they think that such a course will obviate cancellations later in the season. Wool is being bought freely and the mills are active on orders, while leather and shoes are also being taken in quantity. Trade in cotton goods is not being helped by the instability of prices, and buyers, domestic and foreign, seem to prefer to wait until this situation becomes more settled, even though it is recognized that stocks are light.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The market was very weak all the session with final prices at the lowest, the market showing a net decline of 2 to 2½ cents. The heavy selling movement which began right after the opening was attributed largely to the situation in Wall Street, and the weakness there which compelled large selling of wheat in order to protect accounts. Commission houses were heavy sellers and the selling on stop orders was persistent all day. The decline in the market represented a loss of 4c to 4½c a bushel from the high of the past few days, the absence of support being discouraging to many longs. The news bearing on the wheat market was bearish, such as the weather, supplies and foreign demand. The weather was not unfavorable in the northwest, while in the Winter wheat States the condition has been good and the new crop is developing favorably. The receipts of wheat are large and continue to exceed last year. Movement in the northwest was heavy with further gain in the Minneapolis stocks, while there were reports of increased Manitoba movement. Cables were generally lower and favorable conditions were reported in the Argentine. Argentine exports for the week were 400,000 bushels, against 624,000 bushels the previous week; India, 680,000 bushels against 344,000 bushels. Australian, 696,000 bushels, against 912,000 bushels, while the American exports were 3,780,000 bushels, against 2,543,000 bushels. World's exports indications were 10,580,000 bushels, against 10,160,000 bushels the previous week, and 15,424,000 bushels last year. Cash wheat was inactive, with no export trade reported. No. 2 red was quoted at $1.00¼; No. 1 Northern, $1.16; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.08½; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.13.

CORN.—The market was weak, but toward the close it showed a little rallying strength leaving off just above the low. Lower prices were influenced by the weakness in wheat and favorable weather east of the Mississippi. Cash corn was fairly steady at the decline and some interior markets reported a better demand. The week's exports were 526,000 bushels, against 632,000 bushels the previous week. Interior receipts have fallen off about 200,000 bushels this week. Cash corn was quoted at 80c for No. 2 free on board, spot old, and 70¾c for new, January-March.

OATS.—The market was heavy, selling off about ½c, closing at the low point. The selling was influenced by the weakness in other grain and reports of rather slow cash demand. The large stocks and rather free receipts continue to influence values and the market was somewhat disturbed by the Wall Street situation. Cash oats were quiet, with standards and No. 3 white quoted at 52½c; No. 2 white, 53c.

PROVISIONS.—Provisions were heavy, closing at the low point influenced by the weakness in Wall Street and the liquidation in the grain markets. Live hog receipts were not as heavy as they have been amounting to only about 80,000 at interior points.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Prices ruled at slightly lower levels, and although the October option was very weak, this was due to the evening up of a few unimportant contracts, and consequently had little effect on the list. Weakness in the financial market inspired some selling early, while the belief that cotton conditions will be less favorable over night failed to stimulate important inquiry. Buying at the lower levels by shorts was good, however, and late in the day prominent refining interests were lending support. There were some claims that foreign bids were quite close to a workable basis, although the business at present with interests abroad is very limited. Crude was practically unchanged.

COTTON.

Despite the fact that opposition was given to the advance at various times during the session by prominent bear operators, the list did not sell below Thursday's finals. From the start, when gains of 5 to 12 points were recorded, the undertone was very steady, so that final quotations were within a few points of the high levels.

Pressure was largely discouraged by the predictions of unsettled weather, with freezing temperatures expected in parts of the Southwest, while rain was also forecasted for sections of the Eastern belt. There were some authorities in favor of lower prices, who argue that even with a freeze it was not probable that more than 250,000 bales would be cut off from the brilliant prospects at present, and that such a development, therefore, would not be a lasting bull factor. An estimate was issued by the crop expert (heretofore quite successful in forecasts) of a prominent local concern, placing the final yield at 14,775,000 bales, while, on the other hand, a cable from Bombay estimated the yield of the crop in India in 400-pound bales at 3,500,000, against 4,682,000 last year.

The South is not a heavy seller in the future market at present, and official spot quotations were generally unchanged, while the local market was .10c advance, with middlings quoted at 9.50c. An improved inquiry in some localities of the South was thought to be due to buying by interests which are filling November engagements, there still being a decided difference of opinion as to the attitude of the spinner in the event of a further decline and in regard to the ability of the farmer to hold cotton if prices should sell below 9c.

The weakness in the security market and the unsettled conditions in the industrial world were utilized by the bears as factors warranting lower prices, but the inquiry from shorts was good on all depressions. It was contended in some quarters that as Wall Street has been short of cotton, a further decline in stocks, necessitating the replenishment of margins, may bring about buying of cotton rather than liquidation. Week-end statistics presented a slightly more bullish showing than had been generally looked for and were helpful in imparting the steady close to the market.

The into-sight for the week were 680,000 bales, against 640,000 last week, and 591,000 last year; since Sept. 1 3,990,000 bales, or 490,000 bales greater than last year, and 160,000 larger than two years ago. Spinners' takings were very liberal, amounting to 415,000, against 339,000 last week, and 346,000 last year, indicating an increase in the visible of American cotton of 265,000 bales, against 301,000 last week and a gain of 245,000 in 1910. The total visible amounts to approximately 2,820,000 bales, against 2,450,000 last year.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

There is no apparent cessation of apartment house development on the west side in the Seventy-second Street vicinity, and to the number of houses which have been projected there recently another has just been added. This will be erected on the site of the old Dakota stables, occupying the block front on the south side of Seventy-fifth Street, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue. Work has already commenced in tearing down the stables which have stood there for many years, and the new structure will be twelve, and possibly fourteen, stories high. The plot to be improved has a frontage of 212 feet on Seventy-fifth Street, 50 feet on Amsterdam Avenue, and 52.2 feet on Broadway.

The house will be put up by Frank Bradley of the Bradley Contracting Company. Mr. Bradley, with William Crawford, purchased the plot in 1906 from the Century Realty Company, and last Summer Mr. Bradley bought out Mr. Crawford's interest. The property was then assessed at $235,000 and it carried a mortgage for that amount.

The Clark estate owned the plot for nearly twenty years, it having been bought by Alfred Corning Clark in 1883 for $60,000. In 1902 the estate sold it to the Atlantic Realty Company, and the latter resold it the following year to the Century Realty Company. A new apartment house has just been started on the southeast corner of Amsterdam Avenue and seventy-fourth Street, and in Seventy-second Street, just east of Broadway, a big apartment is nearing completion.

LONG ISLAND—FOR SALE OR TO LET

WOODMERE, LONG ISLAND

Seventeen houses built from original plans, with every modern convenience, exposed plumbing, tile bath rooms, hot water heating and hard wood floors. Prices range from $6,500 to $22,500. These houses were built to help the development of Woodmere, Long Island, which place the owners and builders of the houses are greatly interested in. They will be sold on very liberal terms and at prices to return the builders a certain percentage of profit which under ordinary circumstances would not warrant the erection of modern houses of this kind. The prices are accurately figured and there will be no deviation from them. Woodmere, Long Island, is thirty minutes on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and more convenient to the average business man than any good residential part of New York City. If seriously interested, write to us and we will send you photographs of the houses, and prices.

Test by Citizens Proves Plausibility of Clue Indianapolis Police Had Discarded—Mayor Stirs Up Detectives.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 27.—Failing to find substantial clues to the murder of Dr. Helen Knabe, citizens appealed to Mayor Shank to-day to take radical steps for results, and the Mayor determined to place Detective Jerry Kinney at the head of the investigation, thus superseding Chief of Detectives Holtz, who has had charge of the case. When the Mayor made the suggestion to Kinney, however, the detective pointed out the injustice of the proposed change, saying that he had been connected with the investigation from the first; that he had indorsed every move made by Holtz, and that if the latter was at fault anywhere the whole department was similarly at fault. The Mayor receded from his request and Holtz will continue to direct the investigation.

Private detectives from other cities appeared upon the scene to-day. They are not working in connection with the local police, and it is not known what theory they are acting upon. It is believed that their employers are physicians, who feel that in some way the profession is involved, and if any member of it could be guilty of such a crime they want to know who he is and bring him to justice. They are inclined to believe that the murderer was at some time a patient of Dr. Knabe.

While the detectives were ready this morning to abandon the clue furnished by Joseph Carr yesterday when he told them that he had heard screams from the Delaware flats and had met a man at the alley in the rear a few moments later, placing the time at 12:45 in the morning, a seeming confirmation from another source led them later in the day to revise their opinions of Carr's story and regard it as worth working on.

The new informant said that about 8 o'clock Monday night a man accosted him two squares north of the Delaware flats, and, pointing to the Weaver flats, asked if they were the Delaware. He was told where he could find the flats he was seeking, and turned and went in that direction. The description of the man, his clothing, and hat corresponds with the description of the man Carr says he saw more than four hours later, and the detectives are now convinced that such a person was looking for the Delaware flats that night. The man seemed to have mistaken his route and to have been confused when he made the inquiry.

Interest in Carr's story was manifested to-day when citizens went to the Delaware flats and made a test to see if a man could have killed Dr. Knabe and have reached the alley in the rear in the time that Carr said intervened between hearing the screams and meeting the man. The test was made twice, all the details corresponding to Carr's story. It was proved that it was possible for a man to reach the alley if he had left the flat as soon as he killed the doctor, and to meet a man who was walking east on the opposite side of the street. The police had made the same test and had reached the conclusion that it was impossible, but the later tests have caused them to change their minds, and they are working on the Carr clue again.

Another clue was received to-day from a woman living north of the Delaware flats. She rose about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning to minister to a sick child, and while in the act of getting some medicine heard some one running rapidly past her home. The sound of the steps came from the direction of the Delaware flats, and disappeared around a corner. This was only a few minutes after Carr met a man at the alley.

Short funeral services were held for Dr. Knabe this afternoon, some 200 friends being present. The interment was at Crown Hill Cemetery.

Lower Duty on Brattice Cloths—Other Decisions.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained in part a protest filed by the Kern Commercial Company, regarding the classification of jute brattice cloth. Collector Loeb returned the merchandise for duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in the act of 1909 for "plain woven fabrics of single jute yarns." It was claimed by the importers that the goods should be taxed at rates lower than those assessed on the basis of the weight and count of threads.

The specific claim was for duty at the rate of seven-eighths of 1 cent per pound and 15 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 352. Judge Cooper in his decision says that the merchandise consists of different qualities. He holds that the goods weighing not less than 6 ounces per square yard, and counting between thirty and fifty-five threads to the square inch, are entitled to the lower rate of duty as claimed. The remaining qualities are held dutiable as assessed by the Collector.

A protest by G. W. Sheldon & Co. turned on the weight of copying paper imported by the firm. The Collector returned the paper as weighing under six pounds to the ream. Duty was assessed at the rate of 6 cents a pound and 15 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 410, act of 1909. The importers contended that the paper weighs over six pounds and less than ten pounds per ream. It was alleged that the duty should be 5 cents a pound and 15 per cent. ad valorem under the same paragraph as assessed. Judge Fischer sustains the claim, and reverses the Collector.

Several importers filed protests, which were unsupported by evidence when the cases were called for trial. All of the claims are overruled. The importers concerned are G. P. Calegera, W. D. Colbermann & Co., Lekas & Drivas, Jacob Friedenberg, Karambelas Brothers, Innis, Speiden & Co., Meyer & Lange, Strohmeyer & Arpe, Ungerer & Co., Maltus & Ware, Goisenheimer & Co., G. W. PERSONAL TAX FALLS ON SMALL FORTUNES

Half the Total of the City's Assessment Levied on Owners of $10,000 to $20,000.

MEN OF WEALTH SWEAR OFF

A Hit or Miss System of Assessment in Use — Sometimes a Penniless Truck Driver Is Assessed on $20,000.

Examination of the figures of the 1911 personal tax levy shows that more than 50 per cent. of the levy in the boroughs of Manhattan and Brooklyn were made on assessed valuations of $10,000 and $20,000. The same may be said of the 1912 levy, which is being sworn off by the "poor rich" at the rate of several millions of dollars daily. This practice of swearing off taxes has become so general that the Tax Commissioners at the Hall of Records are case-hardened.

Last week J. Pierpont Morgan swore off $250,000 of his $800,000 personal tax assessment for 1912. Mr. Morgan gave a very complete list of his assets and liabilities, but on the side of liabilities all the assets except $550,000 were checked off under the heads of amounts owed on bond and mortgage, notes, and open accounts. As the head of the Morgan banking firm Mr. Morgan was able to show that he was liable for an immense amount of deposits.

No Escape for Small Man.

The possessor of a smal fortune, however, does not possess either the assets or the liabilities of the wealthy man, and unless he perjures himself he has to pay. This is especially hard on the small storekeeper and merchant, who has little or no credit and nothing to offset his cash in the bank and the value of his stock in trade.

If he is assessed at $10,000 at the present rate he is obliged to pay about $181.

An official of the Bureau for the Collection of Taxes in explaining methods said that the personal tax of New York was "levied by guesswork and collected in bluff." He explained that the great majority of the names on the list were obtained from the City Directory. These are divided up into sections, and gradually sifted down until the best-sounding names in the most prosperous neighborhoods remain.

The assessor has absolutely nothing to guide him, so that a two-dollar-a-week grocery clerk living in a 4 by 6 hall room in a prosperous neighborhood is liable to receive a notice that he has been assessed on $25,000 personal property.

Only yesterday a big automobile coal truck stopped in front of the office of the Collector of Taxes in Chambers Street. A six-foot Irishman alighted, and, entering the office, shoved a tax bill for $344 under the nose of the policeman on duty, with the demand:

"What's that for?" He had been assessed for $20,000, but it only took him a moment to prove that he possessed little more than what he had on his back, and he swore off his $20,000.

One Woman Raised Her Taxes.

Many similar cases come to light every day.

On the other hand, one woman knew so little about the personal tax law that she seriously objected to the valuation placed by the assessors on her household goods and furniture, saying that it had been undervalued. To facilitate matters she made out a list herself and sent it to the Tax Office. In due time she received a polite note from the assessor thanking her for her aid, commending her honesty, and inclosing a bill that proved beyond a doubt that her property had been assessed at its full value.

On the annual record for 1911 there was a total of 64,058 names gathered from the city directory, voting lists, and in other ways. Of this number 28,781 were found to be worthless for assessment purposes. Against the remaining names was placed an assessed valuation of $357,923,123. However, only about 80 per cent. of this will be collected, the department being unable to reach the other 20 per cent. This has gone on from year to year, and as a result, since consolidation, there has accumulated $40,000,000 in unpaid personal taxes. The law is seldom resorted to with success in the collection of this vast and constantly growing amount, for the excellent reason that it has nothing tangible to proceed upon.

Considering the way the names are obtained and the guesswork, it is always a question whether the individual has a dollar or a million dollars in personal property.

Purdy Doesn't Believe In It.

Tax Commissioner Lawson Purdy, who has always opposed the personal tax as unjust, said yesterday:

"The general property tax on personal property has almost passed in the State of New York. What is left of it is provocative of injustice and wrong, and the sooner that is disposed of the better. The man of large wealth is generally greatly indebted, while his assets are not subject to the general property tax.

"A corner grocer and the retail dry goods merchant, with other storekeepers of like kind, are representative of the class who find it most difficult to render themselves immune from what is often a grievous burden to them.

"In 1901, by the amendments to the law for the taxation of the assets of banks and trust companies, some $500,000,000 was removed from the operation of the general property tax. Before that time shares of banks were taxable at their market value at the local tax rate and trust companies were taxable in substantially the same manner as a natural person.

"In 1901 the law was so changed that shares of banks are taxable at book value at the uniform rate of 1 per cent. throughout the State, and trust companies are taxable on their book value at the uniform rate of 1 per cent.

Exemptions Many Under Other Laws.

"In 1906 the change in the law for the taxation of debts secured by mortgage on real property in the State of New York removed over $2,000,000,000 from the operation of the general property tax, and the passage of the Secured Debt law in 1911 withdrew a similar or greater amount from the operation of the general property tax, or will so soon as advantage is taken of the law. What is left of personal property that is subject to the general property tax?—debts due by banks to their depositors, debts due to merchants, merchandise, and household goods.

"It must not be forgotten that so much of personal property as is left subject to the general property tax is only taxable to each person after the deduction of the just debts owing by him. When we consider that the mortgage debt of the State alone probably exceeds $5,000,000,000, and the debts to banks and trust companies in the City of New York alone amount to over $2,500,000,000, it must be evident that there is not much property left on which the old general property tax can operate.

"In view of the great progress made we look forward confidently to the classification of the remainder of personal property and its subjection to some appropriate form of light taxation or its entire exemption. We regard the latter as the best policy if it shall turn out to be practicable.

TO ROLL ON BOWLING GREEN.

Commissioner Stover Plans Revival of Ancient Sports There.

After consulting many historical authorities and digging deep into the records of old New York, Park Commissioner Stover made known his plans yesterday for the revival of the ancient games at the athletic field to be laid out in Battery Park, which won for that strip the name of Bowling Green.

When the idea first appealed to the sentimental side of Mr. Stover's nature he thought that to be historically correct he would simply have to lay out a green suitable for contests at ninepins such as the old Dutch burghers of New Amsterdam played. Then, as he went deeper into the records, he found, on excellent authority, that the name Bowling Green was not given to the district until 1732, and then by the English. The English game was somewhat different from the old Dutch game, as the Englishmen rolled at a "jack" or centre ball.

"You can't imagine how interested I have become in all this," said Commissioner Stover. "Edwin A. Abbey, in his stained glass window, which is in the Bowling Green Building, represents the Dutchmen as rolling at ninepins, but apparently it was the English who gave the name to that bit of sward. And so to be sure to get things right, I am going to revive both games."

Mr. Stover has decided to ask Mayor Gaynor to open the grounds. "Because," he explained, "Mayor Gaynor is so much interested in lawn sports—for instance, croquet."

A fountain now stands on the actual site of the old bowling green, but Commissioner Stover has decided not to tear this down, and the green, 120 feet square, will be set out as near to the original site as possible. It will cost from $1,500 to $1,800.

At one time or another both the English and Dutch games have been under the ban of the law because they gave rise to gambling, but Mr. Stover scoffs at any danger that his green might be injurious to the morals of the youth of Manhattan.

"There will be plenty of people who will want to use the green just for the sport in the games," he said.

VAN NESS FORTUNE CONTEST

Mrs. Parsons, Daughter of First Wife, to Bring Suit to Recover Property.

Charles Blandy of 37 Wall Street, attorney for Mrs. Alice Van Ness Parsons, daughter of Cornelius H. Van Ness, announced yesterday that his client would soon institute a contest of her father's will, which was offered for probate Sept. 17 by his widow, Alice Wood Van Ness. Suits against the widow to recover property in her possession will also be begun. Mr. Blandy was counsel ten years ago in a suit against Mr. Van Ness and his widow, as a result of which William F. Havemeyer, uncle of Harriet B. and Marie B. Harmon, was made trustee of $375,000 of the old man's estate.

There was no notice of a contest filed in the Surrogate's office yesterday. The filing of the will for probate automatically brought an end to a contest between the daughter and the widow over the granting of letters of administration to the Van Ness estate, and an order was signed recently by Surrogate Cohalan vacating both petitions.

In applying for letters of administration, the widow alleged that the amount of property left by Mr. Van Ness was $1,100. This represented the amount of accrued interest on some of the mortgages held by Mr. Havemeyer as trustee, and which had not been turned over prior to the old man's death. The widow declared she received all the remaining property of Mr. Van Ness under two assignments made in 1901 and 1902. At that time the property held by him was estimated at $1,000,000, after $375,000 of mortgages and securities had been turned over to the trustee, Mr. Havemeyer. The income turned over to Mr. Van Ness each year by Mr. Havemeyer from the $375,000 portion of the estate was $18,000, and he was known to have had an income of at least $22,000 a year from the remaining property.

During the ten years intervening between the suit brought by the Harmon girls, nieces of the second Mrs. Van Ness, (the present widow having been his third wife,) he had at least $400,000, so that if he died with only $1,100 he had divested himself of $1,400,000 during the ten years. It is the contention of Mrs. Parsons, his daughter, that the third wife got possession of all this property.

The will which is offered for probate originally gave Mrs. Parsons $25,000. But a codicil revokes this bequest and leaves her without a cent from the estate. The codicil also reduced from $10,000 to $5,000 each bequests to each of the children of Mr. Van Ness's nephew, John Jerome Rooney.

In his affidavit prepared for the hearings on the abandoned fight for letters of administration Mr. Blandy said of Mrs. Van Ness:

"She introduced herself into the life of the decedent in 1900 under circumstances which clearly indicate that she was an adventuress. She was then 27 years old. He was an old man, about 84, living at Cornwall in his dotage and for some time had manifested an extraordinary weakness for the female sex. This had become common knowledge to all in the neighborhood."

Mr. Blandy said that the testimony at the trial of the suit brought by the Harmon girls showed that she had pretended to sprain her ankle on the sidewalk before the old man's house at Cornwall, and thus was taken onto his veranda and later driven home by his coachman. She called to express her thanks and worked upon the old man's sensibilities to such an extent, Mr. Blandy said, that he married her within a month.

MEN MUST HAVE COOKS.

Quoting a Philosopher, Court Decides to Let Dr. Leigh's Cook Go.

"A man can get along without many things, but he can't get along without a good cook," remarked Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions yesterday as he suspended sentence upon Sophie Acker, who pleaded guilty to selling cocaine. The woman was employed by Dr. S. J. Leigh of 152 Madison Avenue, and yesterday Dr. Leigh appeared in court and begged for clemency. After thinking the matter over Judge O'Sullivan said:

"A philosopher has said:

> We may do without clothes,
> We may do without books,
> But civilized man
> Can't do without cooks.

"So, Sophie," said the Judge, "I will suspend sentence upon you, as Dr. Leigh wants you to cook for him. Hereafter let the doctor dispense cocaine, but you attend to the cooking."

DROP BERRI CHARGE AND SEND APOLOGY

Judicial Candidates Declare That Libel Prosecution Was "Instituted Mistakenly."

"SORRY MESS," SAY LEADERS

McCooey and Other Politicians Subpoenaed by the Irate Newspaper Owner, Who Isn't Yet Appeased.

There was a dramatic ending yesterday to the proceedings which the three Democratic candidates for the Supreme Court in the Second District brought against William Berri, publisher of the Brooklyn Standard Union, for criminal libel. The complainants not only withdrew the charge, but wrote a letter to Mr. Berri apologizing for having caused him annoyance. They declared that the prosecution had been "instituted mistakenly."

The unexpected termination of the case caused a sensation in political circles in the borough, and some of the Democratic leaders were said to be in wrathful mood over what they regarded as the "sorry mess" that had been made of the affair. There were rumors that these leaders were demanding to know who was to be held responsible for what they looked upon as an ill-advised action which might prove to be a serious blunder as affecting the party ticket in the county. The Republicans were correspondingly jubilant.

John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader, wore an air of gloom all day, and was sphinxlike when asked why the prosecution of Mr. Berri, which from the first promised to be productive of things sensational, had been so suddenly dropped. None of the judiciary nominees would throw any light on their quick change of front. Mr. Berri, his friends declare, was "spoiling for a fight." He is said to have subpoenaed 122 witnesses, including Mr. McCooey and other Democratic leaders, and he seemed somewhat indignant at the discontinuance of the case. He hinted that the apology and the withdrawal of the complaint might not be the end of it all.

The criminal libel proceedings grew out of a rather scathing editorial printed in Mr. Berri's newspaper. It was entitled "Tammany's Tainted Touch on a Judiciary Ticket." The editorial was in part as follows:

> The first nominations to the Supreme Court bench in this district were made under the Tammany method this year. The tainted hand of Tammany rests on them. The Democratic people had nothing to do with these nominations. The candidates are boss nominees, pure and simple, and as to one of them there is already a rumor of a shocking scandal involving the payment of a large sum of money.

Charging Mr. Berri with criminal libel for publishing these and other like statements, the Democratic judiciary candidates, Herbert T. Ketcham, at present Surrogate; Assistant Corporation Counsel Patrick E. Callahan, and ex-Congressman William Willett, Jr., obtained a warrant from Chief Magistrate Kempner and had the publisher in the Adams Streeet Court last Friday. The examination was to have taken place yesterday. Mr. Berri appeared in court with his counsel, Meier Steinbrink. None of the complainants was present. They were represented by Lawyer John J. Kuhn.

"Are you ready to proceed with the case?" asked Magistrate Kempner.

"Acting under instructions, and with the consent of the court," said Mr. Kuhn, "we will withdraw the complaint."

"Under whose instructions?" asked the surprised Magistrate.

"The complainants' instructions," replied the lawyer.

The court looked inquiringly at the defendant. Mr. Berri, smiling, fished a letter from his pocket, and it was handed to the Magistrate. What the court read was this:

> Brooklyn, Oct. 26, 1911.
> Mr. William Berri:
>
> Dear Mr. Berri: Referring to the matter of the proceedings now pending in the Magistrate's court, wherein we are the complainants against you, certain facts have been brought to our attention which make it apparent that the prosecution was instituted mistakenly. We now join in saying that we sincerely regret having instituted these proceedings or having thereby caused you any annoyance. We shall instruct our counsel to terminate the matter by withdrawal of the proceedings in court. Very truly yours,
>
> WILLIAM WILLETT,
> PATRICK E. CALLAHAN.

"Is that all?" asked the Magistrate.

The two lawyers nodded affirmatively and the court consented that the complaint be withdrawn.

"It may not be as near ended as it looks," said Mr. Berri when asked if he had anything to say about the dropping of the case. "Isn't that an extraordinary document, [referring to the letter of apology,] coming during a political campaign?"

"The termination is a very distinct disappointment to me," said the publisher later in a formal statement. "I am not talking with any desire for effect. We prepared a most extraordinary defense. It was utterly impossible to get away from it. Our lawyers worked most assiduously night and day. There has been so much effort in it that it will be readily seen this is a great disappointment to Mr. Steinbrink and myself. I understand that there were 122 subpoenas served, which were not confined to one point of the case, but took in many. If the advice the complainants have now taken had been taken before it would have been much better for them. Now they have been advised right. The termination of this proceeding is absolutely without condition of any kind."

There was lively speculation among local politicians as to what the "certain facts" were that had been brought to the attention of the complainants and which made it apparent that the prosecution was instituted mistakenly. There was talk to the effect that the local Democratic organization had suddenly come upon the conviction that the prosecution had better be dropped.

William Willett, Jr., the Queens County candidate on the Democratic ticket, had a long talk with Leader McCooey in Brooklyn yesterday. As he was leaving Mr. McCooey's office he was asked by reporters about the withdrawal of the libel action.

"I have nothing to say," he responded.

"Yes, he has nothing to say," said Mr. McCooey, rallying to the support of the candidate.

"Did you suggest the dropping of the case?" Mr. McCooey was asked.

"I, too, have nothing to say," was the reply.

"Did you and the other two candidates agree not to make any statement about the withdrawal of the complaint?" was asked of Mr. Willett.

"I have nothing to say," he repeated as he went out with one of his campaign managers.

TEA MEN WITH COFFEE MEN.

Form National Trade Association—May Probe the High Prices.

The National Tea and Coffee Trade Association was organized as a permanent body at a meeting of thirty-four tea and coffee dealers at the Fulton Club yesterday afternoon. The purpose of the organization is to obtain practical cooperation for tea and coffee dealers in matters affecting the welfare of the trade, and to raise the standard of business ethics. It is hoped by some of those interested that the new association will inquire into the alleged coffee combination with a view to lowering the price to dealers and consumers.

The meeting yesterday was addressed by William H. Ukers, editor of The Tea and Coffee Trade Journal. William B. Harris, the Government's coffee expert in the Department of Agriculture, was elected temporary Chairman, and P. S. Duryee of Duryee & Barwise, was elected Secretary. Among the speakers were Thomas Martindale of Philadelphia, Col. William P. Roome of the Acker, Merrall & Condit Company, Alexander Del Mar, President of the Latin-American Chamber of Commerce; M. H. Gasser of the St. Louis Coffee Roasters' Association; Edward Aborn, Joseph Van Dyck, J. B. Dash, George F. Wiemann, and William F. Foley.

The association will meet again on Nov. 10 to adopt a constitution and elect officers.

SOCIETY AT SIEBRECHT CASE.

Mr. Miner Smiles Assurance Upon His Wife, the Co-Respondent.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Society women of New Rochelle gathered in the Supreme Court at White Plains to-day for the divorce trial of Mrs. Julia W. A. Siebrecht, who is suing her husband, Henry A. Siebrecht, Jr., the son of a wealthy Fifth Avenue, Manhattan, florist, which was on before Justice Mills.

Mrs. Francina Miner, who is named as co-respondent, sat with her husband, Frank W. Miner, a prominent resident of New Rochelle, close to Mr. Siebrecht. Mr. Miner says he has implicit faith in his wife and has confidence in Mr. Siebrecht, who is his personal friend.

When a former servant and a former landlady of the Siebrecht household testified that they had seen Mr. Siebrecht kiss Mrs. Miner, Mr. Miner looked his wife in the eyes and smiled.

Mr. and Mrs. Siebrecht have three children. Mr. and Mrs. Miner have one son eleven years of age. Both families have been prominent in New Rochelle socially, and were neighbors for a time. This is the third time that the Siebrechts have figured in the courts at White Plains this month. First, Mrs. Siebrecht sued her husband to recover property valued at $15,000, which she deeded to him just before entering the New Rochelle Hospital for a serious operation. Her husband told her, she alleged, that if she recovered he would deed the property back to her. Justice Mills has not yet decided this issue. Mrs. Siebrecht also sued to compel Mr. Siebrecht to give an accounting of certain funds.

Mrs. Siebrecht says after she went to the hospital that Mr. Siebrecht took Mr. and Mrs. Miner into their New Rochelle home. The defendant, through his lawyer, John M. Gardner of Manhattan, denies all the charges, and says that Mrs. Miner is a proud and affectionate mother and a devoted wife, and that Mrs. Siebrecht was extremely jealous of her.

Affidavits of Mrs. Tucker, who resides at Hawleyville, Conn., were read to the court by Lawyer Henry G. K. Heath, appearing for Mrs. Siebrecht. She said that the Siebrechts and Miners spent part of a Summer at her house. Mrs. Tucker said she peeked through a hole beside the chimney in the attic into Mrs. Miner's room below and that she saw Mr. Siebrecht with her and that he kissed her. She didn't wait to see any more, but ran down stairs.

Margaret Jackson, a maid employed by Mrs. Siebrecht, testified that while at Hawleyville she saw Mr. Siebrecht and Mrs. Miner go out riding together in the day time, and that no one accompanied them.

"One day," said the witness, "they went in an automobile to Danbury and were gone all day."

"Did you see anything else while Mrs. Miner was living at the Siebrecht house?" the maid was asked.

"No."

"What did you see Mr. Siebrecht do when he left the house in the morning?"

"He kissed Mrs. Miner."

By Justice Mills—"And you called that nothing?"

"Did you ever hear Mr. Siebrecht say he was sick and he stayed home?"

"Yes; I saw Mrs. Miner tiptoe out of his room one morning when he said he was ill."

"Why did you leave the Siebrechts?"

"He said things were going too fast."

"Didn't he say you were helping yourself to the flour barrel and other things?"

"He should have known where his things were going, as he was feeding two families all the time." This made the spectators as well as the Justice smile.

Further testimony will not be taken until the December term of court, as Justice Mills adjourned the October term to-day.

DRIVES HER AUTO INTO LAKE.

Mrs. Goerwitz Nearly Drowned In Avoiding Collision at Sound Beach.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Oct. 27.—Mrs. R Adele Goerwitz of New York, a Summer resident of Greenwich, who is frequently seen driving her automobile at forty miles an hour, met with her first mishap today. She says the accident was due to an opal ring which she wore for the first time.

Mrs. Goerwitz threatened immediately after the mishap to throw the ring into the lake on the estate of William I. Marks of New York, known as Laddins Rock Farm, at Sound Beach, where the machine then lay, and from which she had been dragged, when almost drowned, by her companion, James Bryson of Stamford.

Mrs. Goerwitz drives a car of the racing type, light and very speedy. This afternoon as she rounded a sharp bend in the road, driving through the Marks estate, which is now used by the public while the post road is being rebuilt, she met a large red touring car with a Jersey number, and being unable to turn out for it, both cars running fast at the time, she chose the lake, which is four or five feet deep. The car turned on its side and Mrs. Goerwitz was entirely submerged, being held down by the wheel to which she clung.

Bryson rescued her with difficulty. A passing automobile took her to Stamford, but she soon returned and remained for two hours until the machine was pulled out of the lake.

ALFRED MOSELY HERE AGAIN.

Will Study American Education Further—He's for Equal Pay.

Alfred Mosely, the English educator, and his three daughters arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic. They will make a tour of the country, and Mr. Mosely intends to make a further study of the educational features in the United States. He is especially interested in the question of equal pay for men and women teachers.

"In England," he said, "the schools are under Government control, and teachers are paid according to their ability, regardless of sex. It seems to me that efficient teachers, whether men or women, ought to receive equal pay for their services."

The Man in the Tower Views Small Affairs

GOT the Field Glass of Fashion focussed on a lot of small things yesterday.

Fully as important as the cut of a suit or the hang of an overcoat.

The key note of refinement is frequently a neckscarf.

New Yorkers have made the Weber and Heilbroner haberdashery business the greatest in America.

Because the silk in the scarfs—the skins and workmanship in the gloves—the material in the famous Manhattan shirts, REPRESENT INTRINSIC VALUE.

Their correctness is accepted as a proverbial fact.

At prices that do not add a premium for the good name that attaches to the goods.

Evening clothes that would feel comfortably at home at a diplomatic dinner—and that's no small affair.

Fit the occasion as perfectly as they fit you.

Dress coat and trousers at $35, and up to $50.

White dress gloves—heavy outseam or light kid, $1.50 and $2.
